AMBASSADOR AT PARIS RECALLED BY GERMAN GOVERNMENT

THREE YEARS IN PRISON FOR HALLIDAY AS EMBEZZLER

Bankrupt Broker Is Convicted by Jury on Charge Based on Woman's Story That She Gave Him $1000 and Never Received Bond or the Money.

SELLER, NOT AGENT, WAS THE DEFENSE

Added Instruction of Court to the Jury Said That Defendant Could Be Convicted Only if Actual Money Was Taken.

George V. Halliday, 31 years old, bankrupt stock and bond broker and confessed counterfeiter of $1,500,000 interim certificates of the French Government, today was found guilty of embezzlement and sentenced by a jury to three years in the penitentiary.

The embezzlement charge was based upon the complaint of Mrs. E. W. Hayes of 7472 Flora avenue, Maplewood, that she had paid Halliday a $1000 check and $9.78 in cash for which he was to deliver a $1000 bond of the Gas Securities of New York, but that he did not deliver the bond.

Added Instruction to Jury.

After Circuit Judge Falkenhainer had read his instructions to the jury, Halliday's attorney made demand for inclusion of an additional instruction and the Judge thereupon supplemented his instructions with the following:

"The Court instructs that a check is not money. A bond or stock or interim certificate is not money. You cannot return a verdict of guilty unless you find and believe from the evidence that the defendant embezzled $1009.78 in lawful money of the United States.

"You are further instructed that even though you find and believe from the evidence that the defendant did embezzle $9.78 in cash or a $1000 Gas Securities bond or interim certificate or receipt, still you must find him not guilty, because, as herein stated, a finding of any of those facts would not constitute an embezzlement of money."

Verdict in 30 Minutes.

The jury's verdict was returned at 12:15 p. m., after 30 minutes' deliberation. In the absence of Halliday's attorney, Wayne Ely, the Judge polled the jury and got a unanimous response for a verdict of guilty.

After leaving the bench, he said: "Well, that instruction did not make so much difference after all." He was referring to the fact that those present in the courtroom, when the Judge read his supplemental instruction, interpreted it as favorable to acquittal. "Under the law I was compelled to include it," the Judge said, "or make the case liable to reversal for error."

In his address to the jury, Halliday's attorney declared that the relation of Halliday with Mrs. Hayes was not that involved in contract of agency, but simply that of debtor and creditor. "He gave an interim receipt for the delivery of a certain bond," Ely declared. "An interim receipt is a regular proceeding in the brokerage business. It is negotiable. If my client has committed any crime, it is the crime of bankruptcy, if that be a crime. The coupons bonds for which this receipt was given were not issued until July. My client was declared bankrupt in August, otherwise the bond would have been delivered."

Charles M. Burns, 5975A Highland avenue, foreman of the jury, said: "We agreed on the first ballot as to Halliday's guilt, but differed as to the penalty. We regarded the Judge's instructions carefully, and decided that after Mrs. Hayes' $1000 check reached Halliday's bank account it became money."

Halliday, as is known, also is under Federal indictment in connection with the counterfeiting of the interim certificates for French Government gold bonds. He was jointly charged in this case with Harry Turner, publisher of "Much Ado." A demurrer to the Turner indictment was sustained Oct. 30 by Federal Judge Faris, and the case has been resubmitted to the Federal grand jury.

BROKER CONVICTED ON WOMAN'S STORY OF DEAL

GEORGE V. HALLIDAY.

EDDIE FOY WEDS FOR FOURTH TIME

Bride of 64-Year-Old Comedian Is Mrs. Marie Combs, Widow, From Missouri.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Eddie Foy's 64 years rested lightly on him yesterday as he marched up the aisle of the Church of the Holy Cross, in Forty-second street, with his fourth bride on his arm. She was Mrs. Marie Combs, a piquant widow of 29, a striking brunette in a pale blue poke bonnet and a dark georgette dress colored by a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Only five were in the wedding group: Edward Fitzgerald, to give Foy's real name; Mrs. Combs, Miss Margaret McGrath and Matthew Whelan, mutual friends of the bride and bridegroom, who stood up with them, and the Rev. William Duffey, an assistant pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony. The seven living Foy children were absent.

Bride From Missouri.

Foy met his latest bride in San Francisco four years ago, when her husband was still living. He was David N. Combs, a Texan, who died a year ago last November in California. Mrs. Combs is from Missouri and attributes her striking appearance to the fact that she has Cherokee Indian blood in her veins. She never has appeared on the stage, but Eddie confided to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch after the ceremony that he'd "fix that."

"I don't intend to be alone in my old age," said the famous comedian. "I see my children growing up and drawing away from me. I love children and I'm going to raise another family. I want a home with little ones in it. I'll make my friend Dr. Coue proud of me."

Foy Thrice a Widower.

Eddie is thrice a widower, having married Rose Howland in 1879, Lola Sefton in 1886 and Madeline Morando in 1895. The first two were actresses and the third a famous danseuse from Italy. He had two children by his first wife, two by his second and 11 by his third. Seven, all children of the danseuse, survive.

LITHUANIAN TROOPS REPORTED CROSSING INTO MEMEL AREA

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The Lokal Anzeiger today says two regiments of Lithuanian troops, "profiting by the the international situation," are crossing the frontier, with the object of occupying Memel, the East Prussian area internationalized by the Treaty of Versailles. A number of the frontier inhabitants are accompanying the troops.

JURY TO USE HEADS, NOT HEARTS

Selections Based on "Extraordinary Intelligence" in Glickstein Case.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The selection of 100 talesmen "of extraordinary intelligence" from whom will be chosen a jury to try Mrs. Lillian S. Raizen for the murder of Dr. Abraham L. Glickstein in Brooklyn in December, 1921, was ordered in Supreme Court yesterday on the plea of prosecuting attorneys for jurors who will try a woman "with their heads—not their hearts."

POLICE FIND AUTO USED IN $4245 HOLDUP DEC. 22

ASSERTS OWNERSHIP CAN BE ESTABLISHED

The Hudson speedster automobile, used on Dec. 22 in the holdup of a Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. delivery wagon, when the robbers disarmed a policeman guarding the wagon, obtained $4245.77 in cash and escaped, is in possession of the police.

Chief of Detectives Hoagland, in a report to Chief of Police O'Brien today, declares that he has established to his own satisfaction that the automobile is the property of a member of the gang holding allegiance to Edward J. (Jelly Roll) Hogan Jr., State Deputy Beverage Inspector and former member of the Legislature.

He declares further that he believes that examination by the grand jury of witnesses whom he can produce will establish ownership of the car upon an individual in the gang and to this end has obtained the agreement of Circuit Attorney Sidener to a grand jury investigation of the robbery. Chief Hoagland adds that he has ordered the arrest of Hogan's brother, James, and six of the gang, intending to put them under bond pending the result of the grand jury investigation.

Report of Investigation.

Chief Hoagland includes in his report an account of his own investigation of the robbery, which is in substance as follows:

A helper on the delivery wagon obtained the license number of the robbers' automobile as it was driven away from the scene of the robbery, Spring and Laclede avenues. The man to whom the license was issued was interviewed. He had sold the car several months previously. His license, however, disclosed the engine number.

After a minute search, detectives found the automobile in a garage in the rear of 4121 Evans avenue. The garage was boarded up. The license plates on the car had been removed, but the engine number served to identify it.

The garage owner was a barber. He said on Dec. 22 a man had requested permission to place an automobile that had "figured in a job" in his garage and to take the barber's car to his own garage.

Tells of Order From Hogan.

The barber named this man as Edward Cole, one of the proprietors of the Cole & Howell garage at 4260 Easton avenue. Cole was arrested. He said that on May 20 he had received a telephone call from a man who said he was Edward J. (Jelly Roll) Hogan and whose voice he recognized as that of Hogan, and was instructed to go to a garage at Twelfth and Locust streets, obtain an automobile there, take it to his garage and overhaul it.

He followed the instruction, he said, but the garage demanded some sort of claim check. Cole said that he thereupon called a telephone number shown in the telephone directory to be that of Leo Hogan, at an address known as the residence of Edward J. Hogan Jr., and talked with Hogan, who told him to return to the garage and that the car would be delivered to him.

It was and he took it to his garage and overhauled it. It remained in the garage until Dec. 21, the day before the robbery. An order sheet, on file in the garage, corroborated Cole's statements. The repair bill was shown to have been paid by a check for $156 of "J. M. Ludington." The police, tracing the check, found that it had been passed through the National City Bank by an attorney frequently identified with the defense of Edward J. Hogan Jr., against charges under which he has been arrested. The

DRAMATIC STORY TOLD BY WIDOW OF MER ROUGE VICTIM

HE WAS TOLD AUG. 18 HE'D BE HANGED

Girl, 17, Testifies She Was Deported and Names Dr. McKoin as One of Those Who Made Her Leave Louisiana.

By the Associated Press.

BASTROP, La., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Thomas F. Richard, wife of one of the citizens of Mer Rouge, who was kidnaped and murdered by a masked band Aug. 24 last, was a witness this afternoon in the investigation by the State of the murders of Richard and Fillmore Watt Daniel. She dramatically told that she last saw her husband on the morning of Aug. 24 last when he left Mer Rouge for Bastrop. She said that her husband had been kidnaped and taken into the woods. She learned of this when she returned from a shopping trip.

"When I returned," she testified, "baby told me the 'ku kluxes have got papa.' The baby is 4 years old.

"How did she know about the Ku Klux?" "She had heard me talking and reading about them at home. We left for our home in Mer Rouge, but the baby kept talking about the Ku Klux. 'Oh, mamma, they came with them black masks on and got daddy,' the baby would keep on saying. I became so worked up I returned to Bastrop and hunted for my husband. I was later joined by my husband, who said he had been taken out in the woods and held for two hours."

"Did your husband tell you about being kidnaped on Aug. 18?" "Yes he said they came and got him out of the garage, blindfolded him, tied his hands. They took him out on the Monroe Road. They asked him about the shooting at Dr. McKoin. He told them he knew nothing about it. They told him they were going to hang him.

"He told me they walked him about the woodoso. He said he thought they were looking for a place to hang him. He told me they then said they were satisfied with what he had said. He then said they unmasked. They asked him if he recognized any of them. He said he told them he recognized Capt. Skipwith but none of the others."

Addie May Hamilton testified today that she was forced to leave her home near Mer Rouge and was deported from the State by "the Ku Klux."

She named Dr. B. M. McKoin, former Mayor of Mer Rouge, and "Pink" Kirkpatrick as two of the party of men who, she testified, came to her mother's home one night, took her away and put her aboard a train for Little Rock, Ark., the home of her sister. The young woman gave her age as 17.

Says She Recognized McKoin.

"Dr. McKoin and 'Pink' Kirkpatrick and about six others came to my mother's house about 10:30 o'clock at night and told me they were going to send me away," said the witness. "I recognized Dr. McKoin, who was masked. He was the only one doing any talking. They came to the house and pulled their guns and told my mother that 'Addie May will have to leave town tonight.' My mother asked them what for. 'Because,' Dr. McKoin said, 'Addie has been leading an immoral life.' My mother said, 'Why don't you send others away'? Dr. McKoin said, 'We are going to.' My mother got down on her knees and pleaded, but they made me leave. They told us if anybody showed their heads out of the door they would 'blow 'em off.' They made me leave without a hat. Dr. McKoin struck my mother when she made a final plea for me to be allowed to remain. My mother attempted to shove them out of the room. She begged them to let her go to the depot. They refused. They put me in an automobile and Dr. McKoin gave me $7 for my fare to Little Rock. He told me if I did not catch the train I would be tarred and feathered the next day. I was put on the back seat of the auto-

IT'S NO USE! TESTS FAIL TO SHOW A WAY TO GROW HAIR

Mediums Commonly Used Produce No Results in Experiments at Washington U.

Experiments conducted at Washington University have shown that use of the razor, petrolatum and other mediums, commonly supposed to stimulate and coarsen the growth of hair, have no effect whatever. Tests with sunburn and wind, conducted with various subjects, also failed to disclose any effect upon hair growth.

Miss Mildred Trotter, assistant in the Department of Anatomy, who supervised this research, concluded hair growth is determined by the epidermal cell and in no way is controlled by exterior influences. On examining the faces of 1600 women she found 27 out of 100 had hypertrichosis, or excessive growth of hair.

TRACTORS GO 2000 MILES ACROSS SAHARA DESERT IN THREE WEEKS

Camels Require Three Months for Trip—Waste May Be Opened to Tourists.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The caterpillar automobiles which started from Tugurt, Algeria, for Timbuctoo on the River Niger on Dec. 18, reached their destination Sunday. Camels take three months to make the journey across the desert.

"The chain-driven automobile has become for the desert what the steamship is for the ocean," declares Gen. Estienne, general inspector of tanks. "The caterpillar success opens the Sahara desert to tourists," says another writer.

"Life in the desert should now become permanent instead of nomadic and intermittent," concludes a third chronicler, "because of the possibility furnished by France of establishing wells, repair stations and resting places."

The caterpillar journey of 2000 miles has stirred the imagination of the French and its organizers announce that after a few days of rest in Timbuctoo the caterpillars will return across the Sahara by another route in the direction of Morocco.

DWIGHT F. DAVIS MAY BECOME ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF WAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis is being given serious consideration by Secretary Weeks for the post of Assistant Secretary of War, to be vacated March 4 by J. M. Wainwright, elected to Congress from a New York district. Weeks has the names of about 15 aspirants to the place, regarded as one of the best subordinate administrative offices. He is expected to submit his recommendation to the President about the middle of February.

Davis' chances are enhanced by the known desire of the administration to find an acceptable Middle Westerner for the post next to Weeks, a Massachusetts man, in the War Department. Davis' military record in the World War and his administrative experience in his present position, that of a director of the War Finance Corporation, are also in his favor.

Davis was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, against Senator Spencer, in 1920. He is internationally known as the donor of the Davis Tennis Cup.

HARDING CALLS OUR TROOPS HOME FROM THE RHINE

President Reaches Decision at White House Conference, Attended by Secretaries Hughes and Weeks and Gen. Allen Is Prepared to Move Quickly.

TRANSPORT TO LEAVE NEW YORK FRIDAY

About 1000 Men Remain in Coblenz Area — Some in Washington Interpret Action as Protest Against French Policy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Withdrawal of the American troops from the Rhine was ordered today by President Harding.

In announcing the decision the State Department said that the President deemed the time expedient for the recall of the forces now at Coblenz.

The American forces remaining in that area number about 1000 men, and it was indicated that the withdrawal order would be carried out as soon as the American commander, Major-General Allen, could make the necessary arrangements for winding up finally the affairs of the army of occupation.

Senate Favored Withdrawal.

A resolution favoring such a withdrawal was adopted Saturday by the Senate, but it was not apparent today how far it had contributed to the President's decision nor how far the Administration had been influenced by the situation brought about by the French movement into the Ruhr Valley.

The date of actual withdrawal of the forces will be left to the War Department, where it was said that American evacuation of the Coblenz zone would be conducted in an orderly fashion.

Officials of the State and War Departments refused flatly to make any explanation of the decision to recall Major General Allen and his forces other than to repeat that it was considered expedient to complete at this time American withdrawal from Europe.

No Formal Order Yet Sent.

Secretary Weeks was called to the White House early today and the purpose of the Government to withdraw the troops was disclosed before his return to the War Department. Secretary of State Hughes also attended the White House conference. It was learned that formal orders had not as yet been sent to General Allen to begin the homeward movement, although he has knowledge of the plan for early evacuation and is prepared to move on short notice.

As an indication that no time would be lost it was made known that the transport St. Mihiel would leave New York Friday to bring home the bulk of the Rhine forces. A few small detachments will be left for a short time to close out final settlements involved in the withdrawal.

The troops probably will return via Bremen, which has been the American supply base for the Coblenz forces. The St. Mihiel is large enough to carry the entire command and its equipment.

Officials both at the State and War department had indicated previously that the recent developments in connection with the reparations tangle would not affect the status of the troops on the Rhine.

If officials had any news of a disturbing character beyond the information which has come through in press dispatches they carefully concealed it.

Taken by Some as Protest.

In the absence of any official explanation, the inference was drawn in many quarters that the withdrawal was to be interpreted rather as a protest, than as an attempt to avoid any trouble with which the American forces might be threatened as a re-

Sovietized "Hamlet" Is Being Rehearsed in Moscow Theater

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.

A SOVIETIZED "Hamlet," revised and adapted "in accordance with the modern spirit of the time," is being rehearsed in a Moscow theater, newspapers of that city announce. The play is inspired by the commissariat of education, which ordered the State Institute of Theatrical Art to produce it.

Shakspeare's hero in the bolshevik version of the drama is not a Danish Prince, but a prominent communist leader fighting against the bourgeoise and capitalism. All of Hamlet's famous soliloquies and speeches have been re-written and put into revolutionary rhetoric. The actor who will play the part of "Polonius" will be made up to resemble Lloyd George, and will quote excerpts from the most notable speeches made by the former Premier.

NEWSBOY CONTRIBUTES PAPERS AS SUPPORT OF BOND ISSUE

George L. Ackermann Declares He Stands Firmly on His One Leg for City Improvement.

George L. Ackermann of 812 Wilmington road, news dealer at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets, has only one leg, but he stands squarely on it for the $88,372,500 bond issue for municipal improvements, to be voted on Feb. 9.

His interest is such that he has refused to accept payment from the Bond Campaign Committee for copies of all editions of all St. Louis newspapers, to be delivered to the campaign headquarters in the Arcade Building, adjacent to his sales corner, during the campaign.

"I'm too much interested in seeing the bond issue pass," he said, in refusing to be paid. "This is part of my contribution in the campaign. If St. Louis people would wake up to the need of these improvements, and vote the bond issue, this would be 'some town.'"

PEGGY MARSH'S HUSBAND DIES

Death Hastened, It Is Said, by Wound Suffered at Clifford's Party.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Albert L. "Bud" Johnson, who in 1921 married Peggy Marsh, English dancer, died here today of pneumonia.

Attending physicians said death was hastened by a wound suffered when he was shot during a party last September at the Adirondack camp of Jack Clifford, dancer and husband of Evelyn Nesbit. Johnson said that he shot himself accidentally. His wife returned to London and now is dancing at Civo's.

FRENCH TAKE COAL CONTROL IN THE RUHR TOMORROW

Note Delivered to Germany Says Engineers and Functionaries Will Take Charge of Mines and Factories to Insure Reparations Payments.

GERMAN "GOOD WILL IS COUNTED UPON"

Troops Will Go Into Industrial District Only in Such Numbers as Are Necessary to Protect 'Mission of Control."

By Associated Press.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—France's assumption of the Ruhr coal control is announced for tomorrow in a note delivered by the French Government to Germany today.

The note was handed simultaneously at 4 p. m. to the Foreign Office in Berlin by the French and Belgian Ambassadors and to the German Ambassadors in Paris and Brussels.

It outlines the acheme for the seizure of the coal control already known and creates a "mission of control of the mines and factories of the occupied territories, composed of engineers and functionaries." The note further announces: "Beginning Jan. 11, 1923, a program for the distribution of the coal and coke made or executed by the Kohlensyndicat will be submitted for approval to the industrial mission of the Ruhr, which can modify the same if it considers this necessary."

"Good Will Counted On."

The note explains that the German default on wood and coal deliveries makes it necessary to take control in order to assure the payment of reparations. It asks the German Government to facilitate the work and says German good will is counted upon.

The assurance is renewed that there is no intention of disturbing the German population or German industry, and it is announced that only the troops necessary for the protection of the mission will be sent.

The engineers and functionaries are empowered to exact all necessary information from commercial organizations to move about freely, enter all mines, factories, offices and railway stations, and consult all bookkeeping and statistical documents.

The French military command has made every preparation for the final "go ahead."

It is generally understood that the plan, as it stands today, calls first of all for sending engineers into the Ruhr to take over certain mines. These experts will be adequately but not ostentatiously escorted by the military. It is thought that the distraint will be increased in proportion to Germany's failure to give satisfaction. The military escorts will be quartered on the outskirts of any towns so occupied and the soldiers will be kept from contact with the inhabitants.

As soon as the order to advance is received from Premier Poincare, engineers and experts will set up an organization at Essen which will check all coal shipped back to France.

Allies Are Notified.

France late yesterday notified England through the French Ambassador at London, and the American Ambassadors at Paris and Brussels were told by the French and Belgian Governments, respectively, what France plans to do.

M. Maginot, the War Minister, has assured Premier Poincare that the army is ready; the technical men, even emergency crews of railroaders and telegraphers, in case of

CLARK OPPOSED HERRIN KILLINGS, WITNESSES SAY

'If You're Going to Do Murder, I'm Done With You," Defendant Is Quoted as Saying.

HAD BEEN NAMED AS LEADER OF MOB

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 10.—The defense in the Herrin massacre case, following the exclusion yesterday afternoon by Judge Hartwell of testimony designed to show that the "trial is a fight of capital on labor," began today its effort to offset the State's testimony against Otis Clark, alleged leader of the mob which killed 20 nonunion employes of the Lester strip mine on June 22, 1922.

The earnestness of the effort was indicated by the calling of about 30 witnesses to be sworn. Clark's presence at the head of the column conducting the prisoners from the mine was testified to by a number of witnesses and he was quoted as having made a speech at Crenshaw Crossing, clamoring for the killing of the prisoners "to stop the breed." It also was testified that Clark and another man had led Supt. McDowell down a lane where his body was later found.

State Witnesses Recalled.

Before calling his witnesses, Attorney White, for the defense, recalled William Goodman and George W. Nelson, State witnesses, for further cross-examination. Goodman was questioned as to a statement it was intimated he had made to Fred Martin about his movements on June 22, contrary to his testimony for the State. He denied making the statement. He also denied again having told the parents of Otis Clark that he knew anything against Clark. The statement he made to them, he said, was that he had not caused Clark's arrest. He was asked if he was not testifying for a reward of $1000.

"No, sir; not by any man," he answered. "I want you to understand that. Not one penny."

"Nothing But Mileage."

Attorney Glenn for the State, referring to a statement of Attorney Kerr for the defense in his opening statement that witnesses for the defense were to be paid $10 a day, asked him if he was to get $10 a day.

"Nothing but my mileage from the county," he answered.

Nelson denied saying to Charles Cox that he saw the crowd pass, but could not identify any of them.

James Hicks of Royalton, a former miner, now a salesman, was the first witness for Clark. He was at Crenshaw Crossing when the prisoners were brought from the mine. Somebody among the captors shouted: "Let's kill these fellows and get rid of the breed."

Clark, according to the witness, said:

"Boys, if that is the attitude that you are taking, that you are going to kill those fellows, I quit you now. I have been here two or three days and nights trying to get this thing stopped and if you are going to resort to murdering I will quit you. I am a mine worker and they won't stand for murdering. I will quit you now."

Questioned by Attorney Glenn, Hicks repeated in part the words of Clark.

"He called it murder, did he?" asked Glenn. "Yes, killing or murder."

The witness said he did nothing to try to stop the mob, but told Clark he was taking the right stand.

When the crowd started away, Hicks said, Clark did not go along. Driving back toward Herrin with two friends, the witness said he passed the column a mile down the road at Moak Crossing and was told that a man had been killed a little way back on a by-road. He drove there and saw a body which, he was told, was that of McDowell.

Just as he got back to the main road, the witness said, an automobile coming from the direction of Crenshaw Crossing slowed up and Clark got out.

On cross-examination, Hicks said he had held all the local offices in the United Mine Workers and had twice been an executive board member.

"I'm Done With You."

John Miller, a miner of Royalton, testified that Clark said in his speech at Crenshaw Crossing, "Men, I've been here two or three days. If you're going to do killing and murdering, I'm done with you right now. For God's sake, don't do it."

The witness said he stayed at Crenshaw Crossing more than an hour and that Clark was still there when he left. At Moak Crossing he heard that somebody had been killed "down the lane." He went there and saw McDowell's body. He saw Clark in an automobile which came from Crenshaw Crossing, but did not see him get out.

On cross-examination, Miller said he had held various offices in the local. He recalled, under prompting, that in the argument at Crenshaw Crossing somebody said that if the captives were murdered it would be the worst thing that ever happened to the miners' organization of Williamson County and of the country.

Alvin Misker of Herrin said he left hoem at 5:40 a. m. and went with four others to Virgil Murray's house, half a mile from the strip mine, where there were 30 or 35 men. They joined the crowd wehn the prisoners were brought out and followed along to Crenshaw Crossing.

He heard Clark make his speech. The mob moved away and Clark remained, he testified. He remained about 20 minutes. The crowd had then passed out of sight. Clark was still there. He did not recognize anybody except Clark and did not see any weapons. The others had said that Clark made his speech from a mound at the east of the road. Misker said he was standing near the center of the road.

Father Was Away.

Her father was 10 miles away in the country, she said. The occurrence was in January, 1922. She returned to Mer Rouge last May.

She returned, she said, because Hugh Clark and W. E. Hopkins said they "could fix it up with the Ku Klux. I got a letter from them telling me everything was all right to come back. I came back. Mr. Clark and Mr. Hopkins were friends of my family and they interceded at the request of my sister."

After her return she stayed about two weeks, but "was scared every day," and returned to Little Rock and came back home in August. She went back and returned again in December.

She was positive it "was Kirkpatrick with the hood on." She said the men told her mother they would tar and feather her if she did not go.

Says McKoin Threatened to Shoot.

"Who said they would shoot anybody's head off if they looked out of the door?" she was asked. "Dr. McKoin."

"How long had your parents lived in Mer Rouge when you were ordered away?" "Thirteen years."

"Where is Fred Clemmons, who was at the house the night the hooded men came for you?" "I understand he is in New Orleans."

"Who was your family physician?" "Dr. Doddy. Dr. McKoin also. Mrs. McKoin was my music teacher."

"You were going to Sunday school?" "Yes, sir."

"Were you going to school?" "No, sir. I quit school in the eighth grade."

W. C. Andrews, one of those flogged on Aug. 24, was recalled. He testified that at one time at Stampley, three miles north of Mer Rouge, he and Watt Daniel had run into a party of klansmen.

Describes Dress of White.

"They were dressed in white, with hoods reaching to their feet," he said. "They went out the Stampley road. We followed them, as I had business with them. I had received a note. I found it in my automobile. It said I was running up and down the road and disturbing the peace at all times of night. It was signed by the Vigilante Committee. I followed them to talk to them about the note. * * * Some of them went into a negro house. When they came out they came down to where we were and surrounded our car. They told us to hold up our hands. They searched us and took Watt Daniel's gun. They accused Watt of making whisky. He said he had not made any whisky since November, when he had received a warning. They then searched my car, took my pistol but later returned it. They did not return Watt's. We went on to town. A few minutes later the klansmen came through. One of the automobiles stopped and a man shouted, 'Here, Watt, is your pistol.' Watt went out to the automobile and got his gun."

The klansmen said they did not know anything about the note, the witness said. He recognized Capt. Skipwith and Laurie Calhoun among the klansmen.

Andrews thought he also recognized Bob Dade and Dr. McKoin, but Bob Dade "said the next day he wasn't at my car, but was up the road."

Capt. Skipwith of Bastrop is the "exalted cyclops" of the Morehouse Parish Klan. Calhoun recently acted as a special Deputy Sheriff to bring Dr. McKoin back to Louisiana from Baltimore, where he was arrested on the order of Gov. Parker and charged with murder. Dade is Mayor of Mer Rouge and brother-in-law of Watt Daniel.

Jeff Burnett, under arrest on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Daniel and Richard was named by Harry J. Neelis, automobile man near Bastrop, as one of two unmasked men who held him up on the road near Bastrop, Aug. 17 or 18, last—the same day Richard is said to have been first questioned by a hooded band as to an alleged attack on Dr. McKoin.

Attorney-General's Statement.

"Developments in the open hearing," Attorney-General Coco, conducting the inquiry, said, "definitely fixed the klan's position in the present investigation of the outrages, and there is to be no escape for the persons who were really responsible for the grossest insult to law and order in this section of the State.

"The testimony offered yesterday, while only a small part of the mass of evidence which we intend to offer, revealed in a positive way that klan leaders were involved in a most active manner in the strife which led up to the tortures and murders of two Mer Rouge citizens.

"The positive testimony offered by a former klansman as to the two-sided feature of the klan movement the white-hooded and virtuous side and the black-hooded and raiding side, leaves no doubt as to the dual nature of the invisible empire.

"The klan, not only in Morehouse, but in Louisiana and the nation at large, will have to consider seriously the narratives that were unfolded. The klan is on trial and the klan will have to answer."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Congress will be asked, probably within a week, to broaden the powers of the American Debt Commission in dealing with all of the war debts owed to the United States, the Senate Finance Committee was told today by Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, the Senate's representative on the commission.

BORAH CABLES LONDON PAPER

Says Obstacle to American Aid Is Europe's Refusal to Help Self.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10. — The Daily News today publishes a signed cable dispatch from United States Senator Borah, who says the insuperable obstacles to American assistance in Europe is the demand there seems to be that assistance shall begin by the formation of some kind of political alliance, or league, or guarantees. Another obstacle, Borah adds, is that Europe refuses to help herself.

In an appreciative editorial the Daily News says: "The Senator reads Europe a severe lesson which is not ill-deserved."

COMMUNIST LEADERS TAKEN IN PARIS RAIDS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Raids were made by the authorities in Paris today in search of communist leaders who have recently been in the Ruhr Valley and are charged with having excited the population to revolt against the entry of the French troops. Five leading communists—Monmousson, Maranne, Pietri, Sourdot and Tridkand Treint—were arrested.

The warrant charged the men with having attempted to violate the internal and external security of the state.

Gaston Monmousson, most widely known of the arrested men, had been expelled from Essen, it was stated, by the German police.

A man named Gaston Rene, a carpenter, also was arrested, and the police searched the offices of Humanite, the communist organ, and seized several documents.

Communists circles expect the arrests to be followed by the demand for the suspension of the parliamentary immunity of Deputy Marcel Cachin, who also has been active in the Ruhr propaganda, so as to admit of his apprehension.

The meeting of the committee was called after former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest, who is to preside at tonight's meeting, had received a letter, in line with previous communications received by him, warning him that foul-smelling bombs would be thrown into the meeting.

The committee announced that the Woman's Council of Justice had asked for reservations on the stage for 500 of its members, but that all but 100 of the stage seats had been allotted, and this number would be reserved for the women. Labor leaders, it was said, had informed the committee that organized labor would have several hundred working men and women in the audience.

Monmousson organized the railroad strike of 1921. Peitri belongs to the union of nonstate teachers. Sourdot is a member of the Postal Telegraph and Telephone Union. Treint has been one of the directors of Humanite since the last schism, when those who were not thoroughgoing communists in the eyes of Moscow were expelled.

BELLEVILLE LABOR PARTY TO HAVE TICKET IN CITY ELECTION

Delegates From All Union Organizations to Be Invited to Convention in February.

The Farmer-Labor party, meeting in Belleville, decided to nominate a ticket for the municipal election in April. It was decided to drop the "farmer" part of the name and go into the election as the Labor party. It is believed that by so doing the spring primary can be eliminated.

Candidates will be selected at a convention the latter part of February, to which three delegates from every union organization in Belleville will be invited. The party went on record as in favor of raising the salaries of the Mayor, City Treasurer and City Clerk.

Cole said that he had placed the car in the barber's garage on Dec. 22, at the instruction of a man he named and who is known to the police as a member of the Hogan gang. The man told him, Cole said, that the car had been "on a job."

Cole's partner, James Howell, told of subsequently overhearing a conversation between detectives in which an automobile was described so that he recognized it as the car which had been sent to the barber's garage. He reported this fact to the man who had given instructions for disposition of the car and the man said he would get rid of it. Cole and Howell said they had no knowledge of who removed the license plates of the car.

Chief Hoagland believes that these and other witnesses likely will tell more under oath before a grand jury than he has been able to elicit. Further the grand jury may be able, he believes, to establish the identity of "J. M. Ludington" and compel officers of the bank to disclose further information about that account.

FRENCH TAKE OVER TRUCKS AND BUILDINGS

Preparations Made in Essen and Other Ruhr Points for Move Into Industrial Area.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, Jan. 10.—Essen is undergoing a tense feeling of uncertainty as to the French plans to occupy the city. Announcement that the coal syndicate has decided to move its headquarters to Hamburg is strengthening the morale of the inhabitants.

Duisburg is said to be bustling with the activities of the French, whose loaded transport trains are arriving steadily. The French have taken over eight public school buildings in that city, from which they have taken out the furniture. This is being replaced with new military office fittings valued at 30,000,000 marks. French patrols at Duisburg are reported as appearing in full field equipments.

French army chiefs and the Burgomasters of Duisburg, Essen, Muelheim, Ratingen, Gerresheim and other towns to be occupied, conferred last evening.

A Duesseldorf dispatch says that all passenger automobiles and heavy delivery trucks have been requisitioned by the French on orders issued by Gen. Simon. The General, with the Burgomaster, will select the best of the automobiles for use by the French. Those refusing to hand over their cars will be tried by the French military court.

French Occupation Troops White, With Few Indo-Chinese.

By the Associated Press.

MAYENCE, Jan. 10.—Fully 20,000 French troops have left the Mayence bridgehead for the Ruhr since Saturday morning. The troops are white, with the exception of a small percentage of Indo-Chinese, and there are no Senegalese or black troops among them.

The French have ruled this area for four years with firmness. Complaints of undue severity have been rare. The French occupation has trained the population to conceal their emotions, and so far as the Mayence people appear to care, the French may go as far as Berlin, and good order in Mayence would not be interfered with.

British to Let French Move Through Their Lines.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The British Government has granted France permission to move troops through the British occupied territory along the Rhine, in pursuance of the French plan for occupation of the Ruhr.

A Reuter dispatch from Cologne this afternoon says: "The attitude of the Germans in the British area is venomously anti-French. A large, irresponsible section of the populace favors active resistance, and the wildest rumors are abroad. Fears are expressed lest the British and American troops should be withdrawn."

Thomas seeks to compel all claimants to come into the bankruptcy court.

REPORT OF STATE DRY CHIEF

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 10.—In a statement sent to Washington last night, William H. Allen, Federal Prohibition Director for Missouri, reported December as one of the most successful months of 1922 in prohibition enforcement.

In an enumeration of activities of 15 enforcement officers operating under him, Allen reported 64 stills seized, 260,250 gallons of mash and 593 gallons of corn whisky destroyed; 132 persons arrested in the Kansas City district, and 97 arrested in the St. Louis district. During the year 2245 cases were made against violators of the Volstead act. Bonded liquor in the hands of "bootleggers" was found in only one or two cases, according to the report.

U. S. STATES REPARATION PLAN WAS MADE CLEAR TO FRANCE

State Department Announces Hughes Laid Proposal Before Jusserand, Who Replied With Poincare's Observations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Any doubt as to the directness of the manner in which Secretary Hughes' proposal for a reparations inquiry by financial authorities was brought to the attention of the French Government has been removed by a formal State Department announcement.

Issued after press reports from Paris yesterday stated that the French Foreign Office had denied receipt of the American plan, the announcement said Secretary Hughes had taken the matter up "directly with Ambassador Jusserand." The French Ambassador, it was said, was understood to have "transmitted it to his Government" before later "presenting to the Secretary the observation of M. Poincare in reply." The views of the two Governments, it was added, were "exchanged in this way."

Department officials pointed out the possibility that the press reports had referred to the absence of any formal protest from the United States against occupation of the Ruhr.

Department's Statement.

The text of the department's statement follows:

"The Department of State said that it could not credit such a report and believed that there was some inaccuracy in its transmission. It was further said that the suggestion that financial experts should be called in in order to advise the Governments with respect to what Germany could pay and what financial plan would be advisable, was taken up by Secretary Hughes directly with Ambassador Jusserand some time prior to the Secretary's address at New Haven; that the matter was discussed with the French Ambassador, who, it is understood, transmitted it to his Government. The French Ambassador presented to the Secretary the observations of M. Poincare in reply. The views of the two Governments were exchanged in this way. Subsequently when Secretary Hughes made his speech at New Haven he delivered a copy of it to the French embassy for their information.

"With regard to the taking of forcible measures for the purpose of obtaining reparations, it is not doubted that the attitude of the American Government is well understood."

No "Formal" Protest.

It was pointed out that French officials might have had in mind in making whatever statement they did a formal protest from the United States against occupation of the Ruhr. The word "formal" had deep significance in diplomacy, it was added, and it was true that the United States had not presented any formal communication of that character. Yet, in the light of the conversations between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Jusserand, and also in view of the flat expressions on the point by Secretary Hughes in his New Haven address, it was added, the French authorities could not have the least misapprehension on the score of the American attitude as to the reparations course they proposed to follow.

A formal protest involves the question of the direct interest of the Government protesting in the matters dealt with. There is no reason to believe that administration officials have ever considered the possibility of making any such representations to France as the question involved is one relating to a treaty to which the United States is not a party. The whole course of the Washington Government has been conducted with that situation in view and in the desire, it was reiterated officially yesterday, of maintaining the friendliest relations with all the allied Powers.

Americans on Rhine Largely of the Eighth Infantry.

The American forces on the Rhine, which for some time have been confined to the city of Coblenz and immediate vicinity, comprise 107 officers and 1080 men, it was stated in a Coblenz dispatch to the Associated Press on Jan. 2. The forces are made up of 41 officers and 850 men of the Eighth Infantry and in addition, quartermaster's, signal and hospital corps and engineer and motor repair units.

Regret Expressed in France Over Withdrawal of U. S. Troops.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—French official circles expressed great regret this afternoon over the announcement that President Harding has ordered the withdrawal of the American forces in Germany, the news of which was given them by the Associated Press.

Great Britain's Policy Not Affected.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—News of President Harding's order for withdrawal of the American troops from the Rhine furnished something of a sensation in diplomatic and official circles here. While officials were not inclined to comment to any extent in advance of the official notification from Washington, it was stated in authoritative circles that the American move was unlikely to affect Great Britain's policy.

suit of the French advance.

With the troops on the way home the Washington Government is expected to stand completely aloof from the French reparations program. Any embarrassment that might have arisen due to the presence of American forces in a region through which French troops must pass will have been removed, and in addition the withdrawal will serve to give direct point to the disapproval of the French course already expressed by Secretary Hughes both in his New Haven address and in conversations with Ambassador Jusserand.

It is now known that the administration policy in keeping the troops on the Rhine beyond the date originally set for the withdrawal last year was based on considerations remote from the Rhineland or reparations situation themselves. All the allied Governments and Germany requested that the American contingent remain, and the State Department held that this should be done for a time at least, because it would add to the good feeling toward the United States abroad.

Meanwhile officials here are known to have watched the progress of the French and Italian Governments toward ratification of the Washington conference naval limitation pact with some concern. It is highly probable that in keeping the reduced American army on the Rhone the influence that action might have on hastening French ratification of the pact was uppermost in official thought here.

The transport St. Mihiel, on her return to the United States, will touch first at Savannah, Ga., then at Charleston, S. C., before proceeding to New York.

Gen. Allen will turn over the Coblenz bridgehead zone to the French authorities.

INQUEST OVER GUEST FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL IS CONTINUED

Deputy Coroner Wants to Establish Whether Blow Was Suffered in or Out of Hostelry.

An inquest into the death of Henry Sarmas, 50 years old, a traveling salesman of California, Mo., who was found deal in his room at the American Annex Hotel at 1 a. m. Tuesday, was continued today so the police homicide squad might work on the case.

Postmortem examination disclosed that Sarmas had succumbed to hemorrhage of the brain, due to a blow on top of the head.

William Speedy, a bellboy, and Thomas Rider, chief clerk, testified that Sarmas had come in apparently in an intoxicated condition. Speedy helped him to his room and was instructed to return in half an hour. When he came back Speedy said he found Sarmas lying on the floor with his head near a concrete base board.

Deputy Coroner Dever said he wanted more facts to establish whether Sarmas fell and struck his head or was slugged before entering the hotel.

FOOD AT GOVERNOR'S BARBECUE GIVES OUT UNDER ONSLAUGHT

Final Event on Inaugural Program Is Dance Tonight at Oklahoma Capitol.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Jan. 10.—The last of the barbecued meat, bread and coffee provided for the inaugural feast of Gov. Walton disappeared late last night under the onslaught of the hungry, numbered by the tens of thousands.

Many of the thousands of visitors from over the State started for home today but others stayed on to see the inaugural celebration program through, the final event of which will be a dance tonight at the State capitol.

Until late last night crowds streamed through the barbecue serving units at the State Fair Grounds. The march of the hungry began yesterday shortly afternoon. And when the serving ceased everybody had been well fed at least once.

The barbecue feast was the fulfillment of a campaign pledge of Gov. Walton that when he got into office he would hold an old-fashioned barbecue and dance for everyone in the State who could attend. Serving of the meal began after the new Governor had been publicly inaugurated at the fair grounds.

CARELESNESS IS CHARGED

Coroner Names Two Trainmen in Crash at Union, Mo.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness, naming R. S. Monroe, rear-end brakeman on the first section of Rock Island stock train No. 96, eastbound, and Edwin E. Colbert, fireman of the second section, was returned today in the death of Herman Kemper of Hanley, Mo., who was crushed when the engine of the second section telescoped the caboose of the first, at 1 a. m. yesterday, at Union, Mo.

Testimony was that the first section had stopped for water, and Monroe had not sent back a flagman. Colbert had the duty of watching the track at this point for the engineer, because of a curve which hid the engineer's view, according to testimony, and had called out "Track clear." Kemper's brother, J. B. Kemper, was brought to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. Two others were less seriously injured. The four were farmers tending cattle shipments.

"Premier Poincare is expected to give Parliament tomorrow news of his plans.

There is no longer any vague uneasiness that the United States or Great Britain may stop the advance by a protest, for the French Government and people alike consider it quite settled that Essen will be occupied and that the progressive seizure of the Ruhr can only be stopped by Germany coming to terms.

Object to Word "Occupation."

With the giving of notifications it has been arranged for orders to go forward to Gen. Degoutte to send to Essen a sufficient force to assure the protection of the allied engineers and agents who have been intrusted with applying the measures decided upon by the French Government. These measures comprise, besides the collection of the German coal tax for allied account, the seizure of state forests, to be exploited for the benefit of the reparations fund, and the collection of customs duties on exports in foreign money.

The French Foreign Office still insists that the word "occupation" is inapplicable to the operation in the Ruhr. The French troops there, it is said, will not exercise the prerogatives of forces of military occupation further than may be found necessary to furnish protection for the allied agents and assure proper facilities for the performance of their mission. They will substitute themselves for German authorities in no other direction than the application of the penalties outlined in the notification to Germany, it is declared.

RECALL FROM PARIS OF BOYDEN SOUGHT BY REE

"An Unofficial Representative Is an Unofficial Meddler," Missouri Senator Declares in Speech.

CAPABLE OF DOING HARM, HE ASSERTS

Spirit of Law That There Should Be No Representative on Reparations Body Violated, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Reed of Roland W. Boyden, the unofficial American representative on the Reparations Commission, was demanded today in the Senate by Senator Reed of Missouri.

"An unofficial representative is an unofficial meddler," declared Reed, who added that such a representative was capable of doing much harm as an official spokesman.

Reed's discussion of the activities of Boyden, who yesterday made an extended statement to the Reparations Commission regarding the proposal to declare Germany in default in coal deliveries, was a part of a speech in which the Missouri Senator congratulated the administration on its decision to recall the American troops from the Rhine.

Observations Last Week.

During the debate, which preceded adoption of the resolution favoring the troop withdrawal last week, Reed said it was officially asserted, apparently on behalf of the administration, that the American force should remain in Germany.

"But events have moved rapidly," he added, "and within a few hours has been decided to bring the troops home. I congratulate the country upon the fact that our troops are being withdrawn from a position where every thoughtful man has recognized for two years was rather a menace to the good will which should mark our relations with Europe.

"The order of the President should be extended. He should consider the unofficial representative of the United States on the Reparations Commission to return with the troops.

"The unofficial representative is only an unofficial meddler. He is incapable of doing as much harm as an official representative, especially as it appears that our representative is given to making speeches on every possible occasion."

Spirit of Law Violated.

The Senator declared further that "the truth is the President is committing violating the spirit of a law that there should be no representative on this commission except by act of Congress."

"To seek to avoid the plain purpose of the law, to do or to see done the very thing that may not be done without an act of Congress," he said, "is unworthy of the President of a great republic."

"Either we are there or we are not there," added Senator Reed, referring to the unofficial nature of Boyden's mission, which he declared a moment later to be "a piece of political chicanery."

"I hope in this conversion of President relative to the withdrawal of the troops," he continued, "a change of heart will go far enough to recall this unofficial international meddler."

Boyden's First Work for Government on Hoover's Legal Staff in 1917.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—Roland W. Boyden, unofficial American representative on the Interallied Reparations Commission, figured prominently in the various international financial conferences at Spa and other centers in the highly technical background work necessary in determining the amount and apportionment of the German war indemnity.

He was a famous Harvard athlete. Is a member of Boston law firms, director of three banks, and has been a leader in Boston Chamber of Commerce activities.

Once before, Boyden was in the public eye of the nation when, in 1917, about a year before the entrance of the war, he was called to Washington to become a member of the legal staff of the United States Food Administration and to direct prosecutions under the food laws. He spent a year and a half under Herbert Hoover on the General Executive Committee, and had charge of the enforcement of all the food decrees and regulations promulgated for the entire nation.

Boyden is nearly 59 years old. He is one of the leading citizens of Beverly, Mass., where he was born. He practiced law first at Salem, Mass., but after four years came to Boston to practice. He is at present a member of the firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden and Perkins.

RECALL FROM PARIS OF BOYDEN SOUGHT BY REED

CAPABLE OF DOING HARM, HE ASSERTS

Spirit of Law That There Should Be No Representative on Reparations Body Violated, He Says.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Recall of Roland W. Boyden, the unofficial American representative on the Reparations Commission, was demanded today in the Senate by Senator Reed of Missouri.

"An unofficial representative is an unofficial meddler," declared Reed, who added that such a representative was capable of doing as much harm as an official spokesman.

Reed's discussion of the activities of Boyden, who yesterday made an extended statement to the Reparations Commission regarding the proposal to declare Germany in default in coal deliveries, was a part of a speech in which the Missouri Senator congratulated the administration on its decision to recall the American troops from the Rhine.

Observations Last Week.

During the debate, which preceded adoption of the resolution favoring the troop withdrawal last week, Reed said it was officially asserted, apparently on behalf of the administration, that the American forces should remain in Germany.

"But events have moved rapidly," he added, "and within a few hours it has been decided to bring the troops home. I congratulate the country upon the fact that our troops are being withdrawn from a position which every thoughtful man has recognized for two years was rather a menace to the good will which should mark our relations with Europe.

"The order of the President should be extended. He should order the unofficial representative of the United States on the Reparations Commission to return with the troops.

"The unofficial representative is only an unoficial meddler. He is capable of doing as much harm as an official representative, especially as it appears that our representative is given to making speeches on every possible occasion."

Spirit of Law Violated.

The Senator declared further that "the truth is the President is every moment violating the spirit of the law that there should be no representative on this commission except by act of Congress."

"To seek to avoid the plain purpose of the law, to do or to seek to do the very thing that may not be done without an act of Congress," he said, "is unworthy of the President of a great republic."

"Either we are there or we are not there," added Senator Reed, referring to the unofficial nature of Boyden's mission, which he declared a moment later to be "a piece of political chicanery."

"I hope in this conversion of the President relative to the withdrawal of the troops," he continued, "the change of heart will go far enough to recall this unofficial international meddler."

Boyden's First Work for Government on Hoover's Legal Staff in 1917.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BOSTON, Jan. 10.—Roland W. Boyden, unofficial American representative on the Interallied Reparations Commission, figured prominently in the various international financial conferences at Spa and other centers in the highly taxing background work necessary in determining the amount and apportionment of the German war indemnity.

He was a famous Harvard athlete, is a member of Boston law firm, director of three banks, and has been a leader in Boston Chamber of Commerce activities.

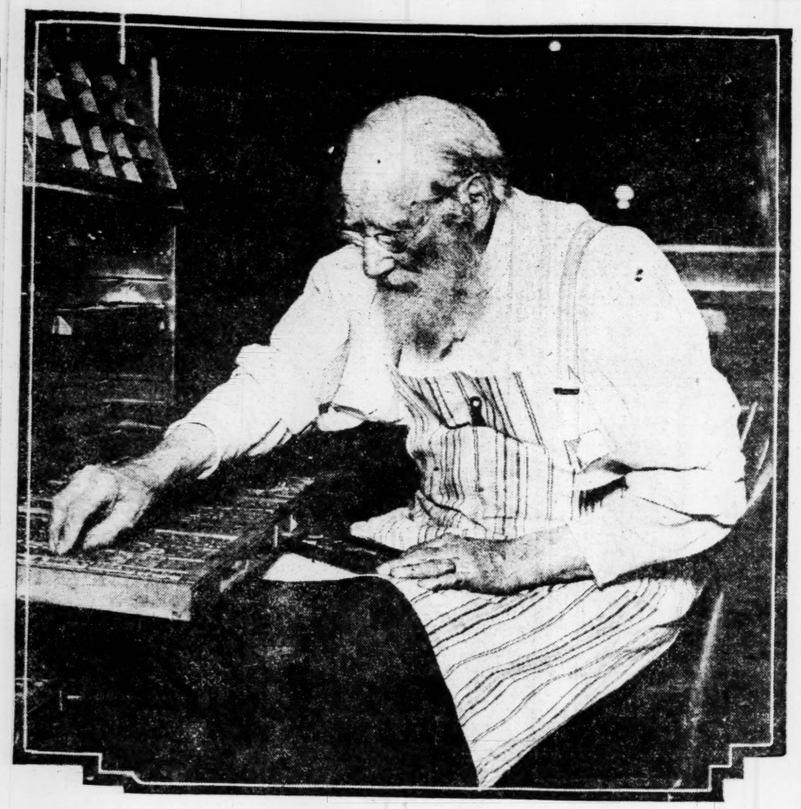

Once before, Boyden was in the public eye of the nation when, in 1917, about a year before the close of the war, he was called to Washington to become a member of the legal staff of the United States Food Administration and to direct prosecutions under the food laws. He spent a year and a half under Herbert Hoover on the General Executive Committee, and had charge of the enforcement of all the food decrees and regulations promulgated for the entire nation.

Boyden is nearly 59 years of age. He is one of the leading citizens of Beverly, Mass., where he was born. He practiced law first at Salem, Mass., but after four years came to Boston to practice. He is at present a member of the firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden and Perkins.

Ninety Years Old and "Still Going Strong"

PHILIP F. COGHLAN.

Printer Still at Work He Has Done for 75 Years

"Major" Philip F. Coghlan, Employe of the Post-Dispatch for Nearly 40 Years, Remembers the Flood in 1844.

"The art preservative," printing used to be called. It has preserved Philip F. Coghlan to the age of 90 years. Today was his birthday, and he was at his daily task in the Post-Dispatch composing room, where he has so long been known as the "dean," the "Nestor" and by like titles, that he seemed to think little of adding the rare word "nonagenarian" to them.

His fellow-printers could not persuade "the Major," as Coghlan is most commonly called, to take the day off. He plans to have a family celebration Sunday at his home, 7211 Southwest avenue, and he could see no reason for missing a weekday from the practice of the trade which he has followed in St. Louis for almost 75 years, and in the Post-Dispatch office for nearly 40 years.

So "the Major," smoking his corncob pipe, bent over his cases of advertising type, "throwing in" the sorts in the way that he learned as a printer's devil in Belleville, years before he began his long typographical career in this city.

Still Does Proofreading.

Interruptions came, in the form of congratulations from employes of various departments of the Post-Dispatch, and "the Major" accepted these attentions graciously but briefly, for he did not wish to miss the two hours or more of proofreading with which he usually completes the day after he has finished distributing "ad" type.

Proofreading is work, not necessarily for a young man, but for one with unimpaired eyes, and Coghlan's eyes, so far as he and his oculist can judge, are as serviceable as they were when he was a middle-aged man. His spectacles are not of high magnifying power, and his oculist recently advised him that he did not need a change of lens.

In his home neighborhood, on the Maplewood boundary, the white-bearded printer, walking still with a trace of the soldier step—for the title of "Major" stands for real military service, as a commissioned officer in the Civil War—has long been a familiar figure. Many have suggested that he is the oldest man in St. Louis to be employed in daily activity in trade or profession. "The Major" makes no claim of this sort. He says only that he does not know of anyone as old as he who is working so steadily as he is. As to the printer's trade, his seniority is established locally, and it is believed that a wide search would be necessary to find anywhere an older printer who still works at the case daily.

Brother Was Rear Admiral.

Coghlan was born Jan. 10, 1833, in Louisville. His given name, Philip Fouke, commemorates an Illinois Congressman of the time, a relative of the Coghlans, and grandfather of a St. Louis business man who now bears the same name. It was this influential relative who helped one of the Coghlan boys, Joseph B. Coghlan, to get into the United States Naval Academy, and to begin the career in which he attained the rank of Rear Admiral. Admiral Coghlan, who was Captain of the Raleigh with Dewey's fleet at Manila, became an international figure when, in 1899, he recited at a dinner the verses "Hoch der Kaiser!" satirizing the "me und Gott" views of the German Emperor. Admiral Coghlan died 14 years ago, at the age of 64.

Philip, the older brother, spent his boyhood in Belleville, and learned to "stick" type in the office of the Belleville Advocate, standing on a dry goods box to reach the upper case.

One morning in 1848, he got into the hack which then carried passengers from Belleville to Illinois Town, the East St. Louis of today, and supplementing the hack ride with a ferry trip, cast his lot in St. Louis.

Has Been President of Union.

The Ustick commercial printing house, still in business under the name of R. P. Studley & Co., employed Coghlan for several years, while he completed his apprenticeship. In January, 1851, he became a fully qualified member of the St. Louis Typographical Society, predecessor of the strong Typographical Union of today. He has since been president of the union several times, and served five times as a delegate to the international organization.

Before the Civil War, but in just what year he does not remember, Coghlan went to work on the Missouri Republican, and he worked for that paper, and for a time for the Missouri Democrat, before his enlistment, which was in the latter part of the war period. The printing of lists of war dead and wounded, which would arrive by steamboat, sometimes made his work almost continuous, day and night. He served as a Second Lieutenant in the Fortieth Missouri Regiment, and was in engagements at Mobile and elsewhere.

He returned to the printer's case, and to his wife and five children, after the war, and worked on morning papers until 1883, when, to get steamboat and was propelled up Chestnut street on rails laid temporarily, to enter the service of the Missouri Pacific. "The Major" has lived in all parts of St. Louis except the central southern part, and when the Manchester car, on which he now rides to work, is delayed or overcrowded, he thinks of the bobtail mule cars that used to run out O'Fallon street, whose passengers had to get out and push at certain rough places.

The epochal occurrence in the life of all old printers is the introduction of the linotype, which came, in this part of the country in the late '80s. Coghlan remembers hearing his fellow-printers talk of the projected new machines which would set and cast entire lines of type at once, and would do away with hand composition on news matter.

"I told the other boys," he relates, "that such things might come, but it wouldn't be in our time. It did come in my time, and wonderful things have come since, particularly in transportation. I don't care much for the automobile, much less for the airplane, but it wouldn't surprise me if people were generally traveling by air in a few years now."

Work "Agrees" With Him.

He learned to operate the linotype machine, but has never been engaged regularly in this work. Instead, he has handled the larger type, still used in individual sorts, of the advertising department.

Coghlan has a son, Philip C. Coghlan, a Post-Dispatch proofreader, and three daughters, with whom he lives at the Southwest avenue home. He has eight grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

His only vacations are taken in attendance on the State and national encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic, of which he is past commander for the State. He intends to go to Milwaukee for this year's national gathering. But as for retiring, to take the prolonged rest which his friends sometimes suggest, "The Major" has no such intention.

"I have never been idle except for a few short sick spells," he says. "I don't want to lay off now, and I don't believe I would last long if I did. Work agrees with me."

32 OF 47 VENIREMEN FOR ELLIS CASE CHOSEN

Searching Questions of Counsel for Both Sides Makes Progress Slow.

The third day of jury picking in Circuit Judge Grimm's court, in the second trial of Albert Ellis, charged with the murder of Edna Ellis, his former fiancee, began today with 27 men qualified for the panel of 47 from which the jury will be chosen.

Five more men qualified this morning, bringing the total number of tentative selections to 32.

Searching questions by counsel for prosecution and defense to uncover possible prejudice on the part of prospective jurors drawn out especially by the defense have made the process slow. The list of available veniremen summoned to this division of the court was exhausted yesterday and it was announced others would be called in from other criminal divisions of the Circuit Court to continue the work today.

Monday and yesterday 71 veniremen were examined by counsel for the State, and the defense also questioned all but the last 10 of these, whom it questioned today. Thirty-nine veniremen were challenged for cause, as follows:

By the State—25 because they were opposed to inflicting the death penalty, most of them adding that this belief was in the case of circumstantial evidence, on which they were told this case would be based; eight because they had an opinion, one because he would not convict a defendant on circumstantial evidence and one because he went to school with the defendant's chief counsel.

For the defense—One for prejudice, because his sister-in-law knew Edna Ellis; one for having an opinion, one because he had discussed the case with members of the grand jury that indicted Ellis, and one because he was unwilling to give Ellis the legal presumption of innocence until he might be proven guilty.

Witnesses in the case today were excused until Friday at 10 a. m.

VENUS PASSING BEHIND MOON MAY BE VISIBLE SATURDAY

Occultation Occurring for First Time in 40 Years Will Take Place Early in Morning.

For the first time in about 40 years, an occultation of the planet Venus by the moon will be visible in St. Louis next Saturday morning, if the sky is clear. The spectacle of Venus passing behind the lunar disk will occur between 6 and 7 o'clock.

"It is one of the most beautiful sights in the heavens," said Father Martin S. Brennan, priest astronomer of Carondelet.

"The occultation begins at 6:41, but the approach of the two bodies should be watched, and I would recommend 6 o'clock or a few minutes later. While the occultation will last for 56 minutes, or until 7:37, it probably will not be possible for us to see Venus emerge on the moon's other side. The sun rises at 7:20, and its light will spoil that part of the spectacle."

Father Brennan said that no mechanical aids would be necessary, such as a telescope, fieldglasses or smoked glass. Observers will find Venus and the moon in the southeast. Venus now is only about 40,000,000 miles away from the earth. Its distance varies from 24,000,000 to 162,000,000 miles.

WOMAN AWARDED $6500 IN REMARRIAGE SUIT

Miss Anna E. Hodgins Testifies Dr. W. G. Swekosky Proposed After Divorce.

Miss Anna E. Hodgins, 28, of 4729 Cote Brilliante avenue, today was awarded $6500 damages by a Circuit Court jury, which heard her breach of promise suit against her divorced husband, Dr. William G. Swekosky, a dentist, of 1104 Emmet street. She had asked for $25,000 damages.

Miss Hodgins testified that Dr. Swekosky proposed remarriage to her a few days after she had divorced him, Oct. 29, 1919, upon her claim that he failed to establish a home for her.

Dr. Swekosky, testifying in his own defense, denied that he had proposed to Miss Hodgins after the divorce.

Miss Hodgins testified that the date for her remarriage to Dr. Swekosky twice was postponed at his request. She said that when he finally repudiated the alleged engagement she had her grips packed ready to take an automobile honeymoon trip.

CAMPAIGN FOR SUPPORT OF FEDERAL RIVER FUND BEGUN

Mississippi Valley Association Launches Effort to Put Through $56,500,000 Federal Appropriation.

James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Association, is sending out appeals to commercial organizations in the Mississippi Valley to urge upon their Congressman support of a Federal appropriation for waterway improvement during the year ending June 30, 1924, of $56,500,000, instead of $27,000,000, as provided in the budget.

Last year the original budget item for inland waterways was $13,500,000. The river bloc persuaded the budget director to increase this to $27,000,000 and then, when the budget reached Congress, by their votes, further increased the item to $42,800,000.

Smith has gone to Washington to aid the river bloc's fight for the increased sum.

ALLEY CAT WINS PRIZE WHEN SHOWN AMONG ARISTOCRATS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A bedraggled and starving kitten wandered to the home of Joseph Frascona of 945 Second avenue a year ago. Frascona's children, Joseph Jr., 12, and a small daughter, Antoinette, took the kitten in. Yesterday at the twenty-first annual show of the Atlantic Cat Club in the Waldorf-Astoria this same alley cat won first prize in the non-championship class.

When the Frascona children read that for $1 a cat might be entered for exhibition at the cat show, they began grooming Snoozer Boy.

After much combing and bathing, Antoinette tied an orange bow to his collar, placed him in a cage and took him to the show. The children had paid their $1 and the show had to accept him.

Snoozer Boy was placed in a prominent place. On both sides of his homemade cage were the aristocrats of catland. Persians with pedigrees a yard long and tails like ostrich feather fans.

Antoinette and little Joseph then awaited developments, listening to the "Ohs" and "Ahs" as the pedigreed beauties were viewed. Then, suddenly, their dream came true. A judge walked over to Snoozer Boy's cag, inspected him critically and then, as Antoinette and Joseph ran hopefully forward, pinned a blue ribbon to Snoozer Boy's collar. There it was in glittering silver letters that all the world might read:

"Non-championship class. First prize."

Snoozer Boy's purring sounded like a teakettle just coming to a boil.

WOMEN, WHO QUIT CHURCH, ORGANIZE MACLEOD MISSION

Former Central Presbyterian Members to Hold Services in Some Hall in University City.

Sixty women who resigned from Central Presbyterian Church after the pastor, the Rev. Donald C. MacLeod, resigned following dissension with members of the Board of Elders, have organized the MacLeod Mission and are making plans for holding Sunday services in some hall in University City.

Mrs. Ernest K. Drees of 5712 Enright avenue said today that plans are still indefinite, but that the women "hope to make the mission something really worth while. Eventually we expect to obtain a pastor and form a church." Rev. MacLeod, now in the East, recently received a call from an Omaha (Neb.) church.

PROTECTION PROMISED AT DRY LAW MEETING

Executive Committee Decides to Ignore Anonymous Threatening Letters.

The Executive Committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment met today to consider, in view of the receipt of anonymous threatening letters, the advisability of abandoning the mass meeting scheduled for tonight at the Odeon for a public expression on the methods employed by prohibition enforcement agents in St. Louis to enforce the prohibition laws. It decided to proceed with the meeting.

Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hoagland, who attended the conference, informed the committee that the meeting would have adequate police protection. Chief O'Brien said that if necessary to give protection he would "station 1600 policemen" at the meeting. He said that in view of the threats he would direct his men to stop and investigate all persons attending the meeting, carrying packages or otherwise giving any evidence of being parties to a plot.

The speakers will be Isaac H. Lionberger and Lee Meriwether. The protest grows out of the recent raids made by Federal Prohibition Enforcement Agent Nations and his assistants at Cafferata's Cafe and Hotel Chase, in which blanket search warrants were used as authority to search customers.

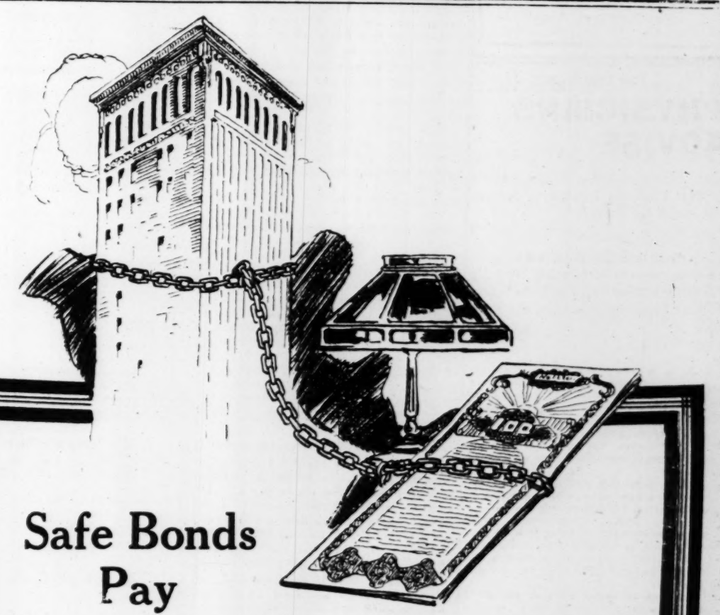

108 DEAD DUCKS, SEIZED AT ST. LOUIS CLUB, MISSING

They Had Been Sent From Cold Storage Plant to Hospital as Feast for Patients.

The disappearance of 108 dead ducks, seized on Dec. 18 by Game Wardens after they were shipped from Texas to the St. Louis Club for Harry Scullin, president of the Scullin Steel Co., remains unexplained.

The ducks were seen on Dec. 29 when Deputy State Game Warden Charles Kollas ordered them sent from a cold storage plant, where they were being held as evidence, to St. John's Hospital, as a treat for the patients.

At St. John's it was said today that a man had called for the ducks, saying Harry Scullin had sent him. Scullin denies having seen the ducks either before or after they were seized.

Safe Bonds Pay

A safe bond is a promissory note, given by a financially solid organization, institution or municipality, which agrees to pay a given rate of interest on fixed dates and to pay back at maturity the principal sum. For convenience in distribution and to enable persons with various amounts of idle money to participate, bonds are usually issued in denominations of $100, $500 and $1000.

There is no more convenient form of investment than bonds. Any reliable bank, investment house or trust company will be pleased to advise purchasers regarding investment in non-speculative bonds bearing good rates of interest.

To those whose surplus funds are small, as well as those who have considerable wealth, bonds offer immediate investment at adequate interest. The interest coupons may be cashed as they fall due and the principal collected at maturity as a part of your financial institution's service to you.

Those who desire to invest safely should consult a reliable bank, investment house or trust company. Many attractive offerings are made regularly in the advertising columns of the Post-Dispatch. Follow these announcements closely from day to day and keep all surplus funds at work.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS PAID MOST OF 1922 POLICE COURT FINES

$43,289 of $54,792 Collected Was Paid by Car Owners; $18,595 Total for Speeding.

Fines and costs collected from traffic violators in police courts last year amounted to $43,289, or 79 per cent of the $54,792 collected from all cases in these courts. Speeders paid $18,595 in fines.

A report compiled by Clerk Thomas S. Hauk shows that 30,529 cases were disposed of in the two police courts in 1922. Fines and costs amounting to $241,021 were imposed, and of this $77,408, or 32 per cent, was assessed against traffic violators. Of the total of fines and costs assessed, $46,433.50 was "worked out" at the rate of $2 a day in the City Workhouse; $30,841 was remitted by the two Judges; $17,626 was carried over; $27,155.50 was uncollected by the City Marshal because the fines were conditional and subject to remittance upon the defendants complying with certain orders of court; $20,859 was stayed on promises of good behavior; $26,586 was lost through appeals, and $16,935 was suspended by reason of the defendants being on probation.

PHYSICIANS ADVISE

A Real First-Aid Method to Relieve and Break Up Colds.

HOT MEDICINAL TEA

To Stimulate the Circulation, Heat Up the Chilled Blood and Flush the Waste Foisons From the Intestines and Bowels.

It is a recognized fact that hot medicinal herb tea is one of the very best home remedies to use to assist in breaking up colds which when neglected often develop into influenza, pneumonia or other serious sickness. It is old fashioned of course, but nevertheless its effectiveness is readily admitted everywhere today.

Many physicians now advise their patients to always have on hand a supply of medicinal tea for emergency purposes.

Harsh, drastic, habit-forming drugs should be avoided. The risk to one's general health is too great, because certain drugs have a tendency to depress the heart action and disturb the nervous system.

Millions of people all over the world are today using Bulgarian Herb Tea as a reliable first-aid to help break up colds, and also to keep the intestines and bowels cleansed and free of the waste poisons that so often cause sickness and ill health.

Bulgarian Herb Tea is prescribed by many physicians, and druggists everywhere honestly recommend this pure healthful laxative tea tonic to their customers. Why not see your druggist at once and get a small package for emergency purposes? You or some other member of your family may need it to help fight a cold this winter.

Stabbed by Neuritis!

Many people suffer attacks by this arch-fiend, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back, or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which often end in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve pains or what called them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poison. Apply Tyrmol over the part that hurts and the pain will be gone.

Tyrmol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at Judge & Dolph Drug Co., as well as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or any reliable druggist.

TENDENCY TOWARD LEGAL FORMULA IN VALUING UTILITIES

Companies Entitled to Fair Value Even Though Increase Is Result of War, U. S. Court of Appeals Holds.

In handing down a decision here in the case of the City of Minneapolis against the privately owned gas company which serves it, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals makes the following declaration:

"The gas company is entitled to the fair value of its property, even though that value has increased as a result of the war, just as laborers, merchants, manufacturers, the owner of land and the lender of money may require, the prevailing prices for what they furnish."

The Court thus gives chief emphasis to the element of present reproduction value, in the valuation of utilities, whereas the Missouri and other State Public Service Commissions have inclined to original cost as the controlling element. Recently the United Railways and the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis have urged greater consideration of reproduction cost upon the Missouri commission and applying it, have found support for valuations greatly in excess of tentative valuations upon which the rates of those utilities now are fixed.

Tends Toward Definite Formula.

The decision tends also toward a more definite judicial formula for the valuation of properties of public utilities. Previous decisions, even those of the United States Supreme Court, have been in such broad terms and susceptible of so elastic interpretation as to yield widely diverging valuation results.

Gas rates in Minneapolis are fixed by city ordinance. However, the company was plunged into receivership in 1918 and the receiver filed application for the Federal Court to fix valuation and rate of return, alleging that the rates in the city ordinance were confiscatory.

In arguments, the company contended for a valuation of $8,546,155 on the basis of prices prevailing during the five years prior to 1918, $13,829,625 on the basis of prices prevailing on July 1, 1918, and $13,795,821 on the basis of prices prevailing on Jan. 1, 1920.

City's Contention in Case.

The city contended that the value of the company's property was $6,022,220.

The master found, and was supported by United States District Court that the value of the company's property was $8,000,000. He decreed 7½ per cent as a fair return on that sum.

The Circuit Court of Appeals now holds that the fair valuation is $9,258,516. It upholds 7½ per cent as a fair return. In fact, the Court of Appeals opinion attacks on two elements of the District Court decree.

The lower court arrived at the bare bones value of the company's property by adding 25 per cent to the original actual cost to represent the accrued rise in prices. The Court of Appeals doubles that, adding 50 per cent to represent present-day value, to which it asserts the company is entitled as "the laborer, the merchant" and others.

Argument of Company Rejected.

The court rejects the company's argument that the property should not be depreciated so long as it is serving the community well and adopts the straight line method of the District Court and deducts 23.78 per cent to represent the present-day condition of the property.

It adopts also the District Court's allowance of 15 per cent of physical property for overhead charges. It overrules the District Court in the matter of going value. The District Court held that the company had been adequately compensated for going value from excessive returns prior to 1910, when the city ordinance establishing municipal control of rates was passed. The Court of Appeals adds a lump sum of $500,000 for going value.

The city had argued for a rate of return lower than 7½ per cent on the ground that the cost of money to the company was actually under 7½ per cent and such a return would be equivalent to allowing a greater return to stockholders. The Court of Appeals rejects that argument and holds that "if the company has the good fortune to obtain money for less, this should not diminish the rate of return."

Laclede Case Different.

The bearing of the decision upon the approaching valuation of the property of the Laclede Gas Light Co. is diminished by the fact that Missouri, by commission rule, in effect undertakes to provide public utilities with an adequate return at all times, while rates in Minneapolis are a matter of bargaining for five-year periods between the company and the city, which does not undertake to guarantee an adequate rate of return.

The decision was written by Judge Thomas H. Munger and concurred in by Judge Walter H. Sanborn. Judge Kimbrough Stone dissented, supporting the lower court in all elements except that he admitted an allowance of $500,000 for going value. Thus, he fixed the fair value at $8,500,000.

One of the counsel representing the receiver and contending with him for a high value was Pierce Butler, recently nominated by President Harding for the United States Supreme Court.

REPORT ON DAUGHERTY SUBMITTED TO HOUSE

Subcommittee Finds Keller Is Liable to Imprisonment for Ignoring Subpena.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The report of the House Judiciary Committee on its investigation of the impeachment charges brought against Attorney-General Daugherty by Representative Keller, Republican, of Minnesota, was submitted today to the House by Chairman Volstead. Whether it will be called up for action by the House has not been determined.

The "high spots" of the report are the resolution, adopted yesterday by the committee, virtually dismissing the charges as unsupported by evidence and the finding of the special subcommittee, approved by the committee, that the House had authority to punish Keller by imprisonment or otherwise for his refusal to obey a subpena issued after he had withdrawn from the case.

"Keller Liable to Imprisonment."

The committee report said there was no "merit" to Keller's claim that he was not obliged to respond to the subpena since it was served on him when he was a Representative in Congress and added:

"Your committee is of the opinion that Mr. Keller was legally required to obey said subpena; that the House of Representatives possesses the power to cause him to be arrested and confined in prison until he shall consent to testify, such confinement not to extend beyond the term of this Congress, and power to otherwise deal with him so as to compel obedience to the summons."

There was no suggestion as to how the Minnesota representative might be dealt with otherwise than by imprisonment, nor was there any recommendation that the House take any action against him. Some committeemen favor the establishment of a precedent in this case, but if the matter were taken up on the floor, there would be a long and bitter fight against adopting the committee view as an established rule of the House.

The entire report of the committee contained fewer than 1000 words and most of it was devoted to a recital of the events in the impeachment proceedings.

Minority Report.

Announcing that he would file a minority report urging that there be further hearings on the impeachment charges, Representative Thomas, Democrat, of Kentucky, charged that the impeachment proceedings against Daugherty had been converted into a prosecution of Keller. He said the Constitution provided for the arrest of a member of Congress during sessions of that body for only three things—treason, felonies or misdemeanors—and that neither the Judiciary Committee nor the House had any more right to violate the Constitution than had any citizen.

Representative Sumner, Democrat, of Texas, in a statement explaining why he voted against the resolution adopted by the majority said he agreed that the evidence adduced did not in his judgment justify an affirmative finding such as the majority had made.

Explaining that only three specifications had been examined when Keller withdrew from the prosecution of the case, Sumner said that thereafter the proceeding was largely ex-parte, with witnesses mostly officers of the Department of Justice, "leaving the matter too imperfectly explored to warrant a finding as of facts proven with reference thereto."

UNION STATION SOLICITING LAW IS HELD TO BE INVALID

Circuit Judge Hall's Ruling on Demurrer Upholds Injunction Prohibiting Enforcement.

A city ordinance passed in 1916, prohibiting solicitation of business at the Union Station by baggage or taxicab companies, is held invalid in a decision by Circuit Judge Hall today, overruling a demurrer by the city in the suit for injunction brought by the Columbia Terminals Co., which has a contract with the Terminal Railroad granting it the baggage and taxicab privileges at the station.

Judge Hall said that the language of the ordinance prohibiting solicitation "in, upon, about or near" the station is indefinite. He held that use of the word "near" gives policemen arbitrary powers to determine what is near the station. As a result of the decision on the demurrer the injunction granted last April prohibiting enforcement of the ordinance will stand. The city has not announced whether it will appeal.

FARMER HUNTING HAWKS FOUND SHOT TO DEATH NEAR GATE

Believed Hammer of Gun Carried by Lucien Pringle, 40, Was Snapped Accidentally.

Lucien Pringle, 40 years old, farmer, residing on the Boone's Lick road three miles southwest of Foristell, St. Charles County, accidentally shot and instantly killed himself Monday afternoon. He had gone out, to shoot hawks that were catching his chickens. His brother, Warren Pringle, found the body. It was beside a barn-yard gate, through which he evidently was passing when the hammer was caught and discharged the gun.

The funeral took place at Foristell this morning.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK FOR 1923 IS BRIGHTER

The conservatism formerly exercised by the buying public has given way in the past few months to prodigious buying. This is attributed to the fact that prices are on the upgrade.

Prices quoted by the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles, are the lowest possible for high grade furniture. Because of their low rent location and because they maintain their own factory, they are able to sell for less. Select now before prices advance.

Melody Unmarred by Scratch or Scrape

OUR announcement of a new record with the old irritating surface sounds conspicuously absent created a tremendous interest.

The way the public rushed to put them to the test proved that needle noise, heretofore an unavoidable part of every phonograph record, had filed their nerves raw.

And what did they find? They found every word we said about Columbia New Process Records was true. They found musical beauty they never knew existed. Delicate phrasing came out that surface noise had always drowned. They discovered inflections of voice and instrument that had always been blurred by scratch and scrape.

To-night, give your folks a treat and a surprise. Take home one of these new selections, out to-day, with the quietest surface ever produced. Whether they dance or not, take home "Who Cares?", a new spasm of syncopated ecstasy by Eddie Elkins' Orchestra. Paired with it is "Blue," another fox-trot so joyous you'll wonder why the melancholy name.

Tear out this list and take it to a Columbia Dealer and ask to hear these records. Whether it is dance music, popular songs, old-fashioned melodies, instrumental or symphony selections you enjoy most, you'll find Columbia New Process Records far superior because of extra recording care and the absence of intrusive scratch and scrape.

Visiting Hours—Special Notice
Because of almost continuous broadcasting during the day inspection of radio plant must be limited to the period between 3 and 4 p. m. and when special tests are under way in this hour, the transmission room is also closed to visitors. Call at reception room, second floor, Post-Dispatch building.

An unusually large number of telephone calls, received during the program of Station K S D last night, showed that an exceptionally interesting entertainment was being broadcast. The varied character of the concert, and the merit of the different numbers seemed to meet with the aproval of the listeners in.

There were vocal numbers, piano selections and an interlude by a celebrated Eastern band. The artists included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Coffman, baritone and pianiste, respectively; Mrs. Bertha Shoen Steiner, soprano, and Miss Clara Wasserkrug, pianiste.

Waring's Pennsylvanians, 11 young men graduates of the two big universities in Pennsylvania, the Penn State University and the University of Pennsylvania, under the leadership of Fred Waring, compose the band. Though their program consisted entirely of popular music, each number has been given careful and studious preparation and was presented with the finish of real artists. An interesting feature of their performance is that they do not use notes, but play everything from memory. The young men made a great hit among radio listeners last night and received numerous compliments before they left the K S D station.

Tonight's feature will be Gordon Brown, whistler, who is appearing this week at the Missouri Theater.

Other participants in tonight's program will be Miss Helen Sandrock, violiniste; Miss Madge Mayer, soprano; Miss Adele Neuwald and Oliver Sandroch, pianists. The first in a series of three talks on home economics given in a course now being arranged through the co-operation of the extension department of Washington University also will be a feature of tonight's program. The speaker and her subject are Miss Frances Vinton Ward, "Choice of the House."

Why Corns?

Just say

Blue-jay

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it!) and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

BILL FOR AIR BUREAU INDORSED BY COFFIN

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Howard E. Coffin, president of the National Aeronautic Association, in a statement today indorsed the bill for a Bureau of Civil Aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, introduced in the House by Representative Samuel E. Winslow, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

"No more constructive legislation has been placed before the Congress since the war," said Coffin. "Our fathers used the railroads, we used the automobile, our children will fly. It is our duty to make flying safe and sane for our children, which is just what this bill is designed to do.

What Bill Provides.

"The civil aeronautics bill would provide for the inspection and licensing of aircraft and pilots, would establish the certification of aircraft routes and terminals, would make rules of the air and air administration and effect co-ordination of all phases of aerial activity in the country. This unification would be of tremendous value to the economic development of the nation, and to the national defense.

"Aviation serves commerce as no other agency of transportation can. Aircraft take a 'bee' line at a speed four or five times faster than trains. It is ridiculous to question the advantage of nationwide air navigation in this country.

"In order, however, that it may develop on sound financial and legal lines, the proposed act is absolutely necessary. This belief is concurred in by the Departments of War, Navy, Commerce, Treasury, Postoffice and Labor, by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Naval Aircraft Underwriters' Association, the Aviation Committee of the American Bar Association, the commissioners on Uniform State Laws, innumerable civic orgainzations, and, of course, the National Aeronautic Association.

Urged by Harding.

"President Harding, in his inaugural message, urged such legislation as this bill, and ever since he took office as President he has reiterated the necessity. Only a few weeks ago he recommended to Congress a national air policy based on an organization such as this civil aeronautics act is designed to bring about.

"It is plainly the duty of every thinking American to demand the passage of this act, in order that air navigation may be established in this country on a scale commensurate with the importance of the nation in the affairs of the world, and in order that we may reap the full benefits of the inventive and productive genius of our land."

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ILLEGAL DRUG TRAFFIC URGED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—An international conference to devise ways of eliminating illegal traffic in narcotics and of restricting acreage for opiate plants was advocated here last night by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York and Senator-elect.

"The United States must limit the use of narcotics in this country," Dr. Copeland said. He quoted figures showing 730,000 pounds of opium were consumed annually, when the legitimate need was only 30,000 to 50,000 pounds. "The United States must prohibit exporting narcotics and the smuggling of these same drugs back into this country," he said.

MOTOR TRUCK DERAILS ENGINE

500 Passengers on Fast Pennsylvania Train Escape Injury.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10.—Five hundred passengers on a fast train of the Pennsylvania Railroad bound from New York to Washington escaped injury last night when the locomotive, tender and baggage car were derailed near Halethorpe, after the engine had struck and demolished a big motor truck.

Locomotive and tender turned over on their sides. The baggage car plunged down an embankment. None of the nine passenger coaches left the rails, however, and passengers said their shaking up was slight.

CANADIAN LIQUOR EXPORT RULING

Judge Holds Ontario Legislature Has No Power to Prevent Shipment.

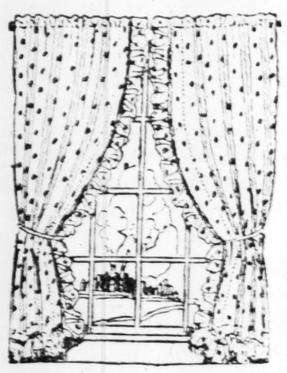

By the Associated Press.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 10.—The Ontario Provincial Legislature has no power to prevent the export of liquor and beer to the United States, Judge Coughlin held at Sandwich yesterday in acquitting the Walkerville Brewing Co. of an alleged infraction of the law.

Judges Coughlin's decision means that breweries and distilleries again may use the highways and street railways in transporting beer to the river front warehouses for shipment to the United States. The case probably will be taken to the Ontario Supreme Court.

LAST BABY IN AUBURN PRISON

Mother to Be Permitted to Keep Child Pending Parole.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUBURN, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The last baby ever to be confined in Auburn Prison, unless the State law is changed, will go out from behind the walls in two months. Under the law it would have left the prison yesterday, but a mother's plea that it remain with her pending her parole next March prevailed against prison rule.

The child is the daughter of Julia Kosmowski, sentenced from Buffalo. She was 2 years old yesterday. Agitation started at the time of the commitment at Auburn Prison of Pearl O'Dell, Rochester murderess, about to become a mother, resulted in a law requiring that children of women convicts should be born outside the prison and the children should be taken from them. The O'Dell and Kosmowski children were born before the law went into effect. The old law provided that they be taken out when 2 years old, and the Kosmowski child came to the time for departing. But there were entreaties from women who have never known the joy of motherhood, but who have in two years learned the joy of baby companionship. The mother has been a model prisoner and will be paroled soon, so the officials decided to permit the child to remain.

NEW STATLER HOTEL IN DETROIT

1200-Room Building Will Represent $9,000,000 Investment.

A new Statler Hotel will be erected in Detroit, it was announced today by the management of the local Hotel Statler. Negotiations for the site, at Woodward avenue and High street, were completed last week, and a 1200-room building, which will represent a $9,000,000 investment will be erected there.

The new hotel will be the second operated under Statler management in Detroit, and is being built as a result of important municipal developments and improvements which are expected. The Statler company is now operating six hotels, two of which are in Buffalo, and expects to open a third in that city in April. Preparations for erecting a hotel in Boston will be begun in a few weeks.

ST. LOUIS CLUB PAYING ITS DEBT

$210,000 Reduced in 10 Years to $75,000.

Members of the St. Louis Club, 3663 Lindell boulevard, are to meet next Tuesday at 4 p. m. to authorize their board of directors in the negotiation of a loan of $75,000 to take up all that is left of an original indebtedness of $210,000.

When the club borrowed the money 10 years ago, a first mortgage of $100,000 and a second mortgage of $110,000 were placed on its property. Now only $35,000 is left of the first sum and $40,000 of the second. The debts have steadily been reduced and the club is reported to be in good financial shape.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For Real Effectiveness, This Old Homemade Remedy Has No Equal. Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old homemade remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint save about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"Yes, Mrs. Smith Resinol is wonderful"

"We always keep a jar on hand. It is the best thing I know for eczema and similar ills, and it is so gentle and soothing it is excellent for cuts, burns, or sores. We use Resinol Soap also—it's ideal for the complexion and bath. Yes, you can get all the Resinol products from your druggist."

A RAW, SORE THROAT

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use. 35c and 65c, jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

TWO VILLAINS, A HERO, A DURN GOOD FIGHT, TO AID TICK WAR

New Motion Picture to Aid Texas Cattlemen, Washington Bureau Man Tells Eradication Conference.

By the Associated Press.

FT. WORTH, Tex., Jan. 10.—Dr. R. A. Ramsay, chief of the Tick Eradication division of the Bureau of Animal Industry of Washington, today gave detailed instructions on tick eradication work to the new county inspectors and agents in the second day program of the three-day conference here of ten Southern States.

One of the plans of the Bureau of Animal Industry for Tick Eradication work during this year is utilization of motion pictures.

"A new tick motion picture will be released by the Bureau Feb. 1," said a Federal Bureau officer, "carrying the message of tick eradication. In the cast of the picture are 133 persons, two good villains, a not-at-all bad hero, a heroine, a durn good fight, vat dynamiting, a thrilling rescue and mother love passion."

YOUTH, WHO ESCAPED FROM POSTAL INSPECTOR, CAPTURED

James H. Ealy Taken Into Custody by Policeman Who Finds Him Tampering With Auto.

James H. Ealy, 17 years old, 2637A Russell avenue, was arrested last night by a policeman who found him tampering with an automobile on Missouri avenue, near Albion place. He was identified as the youth who escaped from Postoffice Inspector Rowe last Saturday night as the train which had brought them from Ironton, Mo., left Tower Grove Station.

Ealy got into trouble at Ironton through an attempt to steal a mail pouch, which he threw from a truck while riding with its driver. He has served parts of two terms at the Bellefontaine Farm and was paroled last September by Judge Garesche. The youth is said by the police to have confessed to four robberies since a few days before Christmas. Twice he entered residences and obtained small amounts and twice he snatched purses.

TAX VALUE OF MRS. DILWORTH'S PROPERTY REDUCED TO $53,210

Raised From That Figure to $494,990 by Previous County Board of Equalization.

The 1921 tax valuation of the personal property of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Dilworth of Oak Manor, Kirkwood, which Mrs. Dilworth placed at $53,210, and which the County Board or Equalization last April raised to $494,990, was cut down to the original $53,210 today by the new board.

Mrs. Dilworth was formerly the wife of Jacob L. Babler, Republican national committeeman. The old board was solidly Republican. Mrs. Dilworth, in the protracted legal proceedings to cut down the estimate, had intimated that political friendships and animus toward her might have had something to do with the board's extreme zeal. The last election left only two of the former members on the board, and Mrs. Dilworth won her case at its first meeting.

FIRE IN SHOE WAREHOUSE

Damage Estimated at $35,000 by Members of F. Levy Firm.

Fire in a one-story brick warehouse of the F. Levy Shoe Co. behind the store at 1110 Market street at 11:30 o'clock last night, damaged shoes stored in the warehouse $35,000, as estimated by members of the firm, and damaged the building $1000. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

A fire which broke out in the elevator motor room on the roof of the four-story Regal Hotel, 1909 Chestnut street, at 4 p. m., caused $300 damage to the building and $3000 to furnishings, principally from smoke and water. A blaze, which started at 8 p. m. in a lumber pile in the Boeckeler lumber yards, Hall and Mallinckrodt streets, caused damage of $500.

Conference on Texas Railroad.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 10.—Purchase of the Texas State Railroad was the subject of a conference here yesterday between Lieutenant-Governor Lynch Davie Davidson and E. B. Perkins, Dallas, general attorney for the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad. Davidson announced following the conference that although no agreement was reached or definite plans submitted by the Cotton Belt, negotiations would continue.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.

Most persons are honest and will return lost articles if the loss is advertised in Post-Dispatch wants. Phone the want ad or leave it with your nearest druggist.

BILLS TO TIGHTEN DRY ENFORCEMENT OFFERED

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 10.—The first of the proposed legislation to make more far-reaching prohibition enforcement in Missouri was introduced in the Senate today by Senator McCawley of Carthage. McCawley has two bills, one to enact a special law to prohibit the carrying in any automobile, airplane or other vehicle, in which liquor is illegally transported, anything which could be used to inflict bodily injury, and one for a special law prohibiting transportation of liquor in a vehicle owned by another without the written consent of the owner.

"These bills," the Senator said in introducing them, "are in response to the appeal of the Association Opposed to Prohibition for better enforcement of the prohibition law, and on behalf of a large element of the citizenship which believes there can be no honorable surrender by the government of the State to bootleggers and liquor runners."

Having in any vehicle in which liquor is illegally transported a revolver, gun, explosive, knife with blade longer than two and one-half inches, slingshot, brass knucks, billy club, "or other thing which could be used to inflict bodily injury," is made a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than two years.

Transporting liquor in a vehicle owned by another or in a mortgaged vehicle is made a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than two years or imprisonment in jail for not less than one year, and by a fine of from $300 to $1000.

McCawley placed an emergency clause on each bill, which, if adopted, would put them into effect as soon as signed by the Governor and would prevent them from being submitted to a vote under the referendum.

WAGE AGREEMENT WITH 20,000 SHOPMEN SIGNED BY RAILROAD

Erie to Pay Minimum of 70 Cents an Hour, With Back Pay for 10,000 Men, Union Leader Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A wage agreement affecting 20,000 union shop craft workers, restoring seniority rights and providing back pay for nearly 10,000 men who went on strike last July, has been signed by the Erie Railroad and and its subsidiaries, John J. Dowd, chairman of the General Strike Committee of the Metropolitan District, announced last night. It will expire Nov. 1, this year, and is subject to cancellation after that date upon 30 days' notice by either side.

A minimum wage rate of 70 cents an hour was agreed upon, Dowd said, and next to that 77 cents an hour. The arrangement was made retroactive, so that workers who since October have been receiving 65 cents an hour will receive back pay of 5 cents an hour.

The eight-hour day also is established throughout the system, Dowd declared, and time and a half for overtime has been conceded, except for holiday and Sunday work.

NEGRO IDENTIFIED AS MURDERER

Girl Says Prisoner Is One Who Threw Her and Man Off Cliffs.

By the Associated Press.

WACO, Tex., Jan. 10.—Ivory Clay, a negro, accused of murdering Grady Skipworth and mistreating Naomi Boucher, his girl companion, and throwing both off cliffs in Cameron Park here Nov. 20, was remanded to jail without bond yesterday after Miss Boucher had identified the negro as the murderer.

Miss Boucher, still suffering from injuries, suffered in the fall over the cliff, appeared in court on crutches and had to be helped to the witness stand. Tears streamed down her cheeks as she spoke the name of her companion on the fatal night.

MASCOUTAH BREWERY SEALED

The former Mascoutah Brewery at Mascoutah, Ill., was seized and sealed yesterday by general agents of the Internal Revenue Department, who came from Washington and returned, taking with them six bottles of what is supposed to be beer of illegal alcoholic content. The plant has been operated recently by the Eureka Products Co. The warrant for the search and seizure was issued by Commissioner Frizzell in East St. Louis.

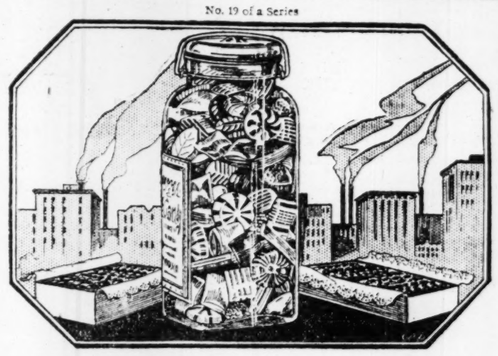

Death of Girl Hit by Auto, Accident.

A Coroner's verdict of unavoidable accident was returned last night in the case of Margaret Boll, 13 years old, of 6726 Page avenue, who was killed Sunday night at Page and Woodruff avenues, St. Louis County, by an automobile driven by Andrew Furman, 21, of 6322A Page avenue. Furman testified that the girl, who was returning home from church, ran from a crowd into the path of the automobile.

Hotel Guest Sues Taxi Company.

Mrs. Mabel Palmer of the Hotel Jefferson yesterday filed suit against the Taxicab Trust Estate for $10,000 damages because some one threw a vial containing a foul smelling fluid into a taxicab June 2, 1922, when former taxi employes were on strike, damaging her clothes and causing her to suffer insomnia.

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

How Cornwallis Won Over the Americans at Guilford Courthouse, After Losing a Race With Them.

Cornwallis Tried to Keep the Others Separate.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

(Copyright, 1922)

GENERAL GREENE, who took charge of the American forces in the South, after the hasty departure of Gen. Gates, had only 2300 men at his disposal. Half of these belonged to the very unreliable militia and were not regular soldiers. When you compare these numbers with the size of the armies which took part in the late European war, or with the seating capacity of some of our larger theaters, you will begin to admire the sublime courage of the leaders of the Revolution. The fate of America was now in the hands of a little army, which would have been lost in one corner of the Harvard stadium. Far more people attended the Dempsey-Carpentier fight than joined the struggle for freedom in the glorious days of the Revolution.

Once more you will have to look at the map to understand the military operations. Greene and his men were at Choraw, near the northern border of North Carolina. Cornwallis, his opponent, was at Winnsboro, some distance to the southwest of him. As usual, the British army was larger and better trained than the American, and it was impossible for Greene to risk an attack. He, therefore, sent Gen. Morgan with 600 men off to the west, to encourage the Whigs in that district, and to discourage the Tories.

Organized propaganda, such as was common during the great European war, and which was spread by means of flaming headlines in the newspapers, by moving pictures, bazars, lectures, and "drives" of various kinds, was unknown in those days. It was very difficult to get up much enthusiasm for the war among people who lived out of its direct path, while those in its direct path became quickly disheartened if they thought that the enemy was victorious. Gen. Morgan therefore decided to take a little trip so that he might attack a British post at Fort Ninety-six, in the western part of the State, and at the same time scatter a little healthy propaganda on the way.

But foxy Cornwallis, at Winnsboro, seeing the American army was divided, bethought himself of a great "coup." He would slip in between the two halves and destroy them separately. He sent Col. Tarleton, whose acquaintance we made a few days ago, to drive Morgan on towards the West. Morgan, however, refused to move according to schedule. He offered battle at Cowpens and drove Tarleton a thorough beating, capturing over half his force. Then began a race northward through North Carolina, Greene was on the east and Morgan was on the west, and Cornwallis between them was trying to keep the two forces of the Americans from joining.

But nature was on the side of the Americans. Morgan would cross a river. The next day when Cornwallis arrived, the stream would be swollen and the British would be forced to wait several days before they could get their horses and trains across. As a result the two American Generals won the race. They met without mishap at Guilford Courthouse, in the center of the State of South Carolina. Cornwallis waited for reinforcements. As soon as these had reached him, he attacked Greene. The victory fell to the British. The Americans, however, withdrew in good order, although they lost their artillery. Incidentally, more than a thousand militiamen decided that they had seen enough of the war, and went home.

Cornwallis now hoped that a great many Tory recruits would turn up to join him after his recent triumph. He waited for several days to receive them, but the Tory farmers seemed no more ambitions to die a hero's death than did their Whig neighbors, and Cornwallis, in disgust, returned to Wilmington, on the coast. There he found a fleet and supplies. Greene followed him for a short distance, to discover what the English were up to. Then he turned west once more and penetrated further into the interior of South Carolina.

HOUSE TOLD THAT BOOTLEGGERS PLY TRADE AMONG PUBLIC MEN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Representative Upshaw, Democrat, of Georgia, declared on the floor of the House today that "bootleggers ply their devilish trade among too many public men in Washington." Representative Upshaw's speech, in which he declared he would turn over to enforcement authorities all evidence in his hands of liquor drinking by Government officials, including members of the Senate and House, was followed by adjournment until Saturday.

Because the House was not a "justice court," the Georgia representative said, he would not make public the name of Senators and Representatives "who do not practice the profession which their votes profess." He said he had not threatened this in his previous speech on the subject, he said, because he "did not brandish a sword," but "made an appeal."

Outside of the membership of the Senate and House, Representative Upshaw declared, he had seen "some of the highest officials in Washington lifting the devilish bottle to their lips." In the evidence he was preparing to turn in, he said, he would include the name of a "high official, and a diplomat, who returned from abroad some time ago with more than a score of cases of foreign liquor marked 'diplomatic.'"

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

WHY CHILDREN ARE SICK IN WINTER

THE chief reason why children get sick in winter is because the cold weather keeps them indoors—they don't get the pure, fresh air and outdoor exercise they need and their blood gets out of order and clogged with impurities.

If your children are frail, sickly, run down, thin in flesh and subject to colds, build them up with Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

There is no better, surer, safer tonic for children. Your druggist has it, in both liquid and tablet form.

PROPOSAL TO SPEED UP STATE HIGHWAY BUILDING PROGRAM.

MEASURE PRESENTED BY SENATOR FARRIS

Original Program Calls for Completion of Work in 1933—Question of Meeting Interest Involved.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 10.—More rapid road building by the State Highway Commission than is possible under the road law passed at the 1921 special session of the Legislature is sought by Senator Farris, of Phelps County, who has introduced a measure to authorize larger annual expenditures, which would convert the entire $60,000,000 road bond issue into roads by 1927 instead of by 1933 as originally contemplated.

Farris' measure provides that $12,000,000 of bonds shall be issued each year until the entire $60,000,000 has been issued. The present law permits the issuance of only $5,000,000 each year. While there is no question of the right of the Legislature to authorize the issuance of any amount of the bonds voted, there is a moral question involved.

Interest Phase Involved.

In the road bond campaign speakers for the bonds pledged that the interest on them would be paid out of the automobile license receipts, and that there would be no direct tax to pay the interest. These arguments were based upon tabulations by bond experts, who figured that by limiting the issue to $10,000,000 the first year and $5,000,000 each year for 10 years, the automobile license receipts would be sufficient to meet the interest and in addition to pay the administrative expense of the Highway Department. It is doubtful that the receipts would be sufficient to pay the interest and support the department if $12,000,000 of bonds were issued annually.

It is Farris' contention that the funds for the roads should be obtained as quickly as possible, and placed to the credit of all the counties of the State for the construction of roads designed as State Highways in the 1921 law.

Terms of Law of 1921.

Under the 1921 law the Highway Commission apportions the money for construction work among the counties as rapidly as bonds are issued, each county's portion remaining to its credit in the State Treasury to be used when the Highway Commission authorizes construction in the particular counties. Farris' measure would increase the amount to the credit of each county.

One other change contemplated by the bill is to add to the amount to the credit of each county the interest derived from funds held for it, instead of having the interest go to the State road fund, which supports the Highway Department and also goes for the maintenance of roads. While this provision would decrease the amount available for maintenance and for support of the department, it would increase the amount available for actual road construction.

Farris also introduced another road measure, which would increase the mileage of State roads by authorizing the Highway Commission to build roads connecting county seats with the primary through roads provided for in the law of 1921. Experts of the department have not yet determined whether they consider this advisable.

Road Bloc in House.

The first intimation of a possible attempt to disrupt the road law, and its promoters deny any such intention, came yesterday when 23 members of the House, most of them from Ozark Hill counties, organized a road bloc at a meeting in the House lounge. J. D. Swiers, representative from Christian County, presided.

So far as appeared on the surface, the purpose of the bloc is to attempt to devise means to obtain funds to build roads in addition to those designated in the 1921 law. In a number of Ozark counties the designated roads do not provide direct access between the principal trading points and between county seats. The road bloc wants the State to construct such roads.

Swiers said it was not the intention to ask for any additional funds from the $60,000,000 bond issue money, but to obtain State funds from other sources for the purpose. One suggestion made was that 2 cents of the state property tax be set aside for the purpose, but Swiers admitted this would require a constitutional amendment.

Swiers will call another meeting of the bloc within a few days to further discuss the plans.

WAS FIRST NATIVE MISSOURI GOVERNOR

—Strauss Photo.

LON V. STEPHENS.

FORMER GOVERNOR "LON" STEPHENS DIES

He Had Been Confined to Bed Three Days—Heart Disease Cause of Death.

Lawrence Vest Stephens, 64 years old, former Governor of Missouri, died at his home, 5856 Cabanne avenue, at 6 a. m. today, of heart disease. He had been confined to his bed for three days.

"Lon Stephens, as the former Governor was generally called, had been a resident of St. Louis since his official term at Jefferson City ended in 1901. The family home was at Boonville, and he had retained business interests there. For two or three years past, failing health, and particularly failing sight, have kept him from any active attention to business.

Mrs. Stephens, who was formerly Miss Margaret Nelson of Boonville, survives her husband. There are two brothers, Alexander Stephens of Boonville and Speed Stephens of St. Louis, and two sisters, Mrs. Paul Moore of Charleston and Mrs. Rhoda Johnson of Boonville.

Dr. and Mrs. Scott Heuer made their home with Mr. and Mrs. Stephens, and Dr. Heuer was the attending physician in the former Governor's illness. Mrs. Heuer, formerly Miss Maurine Barnes, had lived at the Stephens home for several years before her marriage.

Funeral arrangements have not been determined. Former Gov. Stephens was prominent in the affairs of the Methodist Church South, and was a Mason of high rank.

First Native Governor.

At the time when Stephens became Governor, in 1897, it was stated that he was the first native Missourian to attain to that office. He was born in Boonville Dec. 21, 1858, and was educated in schools there, and at Washington and Lee University, in Virginia.

He was married in 1880 to Miss Nelson. He was vice president of the Central National Bank in Boonville, and owner of the Advertiser, which had come to him by inheritance, when he was appointed receiver of the Fifth National Bank of St. Louis, and conducted the liquidation of that bank. "Paid depositors 98 cents on the dollar," was his summary, in later biographical sketches of his work as a receiver.

Treasurer Under Gov. Francis.

Early in the administration of Gov. David R. Francis, which began in 1889, the office of State Treasurer became vacant and the Governor appointed Stephens to fill it. Stephens was elected Treasurer in 1893, for a four-year term.

As the 1896 election approached, the Missouri Democracy divided on the free silver issue. Richard P. Bland, "Silver Dick," representative of a Central Missouri district in Congress, was then the leading champion of the "free and unlimited coinage of silver, at the ratio of 16 to 1, without the aid or consent of any other nation."

Stephens took Bland's side of the controversy, and wrote articles and short paragraphs for his paper, under the head of "Nuggets," containing arguments for free silver, and for the indorsement of the silver movement by the Missouri Democracy. At the same time, a movement for the nomination of Bland for President gained strength. The defeat of Bland's candidacy, and the sudden and spectacular emergence and nomination of William Jennings Bryan at the Chicago convention, seemed likely at first to help Republican prospects in Missouri, but as the campaign went on, the 16-to-1 sentiment swept all before it, and the State ticket, headed by Stephens, was elected by landslide pluralities.

Activities as Governor.

As Governor, Stephens had to handle important problems connected with St. Louis, in its police and excise affairs, and in its transportation problems. The signing of the street railway consolidation bill, which merged all the St. Louis lines except the Suburban (now Hodiamont-Safah-Manchester-Union lines) into the St. Louis Transit Co., was probably the most important act of his administration, and was one which was most widely criticised. The street car strike of 1900, followed the consolidation, and there were many demands that Gov. Stephens should call out the militia to check disorder, but he did not take this action.

Stephens placed Harry B. Hawes at the head of the St. Louis Police Department, a position in which he remained through the subsequent administration of Gov. Dockery. Measures enacted during Stephens' administration included the establishment of Federal and Confederate soldiers' homes, the fellow-servant bill applying to railroad corporations and the collateral inheritance tax for the benefit of the State University.

Opposed Senator Reed.

After his retirement from office, Stephens was interested in banking enterprises, and took part in several political campaigns. He was an active supporter of Joseph W. Folk for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1904, though he later opposed Folk in other candidacies. He worked for the nomination of Speaker Champ Clark for President in 1912, and after the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, he issued a statement attacking Bryan bitterly for his part in Clark's defeat at the Baltimore convention. Stephens later became closely acquainted with President Wilson and Wilson's letter, attacking Senator James A. Reed at the outset of last year's senatorial primary campaign, was written to Stephens, who was an earnest opponent of Reed. Stephens helped to form and finance the anti-Reed organization, which was active both before and after the primary.

BOND SUPERVISORY COMMITTEE OF 16 NAMED BY MAYOR

Seven Members Presidents of Organizations and to Serve as Long as They Hold Those Positions.

NINE APPOINTED TO SERVE PERMANENTLY

All Expenditures Under Proposed Municipal Issues Must First Be Approved by These Men.

A Citizens' Supervisory Committee of 16 members, to supervise the expenditure of all bond issue funds voted in the special election Feb. 9 on 21 bond issue proposals for public improvements, was appointed today by Mayor Kiel.

Approval by this committee will be necessary before any expenditure of the funds is made, this being in addition to the charter requirement that appropriation ordinances must be passed by the Board of Aldermen on each improvement project.

Members of Committee.

Members of the committee are:

Orman J. McCawley, President Real Estate Exchange.

William J. Edwards, President Merchants' Exchange.

T. J. McNamara, President Building Trades Council.

Guy A. Thompson, President St. Louis Bar Association.

F. W. A. Vesper, president Chamber of Commerce.

Joseph Hauser, President Central Trades and Labor Union.

Paul Bakewell, Chairman Bureau of Municipal Research.

The foregoing seven members are appointed by virtue of the organization office they hold. When new officers are elected by these organizations, the new presiding officer automatically becomes a member of the Citizens' Supervisory Committee.

The Permanent Members.

Other members, appointed permanently, are:

Harry Scullin, manufacturer.

Carl F. G. Meyer, wholesaler.

P. J. Morrin, editor of union labor publication.

A. S. Werremeyer, North St. Louis business man.

Mrs. John S. Payne, President Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ernest W. Stix, merchant.

David Kreyling, Secretary Central Trades and Labor Union.

W. Frank Carter, attorney.

Arthur Stoehr, President Tenth Ward Improvement and Taxpayers' Association.

Referring to the bond program, aggregating $88,372,500, Mayor Kiel said:

"The expenditure of this money will be extended over a great many years and administrations may come and go; therefore I believe it is the part of wisdom that a supervisory committee, composed of representatives of civic organizations of citizens generally, divorced from politics, should be in charge of the expenditure of this fund."

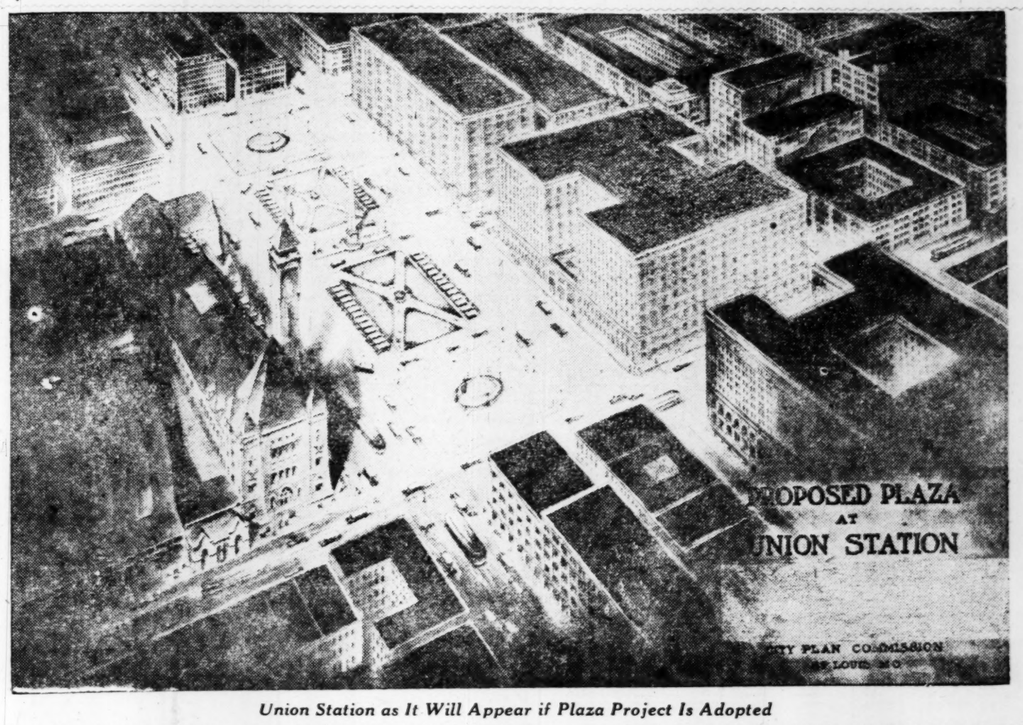

Political Phase Excluded.

This decision to exclude politics in the appointments overruled a recommendation by the Special Bond Issue Committee of the Board of Aldermen, submitted in its favorable report on passage of the bond issue ordinance, that the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen be made a member of the supervisory committee.

The aldermanic committee recommended this on the ground such an appointment would keep the Board of Aldermen in closer touch with the supervisory committee.

Mayor Kiel said he did not believe this necessary, as it would be possible for the Aldermen, Comptroller, Mayor or any other city official, as well as interested citizens, to attend meetings of the Citizens' Supervisory Committee, when considering improvement projects.

What Voters Need To Know About The Bond Issue--No. 2

Union Station as It Will Appear if Plaza Project Is Adopted

THE Post-Dispatch is printing a series of comprehensive articles on the 21 propositions involved in the Municipal Bond Issue election which will be held Feb. 9. Each article will treat separately one of the items proposed and one article will appear each day, treating the projects in the order in which they will appear on the ballot. The second article is printed today.

PROPOSAL No. 2 of the bond issue to be submitted at a special election Feb. 9 is for $2,600,000 for a plaza occupying the two blocks bounded by Market street, Chestnut street, Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, opposite Union Station.

The purpose is to take St. Louis from that class of cities which are content to drift without concern for the opinion of the travelers who visit it, and put it into the class of progressive cities, which are constantly becoming more numerous, and which are making their gateways attractive to create a good impression upon the mind of the visitor.

Stepping from the gloomy train sheds of Union Station out onto Market street, the traveler visiting St. Louis is confronted by a scene scarcely less gloomy than that within the smoke-filled sheds. He sees only a row of small buildings occupied for the most part by curio vendors, low-priced hotels and low-priced restaurants. The buildings are old, some of them almost past their period of usefulness.

First Impression Often Lasting.

The first impression of a city oftentimes is the most lasting with the stranger. His first impression when looking onto Market street at Union Station cannot be a favorable one, and if he does not have the opportunity of remaining several days and getting about over the city, his opinion of St. Louis must be anything but favorable.

How different it would be if he saw across from the station a beautiful park with an appropriate fountain, graveled walks, comfortable seats and a rest building, the whole in a setting of shady lawn with artistically placed shrubbery.

Instead of thinking of St. Louis as a smoky, dirty city without regard for beauty, he would think of St. Louis as a beautiful city, a progressive city.

The property included in the two blocks because of its proximity to Union Station is valuable and will become more valuable as the years go by. It never will be obtainable at a lower price than now, and every year that elapses will add to its cost.

It is the purpose to use the $2,600,000 of bond issue money asked in proposal No. 2 to purchase the ground in these two blocks, to raze the unsightly buildings now on it, and to create a small park, adding one more to the limited number of downtown breathing spots of St. Louis, and adding much to the attractiveness of the city to those strangers who never get beyond the downtown section.

Kansas City Furnishes Example.

Kansas City is an example of what other cities are doing toward beautifying property surrounding their railroad stations. When property was acquired for the new Union Station in Kansas City some 12 years ago, the city with much foresight entered into negotiations which resulted in the Union Station company purchasing and presenting to the city for a park a block of ground in front of the station. Eight years ago the city purchased an adjoining two blocks at a cost of $1,000,000, and several years ago the Park Board of Kansas City condemned an adjoining 35 acres of rough land connecting with a small municipal park, at a cost of approximately $1,500,000. Thus Kansas City acquired a large park directly opposite its station at a cost of about $2,500,000, almost exactly the amount which St. Louis, because of lack of foresight, will be required to pay for the two blocks it now sees the need of.

Plans have been completed and the money provided by Kansas City for the erection of a Soldiers' Memorial building in this park, to cost $2,000,000. Its construction will be begun within a few months.

St. Louis can get the two blocks opposite its Union Station and improve them for $2,600,000, according to the estimates. Who doubts that if the city waits another five or 10 years it will not be compelled to pay considerably more than that?

TURKEY EXPRESSES MORE HARMONIOUS VIEWS AT PARLEY

Ismet Pasha Agrees to Allow Greek Patriarch to Remain in Constantinople Under Conditions.

WILL BE DEPRIVED OF CIVIL POWERS

Agreements Also Reached in Principle on Other Matters Before the Near East Conference.

By the Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 10.—Ismet Pasha informed the Near East conference today that Turkey would agree to the Greek Patriarch remaining in Constantinople on condition that he be deprived of all administrative and civil functions.

Agreements were also reached in principle on the restitution of civil hostages, the exchange of war prisoners and the disposition of the Greek and Turkish minorities.

A distinctly better feeling characterized yesterday's proceedings of the Near East conference. Full agreement has been reached on all points except those of the amnesty, the exemption of Christians in Turkey from military service and establishment of national homelands for the Armenians and Assyro-Chaldeans.

Ismet Pasha, chief of the delegation from Angora, told the conference that Turkey could not admit of any discussion touching on national homes, either for the Armenians or the Assyro-Chaldeans.

Want "Indivisible Fatherland."

"We have a firm conviction," he said, "that the measures we have taken in Turkey for the future will heal all wounds and that everybody in Turkey will work together in peace and tranquillity. Our motto is: 'An indivisible and harmonious fatherland.'"

Marquis Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, appealed to the Turkish delegates to reconsider the question, which, he emphasized, had an enormous importance from the point of view of world opinion. Both the Armenians and the Assyro-Chaldeans, he said, had suffered greatly; their future was terribly uncertain and they were entitled to some adequate guarantees.

Autonomous Home Suggested.

Sir Horace Rumbold, British High Commissioner in Constantinople, had suggested an autonomous home for the Armenians in Cilicia, and this seemed to Lord Curzon the best way for Turkey to obtain the satisfactory co-operation of a hard-working and intelligent people in the construction of a new Turkey.

Turkey, he said, was obdurate now, but he was confident that later she would perceive the wisdom of doing something along the lines suggested.

Lord Curzon paid tribute to the Ottoman delegates' conciliatory spirit and thanked them for their magnanimity in agreeing to restore to Christian families those women and children who had been made to embrace Islamism during the war and to restore also property wrongfully sequestered.

Part Public School Children Will Take in Bond Campaign.

The Board of Education last night decided the children of public schools will play no part in the municipal bond issue campaign other than to announce to their parents the times of meetings in the schools and the fact that the meetings are "for" or "against" the project. The board reached its decision in denying a request of the Committee on Civic Needs to permit it to distribute campaign literature by having the children carry it from the schools to their homes.

Bond Issue Indorsed by Presidents of Women's Clubs.

Presidents of the women's clubs which are members of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, meeting yesterday in the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney auditorium, adopted a resolution indorsing the bond issue for public improvements, and urging all club women to co-operate in getting out a large vote in the special election on the bond issue Feb. 9.

The Dental Society of St. Louis, meeting in Bartscher auditorium, also approved the bond program.

The Million Population Club has written the Bond Campaign Committee that it was the first among the numerous civic organizations which have indorsed the bond issue.

$5,000,000 TOTAL OF FEDERAL LIQUOR FINES SINCE JULY, 1921

Jail Sentences Imposed for Prohibition Law Violations During Time Total 2000 Years.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Sentences imposed in Federal Court since July 1921 upon persons convicted of charges involving violations of the prohibition laws aggregate 2000 years in jail and more than $5,000,000 in fines, according to an official compilation by the Department of Justice. In the 18 months, the records show, there were 58,862 cases reported, resulting in 27,361 convictions.

The continued crowded condition of Federal dockets in some courts the department declares, seems to be due for the most part "to the fact that the prohibition burden was not being shared by the state courts, except in one or two states, notably Kansas and Wisconsin." Department officials said they regarded it as possible for other states to reduce the number of pending liquor cases "if they so desired."

The court dockets of Kansas are nearest to being up to date in legal business, while those of the Southern district of New York were declared to show the heaviest congestion.

FRENCH POST-WAR COSTS HEAVY

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—The French budget for 1923, now undergoing discussion in the Chamber of Deputies, shows that of 23,000,000,000 francs asked for by the Government, 800,000,000 are to defray expenses incurred by hostilities. This amount includes no pensions or outlay for reconstruction.

The biggest item is 360,000,000 francs for the maintenance of troops in the Near East. It costs France 56,000,000 francs a year to share in the occupation of Constantinople, and the troops located in the Saar district cost 24,000,000 a year. Decorations of persons and towns for valor; expenses of missions sent abroad, etc. reach 146,000,000 francs.

172 DEATH SENTENCES FOR RIOTING IN INDIA

Seventeen Native Police Killed in Non-Co-operationist Disorder Last February.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Advices from Lucknow state that the death sentence has been imposed on 172 Indians accused of murder and arson as a result of the non-co-operationist rioting at Chauri-Chaura last February.

Originally, 225 persons were held. Forty-seven were acquitted and two received two-year prison terms. Seven died while awaiting trial.

Seventeen native police were killed in the rioting at Chauri-Chaura, Feb. 4 last, one episode in a week-end of anti-British uprisings in various parts of India. The mob, numbering 2000 Indian Nationalist volunteers reinforced by villagers, attacked the police officers and killed the entire staff. Including eight policemen sent to reinforce the post, the buildings were burned.

Indian Moslems Plan to Aid Turks in Case of War With England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A new threat against Europe is seen by British officials in the action taken at the final sitting at Gaya of the All-India Khilafat conference.

According to official reports, the conference warned the Indian Government that, in the event of a breakdown of the Lausanne conference and war with Turkey, due to "the unjust attitude of the allies, particularly Great Britain, the Moslems of India, numbering 10 times the entire population of Turkey, will immediately launch a civil disobedience campaign."

TURKISH ASSEMBLY MODIFIES ORDERS TO ISMET PASHA

(Copyright, 1923.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 10.—Hassan Bey has returned to Lausanne with the latest instructions of the Nationalist Assembly, which appear to be more conciliatory than it was thought they would be. Ismet Pasha is instructed:

To moderate the uncompromising attitude of some members of the Turkish delegation and to make the most serious effort in the direction of the conclusion of peace within the limits of the nationalist pact.

To insist that Mosul remain Turkish, but he is authorized to discuss with the British the question of the oil fields. If the British show a conciliatory attitude Ismet Pasha may enter into negotiations with Lord Curzon to give British firms exclusive concessions for the exploitation of the oil fields, provided the Turkish Government is promised a large royalty.

To be prepared to give in on the question of the Greek patriarchate provided it breaks off relations with the Greek churches outside of Turkish territory and gives up its political and legal privileges.

To insist that the question concerning a homeland for the Armenians does not concern the conference.

To show a conciliatory attitude with regard to the financial clauses of the capitulations but to remain firm with reference to the juridical clauses.

But Give All the Facts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN view of the editorial in the Post-Dispatch of Jan. 8 which was read before the Governing Committee of the Bureau of Municipal Research in its meeting today, I have been requested by that committee to make the following statement to you: The Bureau of Municipal Research has stated explicitly on several occasions that it would neither oppose nor support the pending bond proposals. It now reiterates that statement. Its purpose has been, and still is, to furnish such facts as will help citizens answer their own questions. We do not believe that facts should dampen the ardor of any citizen with respect to civic policies.

Many if not all of the members of the Governing Committee favor certain of the bond proposals; while others may quite as sincerely oppose some of the items. All are agreed, however, that sound judgment can be passed on the bond program only as the available facts are clearly presented to the community. It is infinitely more important that citizens, taxpayers and city officials recognize and maintain uncompromising fact standards as a basis of judgment than that any one or all of the items be approved or disapproved by the voters on Feb. 9. With reference to our error in discussing the borrowing capacity of the city, permit us to state that on discovering our error, the day following this publication we immediately submitted to all of the newspapers a correction thereof. As far as we have observed, this correction was not given publication in the Post-Dispatch.

Holes in County Roads.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT a modern and progressive age have we in St. Louis County. We taxpayers pay out thousands of dollars annually for good roads, and finally get the good roads through, and just begin to enjoy riding over them along comes Mr. Gas Co. and Mr. Water Co. to bite a nice hole through the road or street to lay their pipe. And then they throw in a few shovels full of loose stones and dirt and depart their way, leaving same in bad condition.

Last Saturday night some poor taxpayer drove out South Broadway at about 9600, and struck one of these holes, thereby causing him to lose control of his car, resulting in smashing it. This same man probably paid out his few shekels to have a nice street. I have counted at least a dozen of such holes between 9500 South Broadway and 9900. Can't something be done? E. A. K.

The Bishop and Arbuckle.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE read with great interest a communication by Bishop Foote Johnson answering a letter of Dec. 27 signed by "A Disgusted Observer," in which he invites the "meddlesome critics" to attend to their own affairs. I am certainly surprised that one so high in the church would have time to notice such affairs as paper talk about the movies, and, furthermore, that a Bishop would presume to withhold forgiveness from one who has humbly confessed his errors.

I suppose that I will be excommunicated for daring to criticise his holiness, but I do not care. I am man enough to think for myself, although a communicant all my life. I can see that the church has lost its grip. I think that the Golden Rule lived up to is the best church after all. I think that it would be better if the Bishop would clean house in the church before he talks about others. Ask him about the shows that the church gives for greed, and why they are jealous of outside shows. Ask him why they are always begging for money for missionaries when they have their own citizens here in St. Louis in need. I have spent three years behind the scenes in church work, and know the game. That is why they are preaching to empty pews today. Truly, the church is in the last stages of dry rot. God help us when grand old Bishop Tuttle passes on.

100 PER CENT AMERICAN FREEDOM.

Secretary Fall's Passing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THIS famous outspoken and devastating old obituary is shorn of any claim to memory save outspokenness since your editorial of last week so gracefully and effectively interred the political remains of Secretary Fall. It is to be feared, however, that this is one case in which the interred will take a large share of this world's goods with him, and that the evil he did will live after him—but we have at least the mental satisfaction of knowing that it has been justly branded. That, in the last analysis, is the most that can be hoped for, if our enterprises of infinitely greater moment (if not pith) than a Post-Dispatch editorial. Anyhow, if we can't prevent rubbers, we can at least yell, "Stop thief!"

PIANO.

THE MAJOR STREET PLAN.

The first bond-issue project, a full exposition of which was presented to the public by the Post-Dispatch yesterday, was the major street plan. It is a comprehensive plan for establishing, opening and widening streets to provide sufficient thoroughfares for present and future traffic and to assure greater safety and convenience in routing and handling traffic. The plan is the result of years of study by the engineers of the City Plan Commission and the street and sewer departments of the city.

We class this major street plan with its proposals to widen present inadequate thoroughfares, north-south, east and west and to open cut-offs and thoroughfares and widen existing streets southwest and northwest as one of the prime necessaries of St. Louis.

St. Louis traffic has now in the congested area exceeded the safe capacity of the streets. It is concentrated in a few east-and-west and north-and-south avenues, which are the only ones available for transit between business districts and the residence sections. The congestion is a menace to life and limb; it hampers business transportation and passenger traffic; it threatens a practical blockade of important sections.

The carrying out of the plan would not only widen traffic streets running east and north and south, but it would open new and pressingly needed southwest and northeast thoroughfares, which would relieve congestion and provide avenues for safe, quick and convenient traffic between the downtown district and the thickly populated districts in the southwest and northwest.

Several of the projects scheduled in the major plan have already been started, but have been halted by the inability of the city to meet its part of the expense. The halting of the projects not only deprives the people of the benefits of the projects, but entails great loss upon property owners.

The streets of a city are its arteries. If it lacks adequate arteries for the flow of traffic the city's growth is hampered, its business is checked, its population cannot increase without increasing congestion, menace to safety, discomfort and inconvenience. If bonds are not voted for these street improvements some of them at least will have to be completed and paid for out of the general revenues through increased, burdensome taxation.

We ask the voters to read carefully the description of each project in the plan and study the map in the Post-Dispatch. We feel sure that a thorough understanding of the plan will convince the voters that the plan as a whole is a necessity and that its benefits will far exceed the cost. We cannot believe that St. Louisans who cherish the welfare of the city and want it to expand into its full measure of greatness and attractiveness for residence and business will vote against this project.

THE SPORT OF KILLING HOBOES.

If human life has any value, the wanton shooting of two men by a railroad special agent in the East St. Louis yards Monday night should speedily occupy the attention of the State's Attorney's office. The only offense of the victims was that of stealing a ride on a freight train. They say they were shot without warning. The excuse given by the agent for firing, namely, that they failed to get off the train when he shouted at them, is shockingly trivial.

Life has been held habitually cheap by railroad agents on the East Side. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the shooting of nameless and friendless hoboes has been regarded as a form of sport, exciting but quite safe. The customary explanation has been to say that those shot were car thieves. It is easy to say. But no officer is justified in assuming, because a man is trespassing upon railroad property, that he is a criminal, to be picked off on sight. The prosecuting authorities should not let this case go by default, as some similar ones have been allowed to go. Human life is worth something.

CHAOS DRAWS NEARER.

Not since the armistice was signed has the outlook in Europe and the Near East been gloomier than it is now. The Paris conference has broken down. Poincare and Bonar Law protest, with Chinese politeness, their undying friendship—and France mobilizes her Rhine divisions. Germany apparently remains firm in her intention to default on the payments scheduled for Jan. 15. The Lausanne conferees are deadlocked, with the delegates growing snappish, and, aggravating that situation, France, hardened by Great Britain's rejection of the reparations program, is reported ready to restore French support to the Turks. The Bulgarian Premier bitterly upbraids the conference as "a debating society that has done nothing but deny Bulgaria an outlet to the Aegean."

Simultaneously a warlike rumble comes from Hungary, accompanied by the defiant announcement that Hungary will pay no reparations. There, the proud and fiercely nationalistic Magyars, inspired by the nationalist success of Kemal and Mussolini, have formed a similar organization, and are recruiting followers by methods closely resembling conscription. Jugo-Slavia is apprehensive of a Hungarian attack with possible Italian support. Italy has been jealous of Jugo-Slavia ever since its establishment. Vienna is in the last stages of despair and no doubt is ready for anything.

In all the world not one authoritative voice is raised to still this rising clamor or halt this ominous activity. Bonar Law leaves Paris with a gesture of helplessness—it is too bad, but nothing can be done about it. It is said that Foch will speak for France—Foch and his tanks. Tchitcherin reiterates his hopeless plea for an understanding between Russia and the United States. Trotsky perhaps revives hope for the long-deferred world revolution. Secretary Hughes talks vaguely from time to time, but nobody can guess what definite plan he has, if any.

The League of Nations, crippled and devitalized by the nonparticipation of the United States, is virtually helpless, while those who saw in it an agency for the prevention of just such conditions as these can only sigh and visualize what might have been had the ideal of Woodrow Wilson prevailed in the Senate.

The black clouds thicken and modern philosophers gravely ask each other whether human thought will be able to solve the problems raised by human aggregation.

Is the world hurrying towards another cataclysm?

DAUGHERTY WINS.

Attorney-General Daugherty, by his vindication of impeachment charges by the House Judiciary Committee, becomes the beneficiary of a piece of blundering stupidity on the part of his accusers. Daugherty has his faults and deserves criticism. But the fact that his accusers failed even to present the case which they had promised is sufficient presumption that they had no case.

Had Representative Keller, instead of walking out of the hearing with the general charge that he was not getting fair treatment, presented what evidence he claimed to have had he might have raised a question of the fairness of the committee in voting a vindication. As it happened, he is without cause for complaint, and Daugherty scores a victory. The offense, in this case, was the fatuous proceeding of bringing impeachment charges without the evidence to back them up.

MAKING 'EM STILL DEADLIER.

It is our solemn conviction that the class in marksmanship which is being conducted among girls at Missouri University should be suppressed, on the ground, first, that it constitutes a threat to the male portion of the community, and, second, that it is unnecessary. Aren't they deadly enough? Who ever heard of a wife failing to bring down her husband with the first bullet? What public safety demands is not that they be taught to shoot straighter, but that some means be devised to make them miss occasionally. Every male taxpayer who supports the university may be contributing, through this class, to his ultimate destruction.

No proposal has been made which contemplates military service for women, so we can only conclude that the skill obtained through this class is intended to be employed in private life. There might be some reason and utility in it if it were proposed that the ladies should go to war; for, if they did, war would speedily become so deadly and fatal that no nation would dare engage in it.

IN WHICH WE GET SPANKED.

SIR: Many of your discussions are carried on in the spirit and name of the Agora. I am happy to say that the dignity, intelligence, and public spirit of the discussions deserve the name on all subjects save one. On that subject the discussions are what one might have heard in the Agora 500 years before Christ, but it is inconceivable that the world's "best minds" should talk now on a subject like this as they would 2500 years ago. The Academy was guilty of no such contempt for the relevant facts.

There is a blindness in this brainiest column, in the current dailies about the functions of the brain. The brain of an animal fulfills its calling when the animal breeds, digests, and indulges in a wallow or some other congenial luxury. The human brain functions in the same way, but only in part; the brain region that entitles a creature to be called human functions when human beings are engaged in loving and lifting their kind; it is activity in that brain sphere that makes creatures human and their actions moral; that is the soul space of the brain. This Union is credited with 105,000,000 living bodies; a census of the souls would not be quite so flattering. Why? Here is the answer in part:

One half of the wage income of the United States has been flowing into the coffers of the liquor trade, exciting brain activity but in the lower ranges—below the collar. If the liquor trade exercised enough of the upper spheres of the brain to have a little common prudence it would be raking in that income now; it is "the trade" and not the Puritan who brought prohibition on. Half the wage income of the United States was not enough; the trade went out after it all. It organized politics to get all and lost all. There is no place for brains (in the human sense) in the politics, the law, the finance, the propaganda of the liquor trade; you cannot get its protagonists to face the facts that count. Most of them are mentally incapable and those who are capable fear to lose their jobs. I have a few questions, 100 or so, that no defender of the liquor trade has ever answered even to himself. Here they are, a few of them:

1. Have not American politics for more than 50 years been organized by and for those who break the laws for profit; and have they not made the police power and most of the judicial power their accomplice? Has not the liquor trade, the most powerful commercial interest in Christendom (God help us!) been at the heart of this proceeding? Is not Gov. Hyde's police policy a determination so far as he is concerned to break that alliance?

2. What profession has been the Mephistopheles of the corporations that thrive on public plunder? How do you explain the immunity of such practitioners and their princely incomes if not by the votes, the bluff, the general demoralization, the bloc, fostered by the liquor trade in its own interest?

3. How many Federal District Courts in these United States are there where a lawyer's knowledge and skill and public spirit and moral character get him nothing unless he represents the right parties, say one and another mining corporation?

4. Who are fundamentally responsible for this Ku Klux madness if not those into whose hands the administration of our laws has fallen? In a community governed by law the office of a lawyer ought to be like that of a priest; humanity has no interest more sacred; like the clergy the lawyer should live on the free will offerings of a free people who know what they do and why they do it.

I have about 96 more such questions as these; they will never be answered by any advocate of light wines and beer; he has no use for his brains, therefore he is the only one who does not see that he is a mask for the attack of the liquor trade on the law and the life of the Republic. These questions cannot be answered by any one whose thinking is done below his collar. Let us bow our heads in shame while we confess that the legal profession is not the first or the sacredest that became the Mephistopheles of the Plunderbund. The "trade" has not yet begun to be prudent. They are not scaring or outwitting the silent majority that put prohibition over; they are working the American people up to the white heat in which people say it is better to die white than live yellow.

BALLAD OF A COUNTRY DANCE.

(Dover Hills Corr., Carrollton (Ill.) Patriot.)

Curtis Keller gave a dance, and the boys all came dressed in their Sunday pants. It's been several years since we were to a hop. Cotton Kelly came in a Ford with a top. Quite a number from a distance came. Not being late, they were soon in the game. Young girls selling Christmas seals got out on the floor and showed their heels. Those sent out by the Red Cross to beg, forgot their mission and went to "shakin' a leg." The music was soft and the floors were waxed, and everybody danced till their soles were taxed. The crowd dispersed with the moon still bright, and the fiddlers were given "whatever is right."

An American business man recently returned from China says it is not certain that the republic will last very long. Crops have been poor for several years, and the Chinese farmers are disposed to believe this has been because the Emperor has not been sending up his annual prayer for growing things. It seems that farmers must rest their faith somewhere, it doesn't much matter where. The low morale of our own farmers results from having lost faith in Republican tariffs, which they have always believed in. Great people, farmers. Probably the inspiration of Sinclair Lewis' next guffaw.

"MY HOME."

It's not much of a home you'd say,
If you would see the little room
Wherein my boy and I do pray
And rest and dream—companions boon.

The windows which I watch oft through
And listen for his footsteps' fall
Or catch the sound of his voice new
As it does come with every call.

The closet in the corner stands,
My little study desk near by,
The ink-well, blotters, rubber bands,
The beds, the chairs and dresser nigh.

It is not much I know you'll say,
But God! it's Home to him and me,
And humble though it is today

SEIZURE OF THE RUHR.

From the New Republic.

IF France undertakes the administration of the Rhineland or seizes the Ruhr, she will have entered upon a course as intrinsically wrong and as disastrous to herself and to Europe as the German army did when it invaded Belgium. So it should be treated. The policy of terrorism and violence must cease. Great Britain and America should take no steps to buy her off. If it is a bluff, the bluff should be called; and if it is not a bluff, the French people should be fully informed in advance as to the consequences of their Government's wickedness. This is strong language, but the occasion justifies the words. France is involved in grave financial difficulties, from which she cannot be extricated without British and American assistance, but there is no wholesome way of rendering assistance to France except by restoring Germany and enabling Germany to pay. The proposed French policy of violence would make it impossible for Germany ever to pay. By adopting it, France would cancel the wrong which Germany has done to her by doing if not a greater, at least a less enormous wrong to Germany. She would have rendered an orderly remedy of European political dimensions and economic distress impossible, and she would have invited into her house plagues and calamities at least as serious as those which she is visiting upon Germany.

MODERN PESSIMISM.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

WHEN Vanity Fair and the Yale Review unite in chastising as "modern barbarians" the younger set in American social life, present day tendencies, customs and habits may at least be scrutinized by the judicious. Here is the Yale Review's indictment made by Wilbur C. Abbott: "It is evident that we live in an age not only of revolution but of revolt. We have seen the rise of an art, ignorant of line and color and perspective, like and inferior to that of the cavemen; a school of music, innocent of harmony and beauty, echoing the savagery of Central African tom-toms, accompanied by dancing which would have shamed the bacchanals, and by words which are adapted to an intellectual capacity a shade above that of the moron. We read a fiction more subtly decadent than the literature of the corrupt Roman Empire declining to its fall; and a poetry inferior in form and content to that of our remote Teutonic ancestors. We listen to the praise of a moral code like that of a herd of wild cattle; and we hear critics and so-called thinkers extolling these manifestations as the last word in artistic and philosophical achievement." * * * Frank Crowninshield—whose name, by the way, is barbarously pronounced as though it was spelled "Crunchill"—comes to Mr. Abbott's support. "Blasts from the saxophone and explosions from the drums partially drown the screams of those at the upper tables," begins the editor of Vanity Fair. Continuing, Mr. Crowninshield says: "Bootleggers are admirably pointed out to the young men of fashion, demondaines to the debutantes. Lipsticks and rouge-puffs are in active use at every table. Hawaiian cabaret performers execute hula-hulas with abandon and impunity; conversation among the debutantes is redolent of sophisticating and scandal; bookmakers and mannequins are everywhere." There is more in this vein, as there was more in Mr. Abbott's. The rhetoric is colorful, the argument conclusive in the judgment of everyone who is neither a "modern barbarian" nor inclined to become one, and who by reason of circumstances or because of a jaundiced eye sees no young people in "society" save the fatuous and the girls of the baser sort whose conversation disgusts the gentlemen here quoted.

Diocesan Officers of Episcopal Church Confer.

Ways and means of obtaining an active church membership were discussed yesterday by delegates to the three-day conference of diocesan officers of the Episcopal Church, which began yesterday at Christ Church Cathedral, with 100 delegates, most of them from the field department of the church, in attendance.

The chief purpose of the conference is to acquaint diocesan officers with the program adopted at the national convention of the church, held recently at Portland, Ore. Following the sessions here members of the church will be visited by field department workers and the church program will be explained.

Discussions were continued today. A reception to all visiting delegates will be given in the parish house of the Church of the Ascension, Cates and Goodfellow avenues, at 6:30 p. m. today. The conference will close tomorrow.

MISS VIVIAN PARTRIDGE.

MISS ELISE GARNEAU and Joseph Werner, whose wedding will be a fashionable nuptial event at the New Cathedral, Jan. 29, are to be honored at a group of pre-wedding parties. On Monday, Jan. 22, Miss Dorothy McBride, a member of the bridal party, will give a theater party for them. Dr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett will have a unique dinner dance Jan. 24. The scene will represent a dance hall of the "wild" West, when leather chaps, flannel shirts and sombreros and spurs were a part of the every-day costume, and women carried their own six-shooters. The party will be given at the Bartlett home, 53 Westmoreland place, and the guests will include some of this season's and last season's buds, with their escorts.

Miss Eleanor Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Simmons of 46 Westmoreland place, will be hostess at a dinner party Jan. 25, complimenting Miss Garneau and Mr. Werner, at the Simmons home.

On the following evening William H. Luyties has invited the prospective bride and her fiance, with a group of their friends, to slide into the Luyties ballroom in Brentmoor for a children's party. The guests will wear costumes appropriate to the occasion, and those who attended a similar function given last season by Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, anticipate one of the most enjoyable of the informal functions of the winter.

Midwinter cruises on the Mediterranean continue to be popular among St. Louisans, and among the latest to make their plans are August Schlafly of 4442 Lindell boulevard, and his daughter, Miss Helen Schlafly. They will sail Feb. 3 on the S. S. Empress of Scotland, for a two months' trip.

Mrs. Max von Tagenhart, formerly Miss Marie Adams of this city, who has been traveling in Europe and South America for the last year, is spending a few days in St. Louis. She is a guest at Hotel Chase.

Mrs. Frederick R. Hattersley of New York, who has been visiting friends in St. Louis for several weeks, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Douglass of 16 Vandeventer place. Mrs. Hattersley will depart Thursday for her home.

Mrs. William S. McChesney of 4406 McPherson avenue, will close her home after the marriage of her son, John J. O'Fallon and Miss Harriot Evans of Delaware, O., in the early spring, and will take an apartment in the Oxford.

Mrs. Henry Menzenwerth Sr., of the St. Regis apartments, has sent out cards for a bridge luncheon Jan. 17. Mr. and Mrs. Menzenwerth will be hosts at a dinner party Feb. 5 at their apartment. Invitations have been sent out.

Mrs. Wilkins Jones of 4938 McPherson avenue departed Saturday for a stay of several weeks at Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Waldo Briggs of 5604 Waterman avenue, has gone to Chicago for a month's visit with friends.

Because of the death of a relative of Miss Lucile Ehrler, daughter of Mr. Walter A. Ehrler, 3207 Sullivan avenue, the party Miss Ehrler was to have given this afternoon at the Glen Echo Country Club has been postponed to next Tuesday afternoon. It will be a bridge luncheon for about 40 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex T. Gast of 2 Gast place are planning a dinner party for Jan. 22.

Mrs. Frederick William Langenberg of 6902 Washington boulevard sent out cards for two-bridge luncheons which she will give on Jan. 18 and 19, at her home. Mrs. Langenberg has as her guest her sister, Miss Mamie Haynes of Oklahoma.

The marriage of Miss Vivian Partridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Partridge of Cabanne avenue, to Hobart Bemis Swan of Springfield, Mass., will take place at 8 o'clock Feb. 21, in the home of the bride's parents. Miss Dorothy Partridge will attend her sister as maid of honor; Mrs. Clifford Chase Field of Chicago will be matron of honor, and Miss Marjorie Hall, bridesmaid. Arthur Partridge of New York, brother of the bride, will serve as best man and the groomsmen will be Linn Gamble and Frank Simmons. Guests at the ceremony will be limited, and 200 additional friends of the couple will attend the reception to follow.

Mrs. Dolph Cramer of Waterman avenue was hostess this afternoon with an informal tea in honor of Mrs. Frederick E. Rice of Brookline, Mass.

The St. Louis Writers' Guild will meet Jan. 29 at the home of Miss Temple Bailey in the Kingsbury Apartments.

Mrs. G. N. Seidlitz of 5939 Clemens avenue is expected home this week after a visit to her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Allen in Des Moines, Ia. Dr. Seidlitz returned several days ago.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Savde May Penner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Penner of 5783 Kingsbury boulevard, and Bernard M. Ritter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ritter, 5690 Maple avenue. The news of the wedding comes as a surprise to their friends, as no previous plans had been made. The ceremony was performed on Jan. 7 by Rabbi Halpern. The couple are in the East on their honeymoon trip, and upon their return will be honor guests at an informal reception Jan. 21 from 7 to 10 p. m. in the home of Mr. Ritter's parents. They will reside at 5510 Pershing avenue.

Dr. Mary Alice Créhore will address the Health and Hygiene Committee of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce at 2 o'clock this afternoon, in Vandervoort's Music Hall.

Twenty-five officers of the 138th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, headed by Col. C. S. Thornton, commander of the regiment, are in Jefferson City to attend the military ball to be given by Gov. Hyde tonight.

UNUSUAL TRIBUTE BY HOUSE TO ITS ONLY CONFEDERATE VETERAN

Entire Membership Cheers Representative Stedman, North Carolina, When He Begins Speech.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—An unusual tribute was paid by the House yesterday to Representative Stedman, Democrat of North Carolina, the only Confederate veteran serving in that body, when he rose to plead for Federal consideration of a bill to permit the erection in Washington of a monument to the southern negro mammy. The entire membership, Republicans and Democrats, cheered Stedman for several minutes when he began and after he had praised the negro mammy of antebellum days, he was given another round of applause.

The bill would authorize the Daughters of the Confederacy to the monument on Government-owned ground. Stedman painted the negro mammy's fidelity as without parallel in history and declared the erection of the monument would mark one of the few times when a people had so honored one of another race living among them.

NO BIG PICTURES OF WILSON OR WASHINGTON AT CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 10.—Sergeants at arms of the House of Representatives have been delayed in complying with a resolution adopted last week by the House ordering that pictures of President Harding, Woodrow Wilson and George Washington be placed in the House Chamber until pictures of Wilson and Washington could be bought.

ARTHUR R. DEACON DIES; WAS ILL THREE MONTHS

He Founded Algonquin Golf Club, Purchasing Ground and Letting Organization Use It.

—Strauss Photo.

Arthur R. Deacon, 64 years old, secretary of the Lambert Pharmacal Co., died at 5:30 p. m. yesterday at his home, 24 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, from septic poisoning, after an illness of three months. He had contracted a virulent infection of the jaw, following an attack of grip a year ago, but his condition was not regarded as serious until a month ago, when the infection reached a systemic stage.

He had been secretary of the Lambert company since the early '80s, and was re-elected to that office Monday for another year. He also was a large stockholder in the Lambert-Deacon-Hull Printing Co., and the St. Louis Surfacer and Paint Co., and was vice president of the Allen-Hanbury Co., Ltd., of Toronto, Canada.

The Algonquin Golf Club was founded by Deacon in 1903, and he was its first president. He purchased the ground himself and allowed the club to use it until it became firmly established. Later, when the club desired to extend its golf links from a 9 to an 18 hole course, he purchased 50 acres adjoining. Some of this property had since been purchased from him by the club, but much of it was still held by him at his death.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith M. Deacon; a son, Arthur Philip Deacon, and two daughters, Mrs. Edith Victoria Martin of New York and Miss Virginia Kettering Deacon of England.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m., tomorrow at the home. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

D. R. CALHOUN, WHO COLLAPSED ON STREET, MUCH IMPROVED

Will Remain in Hospital Several Days—Sudden Illness Laid to Sinus Headache.

David R. Calhoun, president of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., who fell unconscious on the sidewalk on Ninth street, near St. Charles street, at 2 p. m. yesterday and was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in an ambulance, probably will not be able to leave the hospital for several days, according to Dr. Elworth Smith, attending physician, today.

Dr. Smith announced yesterday that the sudden illness was caused by a severe sinus headache. Calhoun was to have been operated upon Saturday for sinus trouble. He regained consciousness at 3 p. m., and his condition rapidly improved, Dr. Smith said. Calhoun was on his way to a luncheon engagement with his son, David R. Jr., at the time of the attack. Two physicians, after a superficial examination immediately following Calhoun's collapse, had stated it appeared he apparently had suffered an apoplectic stroke.

McCloskey Funeral Tomorrow.

Charles Carter McCloskey, 60 years old, who died yesterday at his home, 7366 Maple avenue, was related to the Soulards, Cerres, Chouteaus and Turners, pioneer families of St. Louis. His mother was Marie Terese Soulard, and he was a great-grandnephew of Antoine Soulard, Surveyor-General of the Louisiana Purchase. He was born at Galena, Ill., and for many years was with the Laclede Gas Light Co. His wife, daughter, Marie, and son, Gaston Soulard McCloskey, survive. The funeral will be at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow from the home and Church of the Immaculate Conception to Calvary Cemetery.

CARRILLO'S DIALECT HELPS "MIKE ANGELO"

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A simple little play which will neither bore nor thrill, couched in soft lights and sentiment, brings Leo Carrillo, star of "Lombardi, Ltd.," back to Broadway. If anyone, excepting Carrillo himself, had been cast for the principal part, that of a poor young Italian helper in a New York art school, Morosco's judgment in bringing to New York so tame and so unexciting a piece might be extremely bad. As "Mike Angelo" stands at the Morosco, there is a smooth, natural dialect performance by the star and a fairly good showing by the other players in a comedy which possesses little wit and less invention.

Its three acts are played in the setting of a fashionable New York art studio, where Newton Carlton teaches pretty girls to paint. Mike Angelo (Carrillo) is the ex-bootblack, now studio janitor and general handy man who poses occasionally for the students. A wealthy art patron offers a prize for the best canvas to be painted by the Carlton school, and Mike, who has tried painting on the quiet, is admitted as a contestant.

When the lad chooses as his subject the professor's pretty daughter, it becomes evident that Mike is in love, and when the young Russian student, Smirnoff, who also loves Annabelle, decides he, too, will paint her, the conflict arrives. The day before the pictures are to be judged both Mike and Smirnoff find that the boy's picture is the better, so Mike, believing Annabelle loves Smirnoff, secretly exchanges the pictures on the wall so that Smirnoff may win. The plot thickens considerably when Smirnoff makes his way into the studio at night and smears the covered picture which he believes to be Mike's.

But, do you think Annabelle doesn't recognize Michael's touch? She does. And the villain Smirnoff loses while Mike walks away with the pretty lady.

Dorothy Mackaye, who is a delightful comedienne when the comedy is there, does everything she can to quicken "Mike Angelo's" pace.

SUPPORT FOR BILL TO MAKE CAHOKIA MOUNDS STATE PARK

Editors and Publishers of Three Counties Organize to Push Measure in Legislature.

Twenty editors and publishers of St. Clair, Madison and Bond Counties, Illinois, meeting in East St. Louis yesterday, organized as a nucleus of support in the Illinois Legislature for a bill to make the Cahokia group of prehistoric mounds in St. Clair and Madison Counties a State park.

The purchase of 500 acres, to include the great Cahokia or Monk's Mound and most of the 80 or more other mounds, will be recommended, Representative Norman G. Flagg of Madison County has agreed to sponsor the bill, and other members from the three counties will support it.

For two years, in the spring and autumn, Warren G. Moorehead, curator of the archeological museum of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., has been exploring the mounds to substantiate in a scientific way that the mounds are artificial and, as such, the most important group of prehistoric earthworks in the United States. The great Cahokia mound is the largest pyramid in the world, surpassing in height and cubical content the great pyramid of Egypt.

News of New Books and Those Who Write Them

D. H. Lawrence and G. K. Chesterton Go Under the Knife in Goodly Company—Turkey Deodorized by One of Her Sons—Fine Gift Books About London and Washington, Better Late Than Never—"Towards Democracy," Edward Carpenter's Chef d' Oeuvre—A Talk With the Builder of "The Cathedral."

By Otto Heller.

ON THE OPERATING TABLE.

It seems only too true that reading maketh a full man, for do we not notice that day by day, in nearly every way, we are getting fatter and fatter? and unless we secure a respite from books we foresee ourselves violently though spontaneously combusting at an early date. Here are the holidays over, with a big crop of new books ripe for delivery, and a left-over of 100 titles or so in our Wernicke's crying to have their jackets dusted. Unable to do justice to them all, yet unwilling to do injustice to any, we shall confine attention to the residuum now on our shelves to their most admirable or most provoking traits, to books without pronounced qualities, and to the patently dull or null we can accord but a casual hit or a pat in passing.

A volume of short stories by the writer whom Martyn Johnson calls "the most significant figure in English letters today, probably one of the most important in the entire range of literature." Probably you could never guess this illustrious person without first aid to the memory. Poor indeed in these days must be the author who is not packed and sealed as the greatest genius of his decade by at least one critical junta. The author here in question is Mr. D. H. Lawrence, and we consider it sheer nonsense to class him with the world classics, as his reckless admirers would have us do. But certainly he is a promiseful writer and one who promises to keep the promise he gives, and is not that distinction enough? "England, My England" (Thomas Seltzer) comprises 10 short stories of highly respectable, though not exalted, quality, each with its individual cachet. But only the title story (which is far and away the best of them all) seems finished and rounded off, whereas the others, to less excellent in some particulars, read rather like sketchy preliminaries of bigger things in the making. Mr. Lawrence owes much of his celebrity to his picturesque but hardly tenable convictions regarding vital issues of the social relationship—the sort of oddity which in these days has raised more than one literary curio to great temporary prominence. But what makes his work infinitely more remarkable than any specious or superficial originality could make it is his intrepid clutch at the unrealities of life which, being to him its fundamental realities, are approached by this energetic explorer of the unconscious with the obsession of the seer and the poet. The reader who by the absence of a proper ending is driven to hore for hidden meaning in Lawrence's narrative will fare even as did those diggers after buried treasure in the old German poem. No glistening mystery will be disinterred, but the second reading will have amply repaid the fatigue through the gain in artistic discipline marked by the discovery that the stories were worth reading twice. That, we feel, is high commendation, and one that befits Mr. Lawrence's measure of deserts far better than silent acquiescence in, or loud assent to, the preposterous elevation of this writer to the rank of a genius that occurs only once in several centuries.

And here we have another chain of stories, again by a writer of solid parts, and one whose stature would enable him to loom good-sized in the future were he not made topheavy by his unduly distended reputation. "The Man Who Knew Too Much" (Harper & Brothers) includes a dozen stories by G. K. Chesterton—decidedly entertaining, of course, and dashed off in his best bravura style. These stories are excellent one and all, and they would be even better than they are were not their ends forcibly twisted and broken off by the impudent literary Cagliostro. Or it may be less captious to say that Mr. Chesterton adeptly works up each of his clever detective yarns to the punto in aria—with the point left dangling. Which is well and good when one weaves late, but insufferably arid in the long run, vexing when one spins yarns. Besides, it's real hard work. Mr. Chesterton hides over his mask of levity labors like a coal-heaver to make over and over again his one point. His great detective, Horne Fisher, believed in his master mind that the evil-doer should be brought to justice. He burned with a passion for right and truth and honor. And he was as great an expert as Sherlock Holmes at ferreting out the secret of a crime. An arresting fellow all right, but he never brought his man to punishment, because he "knew too much." That is, he knew too much about society is. So, for instance, in "The Face in the Target," Horne Fisher by his shrewd combinations finds out the perpetrator of a low and dirty murder and then lets the police prove it was a motor accident. His objection to bringing the murderer to bay is that nobody would believe the accuser. "I know this fellow has succeeded in making himself something incurably commonplace and comic. If I were to tell Boggs or Halkett that old Lipp was an assassin, they would almost die of laughter before my eyes." A bit of characteristic, tringly Chestertonian banter. This—a story with head and feet and a well developed torso whereby hangs a capricious and quite inorganic tail; oh, what a wag!

Chesterton's ersatz for the late lamented Sherlock Holmes is described as "the man who knows too much to know anything." The notion, in its possibilities, is a most fertile one, but the author of "The Flying Inn," by habit averse to the labor of logical demonstration, commutes his intellectual debt by a display of this thick-coming vagaries. In "The Vanishing Prince," for instance, the assassin, caught red-handed, cheats the gallows without the least exertion on his own part, simply because Mr. Chesterton looks for a pretext playfully to indict and damn the Government of his country, against which he alleges a fabulous corruption. With a rather flat-footed jest at the end the matter is kicked off into the area of laughter.

All of which, far from trying to puncture Mr. Chesterton's airy illustriousness, is said in majorem gloriam of himself as classic exponent of eccentric heavyweight elegance; a most enjoyable performer in the side shows of polite literature, but not one to be headlined in the main tent.

A new edition, complete and printed from new plates, of that remarkable book published first in 1883, "Towards Democracy," by Edward Carpenter (Mitchell Kennerly.) With introductory notes by the author and Charles Yale. This is Edward Carpenter's greatest work, and expresses his whole vision of the meaning and fruition of life. Thirty years ago Carpenter was frequently denounced as an impossible eccentric, a teacher of dangerous and damnable doctrines. Today he is generally accepted as a man of wide and wise humanity, simple, sane, inspiring and inspired. That is encouraging. "Towards Democracy" should not be mistaken for a political or sociologic treatise, for it is nothing of the sort. Rather is it a lyric species of philosophic diary—in its spiritual naturalism strongly and consciously akin to Whitman and Emerson, and often quite innocently Nietzschean in its rhapsodic elation and profundity. This book could not have been but for "Leaves of Grass"—so the author has expressly acknowledged. Indeed, he finds it difficult to imagine what his life would have been without Whitman. "Leaves of Grass," he tells us, "filtered and fibered" his blood, though he is not aware of ever having tried to imitate it or its style. But suppose our vers-iibrists should take to antiquarian research some day, and dip into the literature of the Pre-Victorian Age—what would be left of their pride of priority after reading some of these odes and rhapsodies, in which the moderns are so gloriously outdone, and so long before their day!

Imagine yourself, if you can, in a world where people are governed entirely by laws and order of the divine nature and where all the nations of the world are bound together in the harmonious contentment of universal brotherhood—all speaking the same language and inspired by the same religion. If in that prodigious realm of the heart's desire where there is no wealth or class distinction, yet where in the sunshine of universal equality human individuality can thrive unhampered, you were accosted by your local guide, the Man of Wisdom, and asked if you were desirous of returning to the world whence you came, you would be right in politely but firmly declining the invitation. To such a cloud-cuckoo-land of blissful perfection you are transported in "The Aerial Flight to the Realm of Peace," which is the title of a missive issued from the Lincoln Press and Publishing Co., St. Louis. Its author is Martha Kayser (Mrs. Robert Lee Kayser) of this city, a daughter of the late J. Charless Cabanne, to whom her pages are lovingly dedicated. The imaginary hydro-autoplane that takes you to that other planet is nobly propelled by the author's absorbing enthusiasm for world improvement, and her Utopia of a higher and more stable civilization than the one which we are now so arduously engaged in breaking up, is rendered almost tangible by the sincerity of the picture. Mrs. Kayser's vision is made very real to her through the gift of enthusiasm lifted by faith. She did but dream of heaven, and she was there. As for ourself, we have just done a day's labor and finished reading the papers, and should find ourself hard put to it were we to render reason for her touching faith.

"Speaking of the Turks"—well, they taught us in school not to speak of them, indeed to think of them as the "unspeakable." Our travels never took us to Turkey, and to the best of our recollection we never have been face to face with a genuine, bona fide Mussulman. We know the Turk only by his reputation—which, as all the world knows is pretty dusky. However, we have long ere this been persuaded by Edmund Burke never to indict a whole nation. Moreover, there is the testimony of great Western writers to emphatic denial of Ottoman laziness, sensual self-indulgence and cruelty. Count Moltke's "Letters from Turkey" raised the Turk greatly in our respect; Pierre Loti's "Turkey in Agony" roused us to compassion for his misfortunes and indignation against his enemies. Edmondo de Amicis' vivid and charming "Constantinople" made us in many ways his friend for life. The recent official Red Cross report about the hellous atrocities visited upon unoffending Turkish villages by the modern Hellenic crusaders in their advance to the rear has also had some effect on our opinion. We are still disposed to regard the Turk as a pretty wicked man, by and large, extra bad when the latent blackguardism of all human nature is set loose in him by a state of war; in fine, a heavy sinner, and heavily sinned against. But on the other side we have a more agreeable picture of the Turk, impressed on our mind by the chromo on those packages of figpaste and cichorium which our nurse used to decoct for us and palm off for coffee on our innocence. It showed a baggy bearded Turk lying on a divan, a beauteous Sultana Valide, or maybe only odalisque, lolling at his side, and a tray with black coffee and the fussy chibouk or nargileh proffered by a swarthy Eunuch. How we envied him!

The new book (published by Duffield & Co.) is written by the Mufti-Zade (i. e. Civil Commissioner) K. Zia Bey, a son of the Turkish Ambassador to Great Britain. Zia Bey, a very good looking and highly educated young man, married to an American girl and now lecturing in this country, laughs from the depth of his stomach at the Turk's terrible reputation abroad. The Turks, he asserts, are a peaceful, just, and broadminded people. They are not indolent, by any means; but they disdain material attainments and are indifferent to money. That is the reason why in business they are no match for their competitors in the Near East, Armenians, Greeks and Jews. A Levantine saying has it that one Jew will fool two Gentiles, one Armenian two Jews, and one Greek two Armenians. As for the Turk, he can't fool anyone, being in honesty the Chinaman of the Near East. The Mufti-Zade would have us understand that Abdul and Ali and Aziz spend their lives in spiritual contemplation and study of the Koran. (As confessed above, we can't tell from personal acquaintance, but must say their pictures don't look like that at all.)

The meaning of "Islam" is the road of salvation. Muslim is a follower of that road. It is true that the Koran makes no difference between believers in the One Almighty God, no matter by what name they call themselves. The Bey insists that Christians are not discriminated against, much less persecuted, in his country. The Mohammedan God does not proselytize with fire and sword. He is no physical person but the allinclusive spirit which permeates the whole universe.

Of the Turk's home life the author draws an entrancing picture. It still moves in patriarchal grooves, and servants are practically an immovable element of the family. They would feel insulted if they were paid any salary. Happy land. Ours are out for insult so heavy we find it hard to raise it.

Always we have connected the Turk with the ancient attractive but dishonorable institution of polygamy. There we were wrong again. No polygamy is practiced among the Turks, not even the mildest form of bigamy. "Harem" in Turkish means nothing less and nothing more than the special house or section of a house reserved to the ladies of the family. At last the mystery of the "wives" referred to by most of the foreign writers is cleared up, thanks to Mr. K. Zia Bey. The reputed wives are nothing but sisters, sisters-in-law, daughters, or cousins of the head of the family. The war resulted in complete emancipation of these ladies, which was already under way since the economic awakening of Turkey in 1908. Women participate in all activities—home life, business, education, religion, politics. (Of course they are enfranchised (which the women of France are not?)

Much of the trouble between the Turks and their neighbors derives from the new resolution, "Turkey for the Turks!" They are waking up to their opportunities and reclaiming business in their own country from those who have had it for centuries. That is the side of the problem which as a native Turk the author wants to bring home to his American audience. Into the kismet of his land he looks without misgiving. "New Turkey, a rejuvenated nation, which has given such patent proofs of its unconquerable spirit of self-sacrifice and indomitable will to live, a people which, despite the most insurmountable obstacles thrown in its way by unfair enemies, has succeeded in emancipating itself from all political, economic, religious and personal prejudices—will shatter completely its material and moral chains and continue its advance free and independent—on the road to culture, progress and civilization."

Here, from the press of Houghton-Mifflin Co. are two posthumous Burroughs books. "The Last Harvest," one of them is named. It is a final collection of essays, including important studies of Emerson and Thoreau. The book closes with a remarkable article on "The Great Mystery"—the end which the author knew was near. Burroughs faced the mystery manfully, if without the confidence of faith. "I wish there were something to light up the grave for me, but there is not. The faith of all the saints and martyrs does not help me. Death seems the great catastrophe." But he faces the primal, unending darkness with a cosmic acquiescence. "I know that I am a part of the great cosmic system of things, and that all the material and all the forces that make up my being are as indestructible as the great Cosmos itself—all that is physical must remain in some form. But the consciousness, the real me, is not physical, but an effect of the physical. His materialism, however, is not without spiritual aspiration. You and I perish, says he, but something may go on—he is not too positive—from us that will help forward a higher type of mankind."

The other title reads "John Burroughs Talks, His Reminiscences and Comments, as Reported by Clifton Johnson." Well Johnson had his Boswell, and Burroughs now has his Johnson, a recorder of the talks had with the good, gay outdoor man during many a visit, written out from notes taken on the spot. Mr. Johnson, by keeping himself discreetly in the background, has admirably succeeded in drawing out an excellent self-portrait from one of the most picturesque personalities of his period. The autobiography, in effect, of one who talked pretty steadily, and for so steady a talker not too often unwisely.

Offhand we'd say:

Don't get on the front page if you can avoid it. But this happens to be the Age of Publicity, and what's still worse than publicity, to-wit: the Publicity Agent.

"Getting Your Name in Print," by H. S. McCauley (Funk & Wagnalls Co.) teaches how to get along amicably with the newspapers. One of the chapters of the treatise is headed: "How to Treat the Reporter." Is it still legal? Anyway, don't treat him rough. Leave that to the City Editor. Our advice is, help the newspaper. Try to inform it; don't try to reform it, for its either unnecessary, or impossible.

Grandpa is 65 and has a comfortable fortune at his disposal when he submits to a glandular operation and regains his youth. From a doddering bearded old fellow who sat in the chimney corner all day he reverts to a man of 40 or thereabout, with all the pep in the world. And he does not stop here. The rejuvenatory fever seizes him and he determines that others shall profit by the great discovery. He collects a hundred old men and sails for the gorilla country in Darkest Africa. His adventures there form the remainder of a windy tale ("The Gland Stealers," by Bertram Gayton.)

I never read a book like this one without wondering how by all that's holy the author has found a publisher. It's J. B. Lippincott Co. in this case. Here is a corking idea for comedy and satire with the added virtue of timeliness, but what do we get instead? Mr. Gayton starts out in the vein of humor that characterizes "Helen's Babies," scorns the possibilities of satire, and when the book is half ended launches off into a sidetrack of jungle adventure that is not absurd enough to be funny and only makes the reader hunger for the feeblest efforts of Du Chaillu.

But the idea is intriguing enough to cause us to wonder, "What would F. P. A. have done with it, or Dorothy Parker, or better still, Stephen Leacock?"

"LONDON," by George Wharton Edwards. (Penn Publishing Co.)

HERE is one of the handsomest books issued for the Christmas season. Mr. Edwards is giving his readers the most interesting phases of historic London. Those who have been fortunate to browse through his "Vanished Halls and Cathedrals of France" or his "Vanished Towers and Chimes of Flanders" will find here the same fascinating method of treatment that made those volumes so interesting.

An artist of rare attainments, he has illustrated his "London" lavishly with his own drawings, some 50 of which are presented both in colors and in black and white. The text is in a gossipy vein, with bright flashes of humor. He has a talent for finding the interesting about any architectural pile that attracts his attention and this enables him to envision his subject graphically for his readers, whether he is presenting it in drawing or in text. He gives you both entertainment and history. Practically all the more important historic spots in London are covered in his book.

MODERNIZE RELIGION, HUGH WALPOLE URGES

English Writer Says Church, by Clinging to Antiquated Dogmas Loses Hold on Youth.

Readers of "The Cathedral," by Hugh Walpole, have suspected the author believes the Church of England should be modernized. His criticisms were spread with much subtlety through the novel, but it has caused considerable comment in English church circles. Upon his arrival here yesterday, for a lecture on "Books and Friendship" before the Wednesday Club this afternoon, Walpole discussed his religious views.

Briefly stated, Walpole thinks religion has become antiquated and has lost its hold for the younger generation. He believes the ritual and dogmas of Christianity need restating. He would do away with literal interpretations of the Bible and remove the Old Testament from followed infallibility.

To Walpole's way of thinking, the modern church is asking its members to believe explanations and stories which are incredible in the light of scientific and philosophic advancement.

Fundamental Truths Unshaken.

"The fundamental truths of Christianity are unshaken," said Walpole, "but they should be put into a form compatible with modern conceptions of life and the world. The church has carried with it a dead weight of ancient imaginings, particularly those which are embodied in the Old Testament. The youth of today smiles at the stories solemnly propounded as the Holy Word. By clinging to unessential forms and dogmas, the church is failing to bring its great lessons to modern minds. Finding that he cannot believe Old Testament stories, the young thinker often is inclined to judge the story of Jesus to be a very pretty fairy tale and the whole of religion a simple-minded hoax."

Another controversy which has centered upon the English novelist arose from his championship of American authors in England. His enemies have been unkind enough to say that the appreciations that Walpole writes of Joseph Hergesheimer's work exactly balance those Hergesheimer writes of Walpole's work. Other English critics assert that Walpole's kindly feeling toward American life is inspired by the receipts from his lecture tours.

Walpole was speaking yesterday

CRITICISES CHURCH

of the admirable tendency toward the purchase of books in America. Attention focused on the great American reader.

"Yes," said Walpole with an odd look in his eyes, "the American reader sits reading the newspaper surrounded by books—books in sets. Once in a while, when he can take himself from the sporting page, he lowers the paper and lifts his eyes and glances around his book-cased walls. There they are: Stevenson, Thackeray, Dickens, Shaw, Wells and many others—in sets. He feels well read. These books seem as well-known friends to him. He sees them every day. Some day he will cut their pages."

However, Walpole is entirely willing to admit that Americans read more and in greater numbers than Englishmen and that they buy books, his books, good books. Their sins are covered up.

He denied that English authors sold more books in America than at home.

"A popular book by an English writer sells equally as well in England as it does in America," he said. "My books have been equally divided except when I am lecturing over here. I think it is that way with Chesterton and I believe Bernard Shaw sells better in England."

Praise for Hergesheimer.

Now, as to the greatest living American writer:

"It's damn nonsense the way you pile one writer on top of another," he exclaimed. "An artist is sufficient to himself. But if you want me to choose I pick Joseph Hergesheimer. I think he writes the best English, the finest prose.

"As a novelist I believe Hergesheimer has his equals in Sinclair Lewis, James Branch Cabell and Willa Sibert Cather. In his line H. L. Mencken could be placed with these four."

Literary movements next were under discussion.

"Naturalism is the dominant note in American literature, although I think the tendency will be toward a mingling of the romantic and naturalistic types. We have already got to that in England. This form of novel is most perfectly exemplified in the works of Joseph Conrad."

Future of Symbolism.

Walpole sees a narrow future for symbolism and expressionism. The symbolic school in America is led by Cabell, whose "Jurgen" is a type. The expressionists have little following here and Walpole says that Dorothy Richardson, English author of "The Tunnel," almost has been forgotten over there.

"Naturalism tends to be merely photographic, symbolism must be very well done or else its rot and expressionism generally becomes merely autobiographical," Walpole criticised.

In his listing of the most eminent and promising English writers Walpole places Thomas Hardy and Joseph Conrad on the tallest pinnacles. Then he arranges Wells, Kipling, Shaw and Galsworthy as those who already have won immortality. He lists his own contemporaries as those "who started up before the war." Among them he named Beresford, Swinnerton, Joyce, McKenzie, Sheila Kaye Smith and Dorothy Mansfield. May Sinclair and Thomas Joyce are the most promising young English writers, he believes. Of the very young school contemporary with Fitzgerald, Benet and Dos Passos over here he does not find a single Englishman of importance.

"THE BOOK OF WASHINGTON," by Robert Shackleton. (Penn Publishing Co.)

A VERY attractive book of the national capital prepared for the Christmas season but good for all times and all occasions for those interested in this subject. The author specializes in the writing of books on American cities, New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia having been "done" in previous volumes from his pen. He tells you all about Washington that you wish to know, historically and architecturally. It is copiously illustrated with drawings and halftones.

Former Champion Will Train for Week, Then Exhibit Before Critics in Private.

APPEARS IN FAIR SHAP

Says Neglect of Training Toledo Was the Real Cause of His Downfall.

By Bert Igoe,

The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxin Authority.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A goo night's rest after a tedious tra trip the day previous, an icy show yesterday morning and happy ho skip and jump into a crisp twe suit, seemed to transform Jess W hard into an imposing heavyweig challenger yesterday.

To tell a plain truth this giant fo how looked formidable, talked th war and acted the same. He is n the creeping, cringing, alibi-ing c champion that you might have pi tured in your mind, the broken kn who would attempt to regain chrome seat with the loser's end b ing the only bright prospect of t quest. Tex Rickard will return fro the West, tonight, and Willard w plead his case for a return mat with Dempsey.

Jess chatted good naturedly w a small army of inquisitors a talked shop only because he had answer a bombardment of quizze Mister Dempsey's title, of cours was the subject of conversation. it had been the night before wh Jess and his party, headed by R Archer, got into New York.

"I wouldn't be here if I did come to talk fight, and a fight course, with Dempsey," said Je "I'm sure that I can win, and only wish that I had been as serio about the matter at Toledo as I a now. I realize my mistake and want to show the world that I wo as the champion. I weigh, I kno say, something like 245. I know I a as heavy as I was when I cra here to fight Frank Moran. Didn't Train for Moran.

"And you know I didn't get pro training for Moran. I boxed for gate each day at the Pioneer in t Amsterdam Opera House, and the in there was awful. I was a whole week when I was breathi that funk. No more of that for I train this time out in the mou tains away from the crowd. No more crowds as there were Toledo and New York. I figure th I could get into fighting condit in five months time. I would gu antee myself at the end of that ti "I tell you what I'd do. I'd the first three months, boxing, th going on the roads and over the and then, for the last two mon and up to the week of the fight get right down on the tense, h work. Weight would have to co off at that rate. You know can't take it off with soap and wa water," and here Jess laughed l at his own little pun.

Willard will ask for a private r at the Madison Square Garden t fo work in seclusion for a week then he will be ready to show Ri and or any number of critics that reasonable of starting on a long s of training and come back.

"Well try to make you see Willard we saw and watched critic by for an hour yesterday.

He is not fat. Get that idea ou your head. You must remember t Jess Willard is a giant—one of largest men that ever entered ring. He hasn't an abdomina tummy. The Pro and Con of This Argument Over Willard's Age Appears to Consist Largely of Con

Willard to Show Rickard He Can Get in Condition

Former Champion Will Train for Week, Then Exhibit Before Critics in Private.

APPEARS IN FAIR SHAPE

By Bert Igoe,

The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxing Authority.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A good night's rest after a tedious train trip the day previous, an icy shower yesterday morning and happy hop, skip and jump into a crisp tweed suit, seemed to transform Jess Willard into an imposing heavyweight challenger yesterday.

To tell a plain truth this giant fellow looked formidable, talked that way and acted the same. He is not the creeping, cringing, alibi-ing ex-champion that you might have pictured in your mind, the broken king who would attempt to regain a throne seat with the loser's end being the only bright prospect of the quest. Tex Rickard will return from the West, tonight, and Willard will plead his case for a return match with Dempsey.

Jess chatted good naturedly with a small army of inquisitors and talked shop only because he had to answer a bombardment of quizzes. Mister Dempsey's title, of course, was the subject of conversation, as it had been the night before when Jess and his party, headed by Ray Archer, got into New York.

"I wouldn't be here if I didn't come to talk fight, and a fight, of course, with Dempsey," said Jess. "I'm sure that I can win, and I only wish that I had been as serious about the matter at Toledo as I am now. I realize my mistake and I want to show the world that I still am the champion. I weigh, I would say, something like 265. I know I'm not as heavy as I was when I came here to fight Frank Moran. Why, Ray," he said, turning to Archer, "I weighed 287 when I came here to box him, didn't I? Gosh, I was fat," he added with a chuckle.

Didn't Train for Moran.

"And you know I didn't get proper training for Moran. I boxed for a rate each day at the Pioneer in the Amsterdam Opera House, and the air in there was awful. I was one whole week when I was breathing that junk. No more of that for me. I train this time out in the mountains, away from the crowd.

No more crowds as there were at Toledo and New York. I figure that I could get into fighting condition in five months time. I would guarantee myself at the end of that time.

"I tell you what I'd do. I'd work the first three months, boxing, running on the roads and over the hills and then for the last two months and up to the week of the fight I'd get right down to the tense, hard work. Weight would have to come off at that rate. You know you can't take it off with soap and water water," and here Jess laughed loud at his own little pun.

Willard will ask for a private room at the Madison Square Garden there to work in seclusion for a week and then he will be ready to show Rickard or any number of critics that he is capable of starting on a long siege of training and come back.

We'll try to make you see the Willard we saw and watched critically for an hour yesterday.

He is not fat. Get that idea out of your head. You must remember that Jess Willard is a giant—one of the largest men that ever entered the ring. He hasn't an aldermanic tummy. You are conscious that he is not lean; but looking at that fellow you'd surely say to yourself: "Why, he'd be trim, hard and dandy with five months' training." His face is full and heavy, but he hasn't got three or four double chins. The massive jawbone is still discernable, the eyes clear and snappy.

What Might Have Been.

And what hands! One of them could crush a watermelon as you smash a grape between your fingers. In a long term of looking at the giants of the ring, we've never seen such maulies. They're not fat, and as we sat there looking at these implements of ring war it came to our mind that Toledo's might have been altogether a different story had Willard rally got started or had beaten Jack to the punch.

CHAMPION BLOUIN HAS BIG LEAD ON FALCARO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—James Blouin, champion bowler of the world, today had a lead of 443 points over Joseph Falcaro of New York, challenger of the former's title, with only 20 games in their schedule unplayed. The remaining two series of 10 games each will be played this afternoon and tomorrow.

They finished the twentieth game yesterday afternoon with Blouin credited with 4510 points and Falcaro 4067.

Blouin averaged 240 for the afternoon and lost only one of the 10 games, bringing his average up to 225. His high score was 259. Falcaro had an average of 197.

Former Champion Who Is '36' Now, but Was 'Near 40' in 1918

JESS WILLARD.

Willard "Close To 40" in 1918

News Files of That Year Quote Him as Admitting This as Draft Alibi.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Whether Jess Willard came all the way to New York from California to find he has no place to go may be determined today.

William Muldoon, chairman of the State Boxing Commission, yesterday announced that the ex-champion hasn't any chance of fighting Jack Dempsey in this State.

Though Willard may say he is only 36 years old, Muldoon will have none of it. "His talk of returning to the ring to fight Dempsey or anybody else is ridiculous," Muldoon said. "His talk about his age being 36 is ridiculous. He is past 40; we have investigated. Furthermore, he cannot condition himself. Had he been honest in his efforts to come back he would have started a campaign and fought his way back against lesser men than Dempsey."

Digging into the files, one paper today published a dispatch from Chicago, dated April 9, 1918, when Willard was quoted as declaring, in explaining why he wasn't in the army, "I am close to 40 years of age and have a wife and five children. I am beyond the draft age. It's a matter of law, not choice. When the President sees fit to call men of my age, I will be only too glad to respond."

ST. LOUIS ALUMNI OF BIG TEN TO ENTERTAIN CONFERENCE COACHES

The St. Louis Council of Alumni of the Western Conference Schools, known as the "Big 10," have announced their second annual banquet for the third week in February. The first event of the kind was held last year, on which occasion all directors of athletics in the conference were present.

John L. Griffiths, commissioner of athletics for the conference, and the Judge Landis of Western athletics, will be toastmaster of the coming banquet.

The St. Louis Big Ten council represents about 800 alumni of the conference and is made up of two alumni representatives from each of the Big Ten schools. Officers of the council are W. C. Swartout, Michigan, president; W. C. Ropiquet, Illinois, vice president; P. A. Ebbs, Wisconsin, secretary-treasurer.

Bethlehem Soccer Heads Made Mistake in Importing Players From England, Ratican Declares

Development of American-Born Talent Would Have Given Better Results, St. Louis Crack Center Forward Asserts—Suggests New Municipal Soccer Plan.

By Dent McSkimming.

Six years of participation as a player on the best professional teams in the East, and one season of coaching at the United States Military Academy at West Point have enabled Harry Ratican, St. Louis soccer star, to make a thorough study of the game in the East. His observations should prove of interest to local soccer enthusiasts.

At the time Ratican joined the national champion Bethlehem team, in 1916, there were not more than three strong professional soccer teams in the East. Bethlehem was far superior to anything else in the field.

Now, Ratican observes, the Bethlehem team is but one of half a dozen crack teams and no club exercises a monopoly on championships. The Bethlehem management found it advisable to import eight players from England and Scotland last fall. This transplanted aggregation was beaten in a cup game by the New York club two weeks ago by 4 goals to 1.

This is the best indication, Ratican says, that soccer in the East has progressed rapidly.

Importing Talent a Mistake.

"The only objectionable feature that I could discover in this advance," adds Ratican, "is that too little recognition is given native American players. Rather than send across the sea for players, the Bethlehem management should have developed young Americans during the 8 or 10 years of its history, and today it would retain the football mastery which it once exercised.

"The number of Americans on the big professional league teams is surprisingly small.

"St. Louis teams have come close to teaching the Easterners that they are making a mistake in using foreign has-beens to the exclusion of Americans. There is something in St. Louis soccer which the foreign game lacks; and, while there is much that we could profitably borrow from the English and Scotch players, I am sure the American game, as played in St. Louis, will ultimately survive.

"Bethlehem was beaten by New York in that cup game because the Bethlehem players would take no chances on the slippery field. They played the characteristic Scotch game. They wanted to make the thing look pretty at all cost. No one would take a shot unless he was sure he wouldn't look bad. The center forward got through any number of times, but just when he should have shot he passed the ball. New York, a fine club, has something of the American dash and snap to its play, and, by taking chances occasionally, beat the very clever, fancy, imported men.

"It is in forward and halfback play that our St. Louis teams could be improved by the adoption of some of the tactics of old-country players. I would particularly stress the work of the outside forwards. In my limited experience as a center forward I have found that it is absolutely essential that the outside man stay on the line during an advance. The only time he should come in is to accept to cross from the outside man on the opposite wing.

Our Halfbacks Too Much on Defense.

"The halfbacks might take a more important part in the attacking moves. St. Louis halfbacks specialize too much on defense.

"While it appears advisable for the outside forwards to hold their position most rigidly, I believe the St. Louis plan of a roving inside forward is a great deal more effective than the Scotch idea of 'position at all cost.' It is this inclination of the St. Louis inside forwards to be in on every scoring opportunity that upsets the foreign teams.

"While I have not had an opportunity to personally observe the play of the St. Louis Municipal League teams since my return, I have been told by some reliable judges that the game has not advanced among our amateurs as it might have.

New Municipal Plan Suggested.

"In that regard I wish to suggest that we might do ourselves much good by adopting the system in vogue in England where a large number of teams are involved. The Municipal League might be divided into two divisions, called the First Division and the Second Division, each to include 16 clubs. A proper schedule might be drawn and at the end of each season the last three clubs of the First Division would be automatically dropped to the Second Division, and the top three of the Second would advance to the First Division.

"There would be no permanent grouping of four teams at Fairground and four at Carondelet. A team would play on a different field, before different spectators and against different opponents almost every Sunday. Spectators and players would profit. No elimination series would be necessary to decide the championship. The winning team in the First Division would, by pure mechanics, be the champion of all 32 clubs. And the brand of soccer would, I am quite positive, improve in the very first season.

"We should certainly not hesitate to adopt the very best that we find in the old country scheme of play and administration. They have been playing the game over there as long as we have played baseball and they have learned a great deal about it through experience."

WRAY'S COLUMN

50 Years Long Enough Sleep.

OLD RIP VAN WINKLE MISSOURI is about due to wake up, if one considers that 50 years is long enough for a community to be asleep. It is now half a century to the year since the State of Missouri approved the statute making a public boxing match a misdemeanor and a prize fight a felony.

With the exception of arousing every now and then to contend that a boxing match and a prize fight were one and the same thing, Old Mizzoo has been asleep at the switch ever since.

Times, customs and boxing all have changed radically. What was fighting in 1873 would now be considered mayhem or manslaughter; while the boxing of 50 years ago either did not exist or was a species of amateur prize fighting. Bare mauleys were the weapons, and it was lawful to do anything but bite, kick or gouge.

Today, in the brutal sense of old, prize fighting no longer exists. It has not existed for over 25 years. Yet the public that likes the new boxing game is shackled and hampered because Rip Van Winkle delays coming out of his snooze.

Boxing, under commission auspices, defined and limited as to severity, with a local option privilege, perhaps, is something Old Rip Mizzoo owes the residents of this State.

The present Legislature could put the alarm clock under the Old Top's ear if it felt inclined.

* * *

New York BIG, as in Bigot.

PERHAPS the most provincial town in the United States is the metropolis, New York. This city, apparently, is so big that sometimes its officials, and certainly its Boxing Commissioners, are unable to see beyond the city limits.

Wherefore Father Knickerbocker has withdrawn into his shell and for two seasons refused to lend the sunshine of his narrow-minded countenance to the National Boxing Association, an organization that not only has a right to exist, but the existence of which is DEMANDED.

Seventeen states with boxing laws belong to this body; but not New York. Because of its population and the money its shows draw it can flout the rest of the country.

With rare American Prussianism it has forced its authority on the rest of the country and, by refusing to become a member of a national organization, has balked the plans of that budding body. It has set up a law unto itself and might be one unto everybody else if, unfortunately, much of its silly effort had not been wasted on banalities and comic opera mandates.

* * *

Policy of Isolation Costly.

IF the incoming New York commission wishes to do New York a real favor it will rip the scales off its eyes and observe that by cooperating with the national body it can have its rulings nationally enforced, instead of having them laughed at and disregarded. Boxers who find that 18 states have put the ban on them will have no place to go but out.

But self-sufficient New York has not grasped that, yet. The immense sums the public is still paying at the gate indicate the tremendous cost to metropolitan fans of bigotry and a policy of isolation.

Must Mean Rooters.

YES, Bo, England has adopted the American rooting idea. It is not improbable even that the cheer leader will be abroad in the land.

"UP, THE BAWLSHIES!"

The 'Spurs' have won only one first League match at home since their spectators were warned by the F. A. for too much exuberance during the game with the Arsenal on Sept. 23.

"No one can do its best when surrounded by a crowd of meek, downtrodden and dumb spectators," writes 'Disgusted Supporter.' "What is Wanted to help win matches is more noise. Up, the Bawlshies!"

Billiard Dates Announced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Dates for the national amateur Class A and Class B balkline championship tournaments have been announced by officials. The Class A event, in which Edgar Appleby will defend his title, will be held Feb. 26 and the Class B tournament Feb. 5. The pocket billiard tourney starts Jan. 29.

Limiting Entries To National Net Tourney Mistake

The executive committee of the National Lawn Tennis Association recommends yearly a series of more or less revolutionary policies to be acted on at the annual meeting in February. Last year they put into effect the "Seeded draw," which proved a great success last season. Their recommendation to prohibit players from writing daily accounts of tournaments was defeated decisively, while other less important changes met a loyal response from the great mass of tennis supporters.

This year the annual meeting will find that the committee has made several startling recommendations. They suggest limiting the National Championship singles to 64 instead of 128. They would prohibit a player from going into moving pictures, at the expense of his amateur standing. They would guarantee a major championship to West Side Tennis Club, New York, for a period of 10 years, provided the club erect a concrete stadium like that at Wimbledon.

The executive committee is composed of men whose brains and integrity cannot be questioned, for they are men who have written tennis history. Yet all men are human and it is human to err at times. It seems to me that the executive committee has erred in its recommendation to cut the National Singles entry to 64.

Would Bar Many Youngsters.

The object, and, most laudable from one standpoint, is to reduce the grind on the serious championship contenders, of which there are never more than a dozen, and to remove the great mass who have no real championship possibilities either now or in the future. Unfortunately I fear that they have overlooked one feature of the National championship. It can hardly be "national" in scope, if a limit under the actual number of logical entries is set. For many years the entry list has run far in excess of 64, but only once above 128. Thus 128 is really providing an open event which is splendidly conducted and truly representative. The moment that is cut in half a great many players must be eliminated. While they may not actually be contenders for the title, they will be at least the equal of many players in the tournament, for there is little to choose in the ranking list after the first 20 or 25.

The veterans of many historic battles who may have passed their prime are given the preference over the younger men, an honor which their record deserves, but possibly their ability does not. The result of a limited entry of 64 will be that many promising youngsters who will gain valuable experience from the National Singles, will be cut out of their chance and consequently held back.

"Dub" Entitled to Chance.

Tennis is a game where class usually tells, but for all that a "dub" may at times spill a champion, which is as it should be, for the "Dub" is entitled to his chance for fame and the champion should be willing to run the risk.

Therefore, say I, let us seriously consider the proposed limitation, recognizing that the committee is proposing it in a sincere attempt to aid the leading players and lighten their task. But let us ask ourselves whether the hardship which it will work on the masses of lesser lights is not greater than the value received.

JAKIE MAY DEAL IS OFF; COLLINS TRADE RUMOR IS REVIVED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The failure of negotiations for the purchase of Jakie May, star left-handed pitcher of the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast League, by the New York American League club, was announced tonight by Ed Barrow, business manager for the Yankees.

The deal, said to involve $100,000 in cash and players, failed because the Yankees were unable to deliver the men desired by the Vernon club.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Interest in the proposed transfer of Eddie Collins, second baseman of the Chicago White Sox to the New York Yankees was revived today by the presence in Chicago of Col. Jacob Ruppert, part owner of the New York Yankees.

Col. Ruppert and Harry G. Rabiner, secretary of the White Sox, met yesterday, but denied reopening of the Collins deal.

Cunningham, Kammann Win.

Mike Cunningham and Walter Kammann, representing the Fire Department, won two out of three games from A. V. Roche and Jack Feldman in the city championship indoor handball tournament at the National Athletic Association gymnasium last night. The scores were, 21 to 18, 16 to 21 and 21 to 8, Roche and Feldman taking the second game.

Basket League to Open.

The North Side Junior Lutheran Basketball League will open its season at Rock Spring Turner Hall tonight. Two games will eb played, Bethlehem opposing Zion and Bethany meeting Pilgrim.

Rowing Association Meeting.

A meeting of the Central States Rowing Association will be held at Quincy, Ill., Saturday evening. St. Louis clubs will be fully represented.

No Conflicting Sunday Dates Between Yanks And Giants, Says Ban

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.

THE Yanks have won and there won't be any conflicting Sunday dates in this city, Ban Johnson, president of the American League, said yesterday, on a flying trip through town en route to Chicago.

He has been at Atlantic City with Barney Dreyfus and John A. Heydler, making up the 1923 schedule, since last Friday.

"Everything was arranged satisfactorily," said Johnson. "There was some discussion of scheduling both New York teams here on some Sundays, but as the Yankees objected, of course the plan was given up.

"By arranging separate opening dates for next season—the National League on April 17 and the American League on April 18—we believe more interest will be aroused and each league will have the glory of its own opening day instead of bunching all the fireworks on one afternoon."

Ens Wins Berth As Pirate Coach

Cliff Brady's Broken Ankle Will Be Mended When He Joins Tigers.

Jule Ens, St. Louis baseball product, will go back to the Pittsburg Pirates in the capacity of coach, this season. He will be the third St. Louisan who is holding such a position on a major league club, Jimmy Burke and Lefty Leifield, of the Red Sox and Browns, being the others.

Ens has been playing professional ball for a period of 15 years, the greater portion of which was spent in the Texas League. Last season he started the campaign as the Pirates' second baseman, but toward the latter part of the season he took a regular place on the third base coaching line, and it is apparent that he won a regular berth under Bill McKechnie.

Cliff Brady Improving.

Cliff Brady, who is scheduled to report at the training camp of the Detroit Tigers, next month, to joust with Derrill Pratt for the second-base job, is making rapid strides toward recovery from a leg injury which he suffered last fall. Recently Tommy Brammel, boxing instructor and trainer, has massaged and treated the broken ankle and Cliff now does everything but actually run and jump. Pratt kept Cliff out of a job with the Red Sox in 1921, but this is another season.

Speed Marvels to Meet.

A most promising situation is to be found in the spring series of six games between the Cardinals and the Rochester Club of the International League. There is certain to arise a controversy over the respective merits or two of the game's fastest base runners, Rogers Hornsby and Maurice Archdeacon. Branch Rickey has more than once been quoted as saying he believes Hornsby gets down to first as fast as Sisler or any other noted speed merchant. Manager Stallings of Rochester thinks that Archdeacon is relatively as fast as Charlie Paddock. It should be an interesting match.

Cleveland Has Strong Foes in Central, McKinley

Yeatman and Soldan Have Weak Teams in High School Basketball Race.

Judged by the showing made in the opening games of the season on Saturday, Central and Cleveland are going to engage McKinley in a well balanced race for the High School League basketball championship of 1923.

McKinley did not play Saturday but it is apparent from her showing in practice games, especially against St. Louis U. High, that a well-rounded team will represent the Red and White.

The second round of games will be played at the Cleveland floor Saturday. Central will meet McKinley in the afternoon game and Cleveland and Yeatman will tangle in the evening contest. The Central-McKinley tussle bids fair to be the feature attraction.

McKinley's Chances.

McKinley should prove very stiff opposition for Coach Callan's Mid-City quintet. The Crimson guards, Sybery and Heffern, are competent defenders. Syberg is a constant scoring threat and will cause the Red and Black considerable worry. Hamm at the pivot and Reidel and Lueders at the forwards are three fast-working point gatherers.

The Yeatman-Cleveland game which will be played in the evening will be an interesting one. The North Enders held Central with fair success until Hannegan and Haggerman were ruled out of the game because of the foul ruling. Yeatman shows a lack of scrimmage work against good opposition. The tendency to foul whic hwas very prevalent last week against Central will wear off. With this weakness corrected and the woeful inability to correct free shots overcome, the Yeatmanites will give Cleveland a hard scrap.

Cleveland Looks Strong.

The rebuilt Cleveland machine in its first out, displayed some very pleasing basketball. Bert Fenenga seems to have uncovered a nifty forward in Musgrove and a classy defensive man in Yates at right guard. Ray Kaiser is at the pivot for the Carondeleters and he is a very competent man when stationed under the enemy basket and "fed" by the other four Cleveland players. Konzleman brings the ball up the court nicely, but his attempts to shoot baskets are very weak.

Soldan draws the bye this week. The West Enders will profit by the rest if they attempt to develop an accurate shooter of free shots. But two out of a possible 12 chances at the Cleveland goal were converted to Soldan points. Shaw at right forward played a clever game for Coach White and was ably assisted by Shroeder, his running mate. Capt. Rawden at left guard has a tendency to foul frequently and his actions resulted in six free shots at his basket by the enemy.

It is expected that the brand of play Saturday will be a large improvement over the opening contests.

Tunney to Box Wiggins.

French Government Issues Make Further Recovery—Foreign Exchange Market Is Firm—Call Money Eases

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Quiet continued to rule in the financial markets today, the undertone remaining steady. Stocks were dull throughout and the declines forced in yesterday's last hour attack was just about made good. Bonds were irregular, gilt-edged issues being firm, French Governments making a further recovery and speculative rails showing some weakness. Call money, after opening at 4¾ per cent, was reduced to 4½ per cent at the start of the second hour and to 4 per cent before the close of the noon hour.

Foreign Exchange Firm.

"Firmness continued among the foreign exchanges, the market paying no attention to the announcement of the withdrawal of the American troops from the Rhine. As for the last several days, business was very quiet, the advances reflecting a scarcity of offerings. Sterling was strong in London before the opening here and then moved up to $4.66⅝, which was 1 cent above the previous close. London observers, meanwhile, reported considerable flow of funds to that center, foreigners apparently considering their balances safer in sterling than in the currencies of the continental countries. Such a movement naturally would have the effect of raising sterling in terms of dollars.

"Sterling was by no means, however, the only European exchange to rise at New York. French francs continued their recovery and were up 22 points on the day at 6.96½ cents. Italian lire rallied 14 points to 5.00 cents and Belgian francs kept step with those of France. Even the German mark, which touched a new low of .0091 of a cent in the late trading yesterday, firmed up 5 points. The currencies of the former neutral states were practically unchanged on this side of the water, which means, of course, that they lost ground in London.

"The market in cotton continued to be a narrow affair with prices generally higher. A rally at Liverpool found its reflection at the start here, but most of the advance was lost in the later trading. At a late price of 26.85 cents the May delivery was up 8 points on the day. Wheat, meanwhile, enjoyed a fairly good bulge. Unseasonable and variable weather in the Southwest has caused some apprehensions as to the likelihood of winter killing and prices appeared to react to this situation. May gained 1¼ cents at $1.19⅝.

Steel Industry Situation.

"Reports from the steel industry indicate a maintenance of recent high rates of activity. Steel factories as a whole are still working at 80 per cent capacity and the Iron Age states that this rate is likely to be increased shortly. Buying is said to be little affected, furthermore, by fear of a coal strike on April 1 and the latter event is now considered less of a possibility. Publication of the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders of Dec. 31 shows a falling off of 95,000 tons as compared with the month before. This is the second consecutive decrease in the volume of the corporation's unfinished business, but it must be remembered that the present amount is still approximately three-quarters of a million tons greater than that on hand Aug. 21 before the large rail workers were booked."

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Steadiness was the prevailing characteristic of the cotton cloths market here today. Small lots of print cloths were disposed of at prevailing figures. Sheetings were somewhat dull. Mills, well booked ahead, are offering few spot goods and with orders reported as sufficient to run them for some time are not pressing sales. This trend was equally evident in sateens, twills and pajama checks. The new prices for [illegible]s and percales did not seem to have ch[illegible] demand.

The raw silk market was quiet and firm, with quotations unchanged from Tuesday's levels. Yokohama cabled that prices also were unchanged there on small transactions.

PRICES IRREGULAR IN TRADE ON NEW YORK CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—It was another dull day on the Curb Exchange, particularly up to midafternoon. The price movement throughout the great part of the time was irregular and fluctuations were narrow. The professional element was awaiting developments in the outside situation before renewing operations on either side of the market.

Gillette Safety Razor, after reaching a new high record in the previous session, was subjected to rather heavy realizing and dropped two points. Report that a stock dividend of 5 per cent had been declared payable June 1 to stockholders of record March 1 in addition to the regular quarterly $3 declaration brought about a recovery later and the stock held around its high prices.

Oil shares were bid up for a time and managed to retain the greater part of the gain. Standard Oil of Kentucky was one of the active leaders of the Standard group and gained 5 points at one time. Standard of Indiana also shared in the upward movement but the advance here was only fractional. Standard of Nebraska ran up sharply above 200, while Prairie Oil and Gas, selling the 200 per cent stock dividend, was quiet under 235. Prairie Pipe Line, selling the stock dividend, was firm at 112. Gulf Oil of Penna, Merritt Oil, Fensland and Maracaibo advanced, while changes in others of this group were unimportant.

Erratic fluctuations occurred in Cleveland Motor common. After declining more than a point to 30½, the stock jumped up sharply to 32 on very few orders, and held the greater part of the gain. Durant issues were the outstanding features in the motors section, the Delaware shares again establishing a new top on vigorous buying. Stutz and Gardner were others of this group to reach their best prices for the present movement.

Wish to Issue New Securities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Two subsidiary companies of the St. Louis-San Francisco System applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for permission to issue new securities to be turned over to the parent corporation. The Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham asked authorization for an issue of $112,684, while the Kansas City, Ft. Scott & Memphis sought permission to issue $1,127,128 also in promissory notes. Both represented that the St. Louis-San Francisco company had advanced them amounts in cash equal to the value of securities given, for additions and betterments on their lines.

COTTON PRICES ON HIGHER BASIS AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The cotton market was influenced early today by the continued steadiness of Liverpool, reiterated reports of an improved business in Manchester, and the firmer early running of foreign exchange rates. Brokers with Liverpool, Japanese and domestic trade connections were buyers and after opening steady at an advance of 15 to 19 points the market held firm with March selling at 26.74c and May at 26.9[illegible]c or about 22 to 25 points net higher. New Orleans was a buyer here, but there was some scattered Southern and local selling on the advance. Private cables reported an advance in Liverpool had been restricted by realizing and unfavorable political conditions, but that there was a good deal of trade calling and that Manchester reports were more favorable.

The early advance met a continuation of the selling, which has been prevalent around 26.90 to 27 for May contracts for several days. This checked the upward movement and the market turned easier under scattered liquidation. The European situation was an unsettling factor, and there were signs that part of recent selling had represented selling by holders on spot cotton in the South. March eased off to 26.57c and May to 26.75c, or within seven to 10 points of yesterday's closing, and prices were only a few points up from the lowest around midday.

The market turned firmer during the early afternoon on a reported more favorable view of the European news. This led to light covering and local buying, which sent March up to 26.72c and May to 26.91c or about 22 to 23 points net higher around 2 o'clock.

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Quiet strength was the characteristic of the trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. This strength was most clearly manifested in specialties in the trading toward the close. The favorites of the day like California Pete, Cosden, eBech Nut, May Department Stores, Sterling Products, Postum Cereal and Associated Oil left off well up to their top prices for the day. Outside of those dozen or so stocks there was very little interest manifested but the greater part of the industrial list closed well above the Tuesday final.

Steel shares were not affected one way or the other by the publication of the monthly tonnage figures showing a decrease of orders on the books of the Steel Corporation of 94,575 tons. This was too slight a change to be of any significance.

Stock prices started in higher, indicating that Tuesday's late weakness probably was the result of professional operations for the decline and not real weakness due to the European crisis. Later on efforts to get prices down were renewed with occasionl success in the more sensitive industrials.

The special buying which has been reported going on for the last two weeks or more in Calif Pete was again in evidence. May Dept. Stores was actively bought while Cosden again was the feature of the oil stocks.

The only real weakness was that in Brooklyn Rapid Transit in which selling followed a report that the reorganization plan would involve a $10 assessment.

Nash Motors was quite active and strong on a report that the dividends at the rate of $10 a share had been declared on the new stock. The 1922 earnings of $7,613,246 after expenses and Federal taxes were said to be equivalent, after deducting preferred dividends to about $135 a share of the 54,600 shares of common outstanding at the end of the year and nearly $24 a share on the present capital stock. These earnings compared with $6,226,078 in 1921.

The evidently strong tone in the general stock market led to some increase in speculative activities as the afternoon went on. In all cases where stocks were bid up, it was for purely special reasons. It was stocks of the specialty type which absorbed attention during the late afternoon. The rest of the industrial list did little one way or the other, and railroad shares up to near the close were quite neglected. Speculative favorites like Baldwin Locomotive and Studebaker, which had been under pressure early in the day, rebounded easily.

The stock market made its high prices in the last hour and was quite as strong then as on the surface it had been weak at the same stage yesterday.

The Bond Market.

In the face of a generally weak market French bonds continue their recovery today. Whether this was in sympathy with the strength in franc exchange or whether it was due to the fact that selling late last week and on Monday had been overdone cannot be said. Certainly there was nothing in the news from abroad to change the general situation. Other foreign bonds shared the improved tone shown by the French issues. The Serbian 8s were an exception. These made another new low. United Kingdom 5½s of 1929 were very active at higher prices and Swiss 8s also improved.

Outside the foreign list the feature was the decline in the St. Paul issues. Practically all the obligations of that road sold lower. In fact conditions here resembled those prevailing in the closing days of December when the declines were genrally ascribed to the recording of losses for income tax purposes. Of course, no such explanation suffices today. All the St. Paul issues sold lower including the Puget Sound 4s. Seaboard Air Line 6s, among speculative issues, and Northern Pacific prior lien 4s, among high grade investment bonds, were soft. Erie prior lien 4s and New York Westchester and Boston 4½s among speculative issues and General Electric 5s among the high grades were higher. For the general weakness in the market the best explanation, according to one view, was the competition from new offerings. Under the flood of new issues the old necessarily suffered. Liberty bonds again moved irregularly. The treasury 4¼s sold above par and then reacted. Judging from the action of government bonds the market for the highest grade of securities is stabilized for the moment. It is quite different with speculative issues.

Grain prices generally were higher in late trading on the Merchants' Exchange today. May corn was a firm feature. The volume of business was restricted. Liverpol closed ⅛ to ¼d lower.

The market closed firm. Talk of unseasonable waether in Southwest was a factor in wheat, while discussion of anticipated falling off in corn movement influnced the price of that grain.

In the local cash grain market sound soft wheat was scarce and firm; common qualities dragging. Hard was unchanged to 1c easier. Cash corn was steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair. Cash oats were steady to ½c higher. Demand was good.

The early market showed a limited range of prices. Wheat was influenced some by the ¼d to ⅜d lower range at Liverpool. Corn was steady. The cash market situation is a factor in that market. May wheat opened at $1.16½@1.16⅝, July wheat $1.09, May corn 71¾c and July corn 71½c.

Grain exports for the week ending Jan. 6, as reported by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates (wheat inspected out under American grades only and does not include flour) were as follows: Atlantic ports—Wheat, 1,514,000; corn, 1,115,000; barley, 478,000; rye, 1,058,000. Gulf ports—Wheat, 615,000; corn, 278,000; oats, 12,000; rye, 137,000. Pacific ports—Wheat, 619,000; corn, 27,000; barley, 251,000. Total, wheat, 2,748,000; corn, 1,420,000; oats, 12,000; barley, 729,000; rye, 1,195,000. Previous week, wheat, 1,913,000; corn, 1,140,000; oats, 72,000; barley, 269,000; rye, 973,000. Total July 1 to date, wheat, 95,833,000; corn, 31,007,000; oats, 12,714,000; barley, 16,809,000; rye, 21,529,000.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 883 cars of wheat, compared with 1525 a week ago and 922 last year. Minneapolis today receiving 403 cars, Duluth 174 and Winnipeg 306.

Local wheat receipts, which were 125,075 bushels, compared with 200,400 a week ago and 396,000 last year, included 61 cars local and 43 through. Corn receipts, which were 101,400 bushels compared with 192,400 a week ago and 169,000 last year, included 60 cars local and 18 through. Oats receipts, which were 146,000 bushels, compared with 184,000 a week ago and 114,000 last year, included 39 cars local and 34 through. Hay receipts were 195 tons local and 133 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today were 1,029,619 bushels of wheat, 731,585 bushels of corn, 280,350 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 286,118 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 8754 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 145,981 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 201,479 bushels of No. 2 corn, 103,954 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 125,469 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 96,148 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 74,288 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 586 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The action of the wheat market was like a mechanical top; it seemed to go down so far and then turned back. Trade was almost entirely local in character. There was a disposition shown to put out short lines at the start because of the dull trade, but support on the dips was sufficient to absorb the offerings and force pit shorts to cover at higher prices later. Local shippers reported a good milling inquiry for wheat, with red wheat premiums 1c better. Export trade was light. Competition from Argentina is developing. Buenos Aires showing a 3c decline yesterday and had another dip of ½c at the start today.

More business was transacted in the last half hour than through the entire session. It seemed that the short interest in the market apparently was much larger than the trade had suspected and it looked as if the shorts all wanted to cover at the same time. Local cash sales were 66,000 bu of wheat, including 10,000 bu No. 2 hard in store at 3c under May, 98,000 bu of corn, 98,000 bu of oats, and 3000 bu of barley. Export corn bids received shortly before the close were 1⅛c over May track New York, but the lowest offer was 12c over May.

Wheat became active today during the last 30 minutes of the session and the market developed strength on covering by shorts. Resting spots were ⅜c to 1⅛c higher. May $1.19⅛ to $1.19⅜, July $1.12 to $1.12⅛, Sept. $1.08½.

There was just enough business in corn to establish quotations. Trend was similar to that in wheat, but fluctuations were narrow. Cash corn basis was ¼c easier at the start, but recovered later. Shipping demand was moderate and export bids were out of line. Receipts continue heavy.

Corn finished ⅜c to 1⅛c higher on coverings by shorts induced by the wheat strength, May 72⅜c to 72½c, July 72¼c to 72⅜c, Sept. 72c.

Oats were neglected and price trend was similar to other grains. Domestic shipping demand was light.

Oats had a sharp bulge, closing ½c to 1⅛c higher; also on covering by shorts. May 45⅜c, July 32½c, Sept. 40½c.

Provisions rallied with grain. Lard closed 5 higher to 2½ lower, and ribs 17½ to 22½ higher.

Circulars on Request

CALDWELL & COMPANY

CATTLE OFFERINGS LIMITED AND MARKET IS STRONG

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Jan. 10.—Receipts today, estimated: Cattle and calves, 4000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 500; horses and mules, 1200.

CATTLE—A strong and active market prevailed here today for the modest offerings on sale, and an early clearance was made, values, in some favored cases, looked 10c to 15c and as much as 25c higher. The top was $10 per cwt, paid for a short load of steers and heifers. Veal Calves—This market was full steady, top $11.50 and the bulk of best bringing $11 to $11.25.

Quotations—Medium to good beef steers, bulk, $7.75 to $9; common to medium beef steers, bulk, $6 to $7.75; medium to good lightweight yearlings, bulk, $7.50 to $9; common to medium grass yearlings, bulk, $4 to $7.50; butcher cows, bulk, $4 to $5.75; cutter cows, range, $3 to $3.50; canner cows, range, $2.35 to $2.75; beef bulls heavy, bulk, $4.50 to $5; medium to good bologna bulls, bulk, $3.75 to $4.75; stocker and feeder steers, bulk, $4 to $6.75.

HOGS—The day's supply estimated at 25,000 head was liberal for the midweek session. The three-day run locally amounts to 73,000 head, an increase of 26,000 over the first half of last week and of 10,000 over same period a year ago. Today's arrivals carried a larger proportion of butcher and heavy finished hogs than arrived on previous days of the week. Choice lights and pigs were offered less freely.

Market on shipping hogs, lights and pigs opened fairly early and generally 5@10c lower. As the later trains brought in so many good weight hogs the market on the lighter shipping grades improved and by the middle of the forenoon was right active and not over steady to 5c lower. At that time a top of $8.90 was registered, with most of the sales at 140@180 pound hogs ranging $8.70@8.85. A few early sales of butcher hogs around 200 pounds at $8.70@8.75 were not over 10c lower, but trade was quite slow and market soon ruled 10@15c lower, with buyers talking bearish. The big packers held off the early market altogether and shippers did not seem to want many hogs carrying above 180 or 190 pounds in weight. Pig trade was fairly active from the start, with buyers showing a preference from the choice native offerings, these selling readily at steady prices. Strong weight pigs 110@125 pounds sold largely at $8.25@8.50, with lighter pigs at $7.75@8 and the peewees at $6@7.25, according to quality. Southern pigs continue to sell at a sharp discount under natives. Early trade in rough packer sows moderately active and prices steady sales being mainly at $7.40@7.50. Stags showed a range of $6@6.50.

SHEEP—Again the supply was very small, in fact so small that no real good line could be obtained on the market. As near could be judged it was a good, strong trade for the better offerings and slow steady on others. Some clipped Western yearlings weighing 81 lbs. sold at $11.40 and some lambs brought $14.65, while best sheep went at $7.50. These prices are much the same as those paid on former days of this week. Choppers and bucks are going at $2.50@4. and canners $1@2.

HORSES AND MULES—Markets ruled active the three days this week at full steady and in some cases strong prices. The commision run of horses did not exceed 350 head, although mules in first hands totaled 2800, or the largest in many months.

French Government Issues Make Further Recovery—Foreign Exchange Market Is Firm—Call Money Eases

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Quiet continued to rule in the financial markets today, the undertone remaining steady. Stocks were dull throughout and the declines forced in yesterday's last hour attack was just about made good. Bonds were irregular, gilt-edged issues being firm, French Governments making a further recovery and speculative rails showing some weakness. Call money, after opening at 4¾ per cent, was reduced to 4½ per cent at the start of the second hour and to 4 per cent before the close of the noon hour.

Foreign Exchange Firm.

"Firmness continued among the foreign exchanges, the market paying no attention to the announcement of the withdrawal of the American troops from the Rhine. As for the last several days, business was very quiet, the advances reflecting a scarcity of offerings. Sterling was strong in London before the opening here and then moved up to $4.66⅜ which was 1 cent above the previous close. London observers, meanwhile, reported considerable flow of funds to that center, foreigners apparently considering their balances safer in sterling than in the currencies of the continental countries. Such a movement naturally would have the effect of raising sterling in terms of dollars.

"Sterling was by no means, however, the only European exchange to rise at New York. French francs continued their recovery and were up 22 points on the day at 6.96½ cents. Italian lire rallied 14 points to 5.00 cents and Belgian francs kept step with those of France. Even the German mark, which touched a new low of .0091 of a cent in the late trading yesterday, firmed up 5 points. The currencies of the former neutral states were practically unchanged on this side of the water, which means, of course, that they lost ground in London.

"The market in cotton continued to be a narrow affair with prices generally higher. A rally at Liverpool found its reflection at the start here, but most of the advance was lost in the later trading. At a late price of 26.85 cents the May delivery was up 8 points on the day. Wheat, meanwhile, enjoyed a fairly good bulge. Unseasonable and variable weather in the Southwest has caused some apprehensions as to the likelihood of winter killing and prices appeared to react to this situation. May gained 1⅛ cents at $1.19⅝.

Steel Industry Situation.

"Reports from the steel industry indicate a maintenance of recent high rates of activity. Steel factories as a whole are still working at 50 per cent capacity and the Iron Age states that this rate is likely to be increased shortly. Buying is said to be little affected, furthermore, by fear of a coal strike on April 1 and the latter event is now considered less of a possibility. Publication of the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders of Dec. 31 shows a falling off of 95,000 tons as compared with the month before. This is the second consecutive decrease in the volume of the corporation's unfinished business, but it must be remembered that the present amount is still approximately three-quarters of a million tons greater than that on hand Aug. 31 before the large rail workers were booked."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—It was another dull day on the Curb Exchange, particularly up to midafternoon. The price movement throughout the great part of the time was irregular and fluctuations were narrow. The professional element was awaiting developments in the outside situation before renewing operations on either side of the market.

Gillette Safety Razor, after reaching a new high record in the previous session, was subjected to rather heavy realizing and dropped two points. Report that a stock dividend of 5 per cent had been declared payable June 1 to stockholders of record March 1 in addition to the regular quarterly $3 declaration brought about a recovery later and the stock hold around its high prices.

Oil shares were bid up for a time and managed to retain the greater part of the gain. Standard Oil of Kentucky was one of the active leaders of the Standard group and gained 5 points at one time. Standard of Indiana also shared in the upward movement but the advance here was only fractional. Standard of Nebraska ran up sharply above 200, while Prairie Oil and Gas, selling the 200 per cent stock dividend, was quiet under 235. Prairie Pipe Line, selling the stock dividend, was firm at 112. Gulf Oil of Penna, Merritt Oil, Fensland and Maracaibo advanced, while changes in others of this group were unimportant.

Erratic fluctuations occurred in Cleveland Motor common. After declining more than a point to 30¼, the stock jumped up sharply to 32 on very few orders, and held the greater part of the gain. Durant issues were the outstanding features in the motors section, the Delaware shares again establishing a new top on vigorous buying. Stutz and Gardner were others of this group to reach their best prices for the present movement.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Steadiness was the prevailing characteristic of the cotton cloths market here today. Small lots of print cloths were disposed of at prevailing figures. Sheetings were somewhat dull. Mills, well booked ahead, are offering few spot goods and with orders reported as sufficient to run them for some time are not pressing sales. This trend was equally evident in sateens, twills and pajama checks. The new prices for [illegible] and percales did not seem to have ch[illegible] demand.

The raw silk market was quiet and firm, with quotations unchanged from Tuesday's levels. Yokohama cabled that prices also were unchanged there on small transactions.

Wish to Issue New Securities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Two subsidiary companies of the St. Louis-San Francisco System applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for permission to issue new securities to be turned over to the parent corporation. The Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham asked authorization for an issue of $112,684, while the Kansas City, Ft. Scott & Memphis sought permission to issue $1,127,128 also in promissory notes. Both represented that the St. Louis-San Francisco company had advanced them amounts in cash equal to the value of securities given, for additions and betterments on their lines.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—The wool market here continued to be a seller's market today with mill men finding it increasingly difficult to get the grades and quantities they desire. Japan is reported to be actively buying in Australia and the South American markets are strong. Prices for staple Montana and fine medium territory are very firm.

COTTON PRICES ON HIGHER BASIS AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The cotton market was influenced early today by the continued steadiness of Liverpool, reiterated reports of an improved business in Manchester, and the firmer early running of foreign exchange rates. Brokers with Liverpool, Japanese and domestic trade connections were buyers and after opening steady at an advance of 13 to 19 points the market held firm with March selling at 26.74c and May at 26.91c, or about 22 to 25 points net higher. New Orleans was a buyer here, but there was some scattered Southern and local selling on the advance. Private cables reported an advance in Liverpool had been restricted by realizing and unfavorable political conditions, but that there was a good deal of trade calling and that Manchester reports were more favorable.

The early advance met a continuation of the selling, which has been prevalent around 26.90 to 27 for May contracts for several days. This checked the upward movement and the market turned easier under scattered liquidation. The European situation was an upsetting factor, and there were reports that part of recent selling had represented selling by holders on spot cotton in the South. March eased off to 26.57c and May to 26.75c, or within seven to 10 points of yesterday's closing, and prices were only a few points up from the lowest around midday.

The market turned firmer during the early afternoon on a reported more favorable view of the European news. This led to further covering and local buying, which sent March up to 26.72c and May to 26.91c or about 22 to 23 points net higher around 2 o'clock.

Cotton futures closed steady: Jan. $26.50; March, $26.70; May, $26.87; July, $26.60; Oct. $24.89.

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Quiet strength was the characteristic of the trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. This strength was most clearly manifested in specialties in the trading toward the close. The favorites of the day like California Pete, Cosden, eBech Nut, May Department Stores, Sterling Products, Postum Cereal and Associated Oil left off well up to their top prices for the day. Outside of those dozen or so stocks there was very little interest manifested but the greater part of the industrial list closed well above the Tuesday final.

Steel shares were not affected one way or the other by the publication of the monthly tonnage figures showing a decrease of orders on the books of the Steel Corporation of 94,575 tons. This was too slight a change to be of any significance.

Stock prices started in higher, indicating that Tuesday's late weakness probably was the result of professional operations for the decline and not real weakness due to the European crisis. Later on efforts to get prices down were renewed with occasionl success in the more sensitive industrials.

The special buying which has been reported going on for the last two weeks or more in Calif Pete was again in evidence. May Dept. Stores was actively bought while Cosden again was the feature of the oil stocks.

The only real weakness was that in Brooklyn Rapid Transit in which selling followed a report that the reorganization plan would involve a $10 assessment.

Nash Motors was quite active and strong on a report that the dividends at the rate of $10 a share had been declared on the new stock. The 1922 earnings of $7,-613,246 after expenses and Federal taxes were said to be equivalent, after deducting preferred dividends to about $135 a share of the 54,600 shares of common outstanding at the end of the year and nearly $24 a share on the present capital stock. These earnings compared with $6,-226,078 in 1921.

The evidently strong tone in the general stock market led to some increase in speculative activities as the afternoon went on. In all cases where stocks were bid up, it was for purely special reasons. It was stocks of the specialty type which absorbed attention during the late afternoon. The rest of the industrial list did little one way or the other, and railroad shares up to near the close were quite neglected. Speculative favorites like Baldwin Locomotive and Studebaker, which had been under pressure early in the day, rebounded easily.

The stock market made its high prices in the last hour and was quite as strong then as on the surface it had been weak at the same stage yesterday.

The Bond Market.

In the face of a generally weak market French bonds continue their recovery today. Whether this was in sympathy with the strength in franc exchange or whether it was due to the fact that selling late last week and on Monday had been overdone cannot be said: Certainly there was nothing in the news from abroad to change the general situation. Other foreign bonds shared the improved tone shown by the French issues. The Serbian 8s were an exception. These made another new low. United Kingdom 5½s of 1929 were very active at higher prices and Swiss 8s also improved.

Outside the foreign list the feature was the decline in the St. Paul issues. Practically all the obligations of that road sold lower. In fact conditions here resembled those prevailing in the closing days of December when the declines were genrally ascribed to the recording of losses for income tax purposes. Of course, no such explanation suffices today. All the St. Paul issues sold lower including the Puget Sound 4s. Seaboard Air Line 6s, among speculative issues, and Northern Pacific prior lien 4s, among high grade investment bonds, were soft. Erie prior lien 4s and New York Westchester and Boston 4½s among speculative issues and General Electric 5s among the high grades were higher. For the general weakness in the market the best explanation, according to one view, was the competition from new offerings. Under the flood of new issues the old necessarily suffered. Liberty bonds again moved irregularly. The treasury 4¼s sold above par and then reacted. Judging from the action of government bonds the market for the highest grade of securities is stabilized for the moment. It is quite different with speculative issues.

Grain prices generally were higher in late trading on the Merchants' Exchange today. May corn was a firm feature. The volume of business was restricted. Liverpol closed ⅛ to ¼d lower.

The market closed firm. Talk of unseasonable waether in Southwest was a factor in wheat, while discussion of anticipated falling off in corn movement influenced the price of that grain.

In the local cash grain market sound soft wheat was scarce and firm; common qualities dragging. Hard was unchanged to 1c easier. Cash corn was steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair. Cash oats were steady to ½c higher. Demand was good.

The early market showed a limited range of prices. Wheat was influenced some by the ¼d to ⅜d lower range at Liverpool. Corn was steady. The cash market situation is a factor in that market. May wheat opened at $1.16½@1.16⅝, July wheat $1.09, May corn 71¾c and July corn 71½c.

Grain exports for the week ending Jan. 6, as reported by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates (wheat inspected out under American grades only and does not include flour) were as follows: Atlantic ports—Wheat, 1,514,000; corn, 1,115,000; barley, 478,000; rye, 1,058,000. Total, wheat, 2,748,000; corn, 1,420,000; oats, 12,000; barley, 729,000; rye, 1,195,000. Previous week, wheat, 1,913,000; corn, 1,140,000; oats, 72,000; barley, 269,000; rye, 973,000. Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today were 1,029,619 bushels of wheat, 731,-585 bushels of corn, 280,350 bushels of oats. Special to the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The action of the wheat market was like a mechanical top; it seemed to go down so far and then turned back. Trade was almost entirely local in character. There was a disposition shown to put out short lines at the start because of the dull trade, but support on the dips was sufficient to absorb the offerings and force pit shorts to cover at higher prices later. Local shippers reported a good milling inquiry for wheat, with red wheat premiums 1c better. Export trade was light. Competition from Argentina is developing. Buenos Aires showing a 3c decline yesterday and had another dip of ¼c at the start today.

More business was transacted in the last half hour than through the entire session. It seemed that the short interest in the market apparently was much larger than the trade had suspected and it looked as if the shorts all wanted to cover at the same time. Local cash sales were 66,000 bu of wheat, including 10,000 bu No. 2 hard in store at 3c under May; 98,000 bu of corn, 98,000 bu of oats, and 3000 bu of barley. Export corn bids received shortly before the close were 11⅝c over May track New York, but the lowest offer was 12c over May.

Wheat became active today during the last 30 minutes of the session and the market developed strength on covering by shorts. Resting spots were ¾c to 1¼c higher. May $1.19⅝ to $1.19¾, July $1.12 to $1.12⅛, Sept. $1.08½.

There was just enough business in corn to establish quotations. Trend was similar to that in wheat, but fluctuations were narrow. Cash corn basis was ¼c easier at the start, but recovered later. Shipping demand was moderate and export bids were out of line. Receipts continue heavy.

Corn finished ¾c to 1¼c higher on coverings by shorts induced by the wheat strength. May 72⅜c to 72½c, July 72¼c to 72⅜c, Sept. 72c.

Oats were neglected and price trend was similar to other grains. Domestic shipping demand was light.

Oats had a sharp bulge, closing ⅞c to 1¼c higher, also on covering by shorts. May 45½c, July 32½c, Sept. 40½c.

Provisions were lower. Locals sold on the decline in hogs and weakness in cottonseed oil.

Provisions rallied with grain. Lard closed 5 higher to 2½ lower, and ribs 17½ to 22½ higher.

CALDWELL & COMPANY

CATTLE OFFERINGS LIMITED AND MARKET IS STRONG

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Jan. 10.—Receipts today, estimated: Cattle and calves, 4000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 500; horses and mules, 1200.

CATTLE—A strong and active market prevailed here today for the modest offerings on sale, and an early clearance was made. values, in some favored cases, looked 10c to 15c and as much as 25c higher. The top was $10 per cwt. paid for a short load of steers and heifers. Veal Calves—This market was full steady, top $11.50 and the bulk of best bringing $11 to $11.25.

Quotations—Medium to good beef steers, bulk, $7.75 to $9; common to medium beef steers, bulk, $6 to $7.75; medium to good lightweight yearlings, bulk, $7.50 to $9; common to medium grass yearlings, bulk, $4 to $7.50; butcher cows, bulk, $4 to $5.75; cutter cows, range, $3 to $3.50; canner cows, range, $2.35 to $2.75; beef bulls heavy, bulk, $4.50 to $5; medium to good bologna bulls, bulk, $3.75 to $4.75; stocker and feeder steers, bulk, $4 to $6.75.

HOGS—The day's supply estimated at 25,000 head was liberal for the midweek session. The three-day run locally amounts to 73,000 head, an increase of 26,000 over the first half of last week and of 10,000 over same period a year ago. Today's arrivals carried a larger proportion of butcher and heavy finished hogs than arrived on previous days of the week. Choice lights and pigs were offered less freely.

Market on shipping hogs, lights and pigs opened fairly early and generally 5@10c lower. As the later trains brought in so many good weight hogs the market on the lighter shipping grades improved and by the middle of the forenoon was right active and not over steady to 5c lower. At that time a top of $8.90 was registered, with most of the sales at 140@180 pound hogs ranging $8.70@8.85. A few early sales of butcher hogs around 200 pounds at $8.70@8.75 were not over 10c lower, but trade was quite slow and market soon ruled 10@15c lower, with buyers talking bearish. The big packers held off the early market altogether and shippers did not seem to want many hogs carrying above 180 or 190 pounds in weight. Pig trade was fairly active from the start, with buyers showing a preference from the choice native offerings, these selling readily at steady prices. Strong weight pigs 110@125 pounds sold largely at $8.25@8.50, with lighter pigs at $7.75@8 and the tee-wees at $6@7.25, according to quality. Southern pigs continue to sell at a sharp discount under natives. Early trade in rough packer sows moderately active and prices steady sales being mainly at $7.40@7.50. Stags showed a range of $6@6.50.

SHEEP—Again the supply was very small, in fact so small that no real good line could be obtained on the market. As near could be judged it was a good, strong trade for the better offerings and slow steady on others. Some clipped Western yearlings weighing 81 lbs. sold at $11.40 and some lambs brought $14.65, while best sheep went at $7.50. These prices are much the same as those paid on former days of this week. Choppers and bucks are going at $2.50@4, and canners $1@2.

HORSES AND MULES—Markets ruled active the three days this week at full steady and in some cases strong prices. The commision run of horses did not exceed 350 head, although mules in first hands totaled 2800, or the largest in many months.

Weekly Vegetable Review.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Loyalty to the domestic onion, which had been lagging behind its foreign counterpart, took a spurt the first week in January, when shipments increased 60 per cent, according to the weekly fruit and vegetable review of the Federal Bureau of agricultural economics, made public today. With moderate supplies, the leading markets showed price increases of 25 cents a sack. Chicago quoted best Colorado yellow varieties at $2.50 a sack, while California browns were held strong in Fort Worth at a range of from $2.75 to $2.90. AKRON, O., Jan. 10.—A 7-months-old brown terrier is being proclaimed the heroine of Akron. The pup, which answers to the name of Mitti, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilkins and their seven children, as well as two white mice, owe their lives.

When fire broke out in the Wilkins home early yesterday, Mitti aroused Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins by tugging at the bed clothes and barking. They carried their children to a neighbor's, after which Mitti was missed.

Firemen said they found Mitti in the house trying to rescue the mice, her playmates.

F. H. T.—(1) Rules governing compounding of words would be too long to publish in this column. The complete rules and method for compounding words can be read in the New Standard Dictionary at any Public Library. (2) The words, cranium, chapeau, cubit, cilia are words of every-day usage and not considered strictly foreign. You will find them listed in any dictionary as part of the English language.

INFORMATION. — Should an American have occasion to write to Royalty, he would begin: "Your Majesty," and end, "I have the honor to remain your majesty's most obedient, John Blank." The title would be Her Majesty the Queen of the Belgians, Her Majesty the Queen of Rumania or Her Majesty the Queen of Bulgaria. 2. To secure addresses of firms or residences in Asia or Oceania write the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Commerce Department, Washington, D. C.

SALLY.—Russian patties are made as follows: 1 pint oysters, 3 tablespoons butter, 4½ tablespoons flour, ½ cup chicken stock, ½ cup cream, ½ tablespoon vinegar, ¾ tablespoon lemon juice, yolks of 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon grated horseradish, 2 tablespoons capers, salt and pepper. Parboil the oysters, drain and reserve the liquor; there should be one-half cup. Make a sauce of butter, flour, stock, oyster liquor and cream; add the yolks of eggs, seasonings, and salt and pepper to taste. Add the oysters and as soon as they are thoroughly heated fill patty shells with the mixture.

T. C.—The ranking hands in a poker game are—royal flush, straight flush, four of a kind, full house, flush, straight, three of a kind, two pairs, and one pair. Nothing beats a royal flush in poker, another royal flush ties it, but the suits are all of the same rank. For example—A man having a royal flush of hearts only ties the man having a royal flush in diamonds. If the man next to the dealer has openers (jacks or better) he does not necessarily have to open the pot. He can pass and draw cards when someone else opens. Many times a player tries in this way to conceal the strength of his hand. It is well to remember when playing that curiosity as to the strength of another player's hand is usually expensive.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MOTHER.—Milk should be the basis of the diet but some farinaceous food, bread, beef or mutton juice, eggs and scraped fruit, may be given to the infant. It is of great importance that the transition from a purely food diet to one of solid food should be made slowly.

When the treatment is completed all of the above mentioned clothing must again be replaced by clean clothing and the clothing used during the treatment removed and well boiled, to prevent reinfection, and the outer clothing ironed by a very hot iron, especially about the neck and the cords of the sleeves. 2. Take a hot bath of soap and water, using and rubbing well with a coarse wash rag, to break down any lesion on the skin in which the itch might be lodged. No other baths until the treatment is completed. 3. Rub in thoroughly in every inch of the skin below the chin, the following ointment, which ointment should be well made and smooth, night and morning until 5 rubbings have been done: Washed sulphur 4 drachms, balsam of peru 4 drachms, lanolin 2 ounces, vaseline 2 ounces. Spoonful for a Penny Brings Quick Relief

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

A SCIENTIFIC test has now proven what Dr. Caldwell of Monticello asserted many years ago, that constipation will slow you up fully 25 per cent. The test was made by Dr. Donaldson of Loma Linda upon four men in the prime of life who deliberately went without a bowel movement for four days. Within 48 hours the men had coated tongue and foul breath, cankers in the mouth, no appetite, restless sleep, indigestion, headache, depression, nervousness, cramps. The blood pressure was up 28 per cent. It is just this that Dr. Caldwell has preached to his patients in private and to the public through the printed word ever since he began the practice of his specialty, diseases of the stomach and bowels, back in 1875.

After observing for years the satisfactory effect of his prescription for constipation, he placed it in drug stores in 1892, a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That was 30 years ago, and today over 10 million bottles are bought annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. You will find it in any drug store you enter, a generous-size bottle costing you less than a cent a dose.

Every member of the family from the infants to the grandparents can use it with safety. It is gentle and mild. The formula is on the package. Mrs. Roy Cook of Bellefontaine, O., has been giving it to her 5-months old baby, who now weighs 19 pounds; and Mr. J. B. Dawson of Brinson, Ga., declares it the best laxative his family has ever found. Try a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for constipation or any of its symptoms. The results will delight you. And the cost is only one cent a dose.

MAN WHO FOUGHT IN MANY BATTLES DIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 10.—The death here recently of Capt. Lawrence P. O'Brien ended a career filled from beginning to end with adventure and romance. Plunging into the "thick" of the Civil War in 1861, from the ordinary life of a bricklayer's helper, he advanced to the rank of Captain. Then he took up the cause of the Fenians in Ireland and almost paid the supreme penalty. Escaping death at the end of a rope, Capt. O'Brien took one more step to help Ireland by organizing and conducting an expedition to Australia which succeeded in freeing Irish prisoners confined there for their part in the Fenian uprisings.

Capt. O'Brien was born in Ireland April 7, 1842, one of seven children, and was brought here by his parents in 1852. He was educated in St. Patrick's parochial School, the first in this city, and then entered his father's business to learn a trade. As soon as he could he joined a local military organization. His training here stood him in good stead.

Enlisted in Civil War.

O'Brien enlisted in Company B, Ninth Connecticut Volunteers, at the outbreak of the war, after seeing some of his comrades march away. His regiment was made up of Irishmen from all over the State, being built around the Emmet Guards, that had been organized in several towns before the war. Young O'Brien could handle a rifle to perfection.

A commission came to O'Brien in October, 1861, and a year afterward he was advanced to Captain. His promotion was for meritorious conduct in the battle of St. James, Louisiana, which, while it appears only as a skirmish in the records, was to young O'Brien and his comrades a great fight. O'Brien fell wounded, rose, and led his men to attack and captured a Southern camp with much booty.

Pass Christian, Miss. saw him in action so strongly that he was mentioned for gallantry. Then he fought at New Orleans, being there when the Union forces took the city. Fort St. Philip, Vicksburg and Baton Rouge all saw him in the thick of action. The battles of Winchester, Fisher's Hill and Cedar Creek fell to his lot.

In Fenian Movement.

Once the war was ended Capt. O'Brien took up the Fenian movement with his whole heart. He went across and managed to land in Ireland, carrying dispatches from friends of Ireland in this country and a large sum of gold for their aid. Many young Americans were ready to cross the seas to aid Ireland in the late 60s, and Capt. O'Brien was their agent.

Visiting here and there in Ireland and getting in touch with those who desired aid, Capt. O'Brien was betrayed into the hands of the British and was thrust into prison. His outlook was dark enough then, but aided by Irish friends, he escaped prison. He hid in ditches by day and was passed by underground routes at night until he reached a port. Here, in a port he never named, he was put on board a lumber vessel bound for France and he hid beneath the cargo, ever in danger of being crushed, even if the ship was not boarded by British sailors.

Making Paris safely, Capt. O'Brien was again among Irish compatriots. A conference there led to a decision that the cause was hopeless and he turned his attention to sight-seeing for some weeks. Then he returned to his home in Connecticut and settled down to business. All sorts of building jobs awaited the firm of O'Brien & Son, and Capt. O'Brien speedily built up a business second to none in the rapidly growing city of New Haven. Peace presented its chances and the youth seized them.

The Catalpa Expedition.

The Catalpa Expedition which released British prisoners from the South Seas prison camps of the British Empire has been described in a copyrighted volume by the heroic Capt. Anthony of New Bedford. Capt. O'Brien never tired of this affair, ranking it above his Civil War experiences in value.

Years afterward he learned that Anthony had a mortgage on his home in New Bedford. So Capt. O'Brien rallied his friends throughout Connecticut and raised enough money to pay off the mortgage. A theater in New Bedford was hired and the occasion was made a great celebration, of which Capt. Anthony had no advance word, though he lived within a short distance of the theater.

Capt. O'Brien was a member of several New York societies, including the American Irish Society, Sons of Irish Freedom, Old Irish Brotherhood and Friends of Irish Freedom. Locally he belonged to the G. A. R., New Haven Colony Historical Society, Army and Navy Club, Knights of St. Patrick and Robert Emmet Club.

Joplin Forbids "Cake-Eater" Walk.

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 10.—City commissioners have passed an ordinance prohibiting "cheek-to-cheek" dancing, the "cake-eater" walk and other "holds and clinches." The ordinance was presented by Mayor Snapp and passed without a dissenting vote. A maximum $300 fine is provided in the ordinance. The preservation of public peace, health and safety" made it necessary, the mayor said, who declared that public morals were in danger.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK FOR 1923 IS BRIGHTER

The conservatism formerly exercised by the buying public has given way in the past few months to prodigious buying. This is attributed to the fact that prices are on the upgrade.

Prices quoted by the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles, are the lowest possible for high-grade furniture. Because of their low rent location and because they maintain their own factory, they are able to sell for less. Select now before prices advance.

A DAILY DOUBLE PA[GE]

"My Observations on Coue's Personality and Methods"

By

An American Girl Pupil of Noted Autosuggestion Teacher

"DAY BY DAY IN EVERY WAY I AM GETTING BETTER AND BETTER"

In connection with a new and exclusive series of articles by M. Coue, to be printed on this page, the Post-Dispatch has obtained several remarkable sketches of the famous Frenchman's personality, his intimate life, habits and mode of teaching, written by Miss Laura Matthews, an American girl recently treated by his methods.

Miss Matthews was sent to France early in January, 1919, as a representative of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, to aid in the work of reconstruction following the war. Her labors took her to the Chateau-Thierry region, where as a worker for the Centenary Committee of the Methodist Church she was given charge of the reconstruction of three French villages. While directing a gang of German prisoners she attempted to move a steel beam. It fell upon her, injuring her back in such a way that, after three months in hospitals, French surgeons predicted she would never walk again.

Though eventually able to falsify this prediction, she continued to suffer as the result of the accident. She was sent to Toulon, in the south of France, to recuperate. Determining to continue her work in spite of her weakened condition, she converted a huge hotel in the city into a settlement and amusement center, both creating and directing the various activities. American newspaper correspondents referred to her, in a number of newspaper stories, as "the Jane Addams of France."

But she had overtaxed her strength, as well as the resources of medical science, and she was threatened with a second and more complete prostration when she began attending the free clinics of Emile Coue in Nancy. She was not only completely cured, but her natural abilities and previous experience had fitted her to become one of his most valuable disciples.

By LAURA MATTHEWS.

THOSE who come from afar to the "Little Wizard of Nancy" for either study or cure are at first greatly dismayed and a little disappointed.

But he is so simple! Why have I come so far for only this? Do you feel that he really has a strong personality? And didn't you find those little exercises that he had us do with our hands rather infantile? Has he ever cured an organic disease? Is he not after all merely a fad with nervous women?

These are the daily contributions from newcomers. But the parting expression of gratitude is something totally different and it is this metamorphosis which takes place in the life of everyone who really comes in contact with Prof. Coue that I wish to touch upon—the living testimony of the man who goes about doing good.

I was ushered into his comfortable home by the kitchen maid, who informed me that M. Coue never received anyone in private but that if I wished to attend his public clinics I might do so. At that moment a short, rather stocky man entered the hall. He took a cigarette out from his browned mustache and held it between tobacco-stained fingers while he gave me the keen look of a trained observer. Then a waiting woman jumped up and exclaimed:

"Oh, M. Coue, you don't know how you have changed my life by ridding me of that pain in my shoulder which I have had for eight years; I have placed myself entirely under your control."

Not a Healer.

"But, my dear madame, that is just what you should not do. I am not a healer, I am merely a professor and I endeavor to teach my pupils how to cure themselves. If I had cured you, then the next time you were ill you would be obliged to leave your home in California and come to Nancy to be cured. I want you to develop within yourself the power of healing so that you will never have to return to me."

His small brown eyes danced. His face was radiant with a light seen only in people of consecrated lives. It is a young face tinged with a healthy coloring; white hair receding from a very high forehead. His eyes are often half-closed in scrutiny or laughter. The pointed white beard and sharp nose seem to follow the piercing eyes and somehow help to project into your consciousness the telling words with which he addresses you.

After the first meeting I left feeling that I had received no benefit whatsoever, but it might be my own fault. I would try it again. At the occasion of my next meal I remembered that I had decided to chew my food thoroughly. Naturally I had always known that I should, but since Professor Coue had planted the suggestion so firmly in my subconscious mind that I must chew my food, I was going to do it. And I did it most naturally.

I realized that all his suggestions regarding my sleep, my daily physical life, my state of mind, were all becoming slowly but surely realities. I became gay where I had been worried, composed where I had been irritable, happy where I had been unhappy. Something came welling up from my inner self and saying to my conscious mind, "You are going to have confidence in yourself. You are going to do your work well because it is easy and the thing you should do. You are going to approach more and more the strong physical self you should be." All my thoughts had become positive, cheerful and healthful.

But I told myself that it was simply my common sense working this change in me. Certainly it was not the force of M. Coue's personality; for he had none. I had never seen a man so absolutely detached and impersonal as he was.

But have not all of life's greatest truths come to us innocent of pretension and from most impersonal sources?

Childlike Simplicity.

A man of childlike simplicity, Professor has so cleansed himself of all personal interests that he has become an unchoked channel for a living truth, which if you but accept it in the same way in which it is given, will work miracles in your thought life. His great compassion and desire for service have become perfected in him because of his supreme detachment and self-effacement. Though extremely impersonal, he leaves you with the imprint of a great personality.

But his is not the personality of the man who has an idea of his own importance—who engages a press agent and has his secretary dismiss uninteresting people. His one maid of all work serves him occasionally when she is not occupied in ministering to his more self-centered visitors. I doubt if he ever heard of a publicity campaign such as we have in America. He never gives a rendezvous because he will speak to you at any time and place where you approach him and ask him a question.

His personality could better be compared to the sign on the roadway which climbs the mountain's side—the hand with the index finger pointing to the summit directing one on to a larger vista, a higher plain, a broader horizon. We do not always give due thanks to the sign posts which we encounter. We take their word that there are unimaginable beauties ahead, and if we follow their direction we usually find the summit. To me M. Coue has been a signpost pointing with infallible certitude to the summits of life.

He shares with all the truly great the ability to project himself into the experiences of others. In his clinic he knows how to offer just enough sympathy to strengthen the patient but never enough to weaken him. In an unsuccessful patient he is always able to tell them exactly wherein they fail to practice his method in order to bring about the desired results. Then his face will light up with that radiantly beautiful smile. He is optimistic because he sees the person cured. His spirit lifts as his imagination pictures to him that sick body restored to health. He looks as Jeanne d'Arc might have looked at the stake when she said "Blessed Jesus" and felt no longer the limitations of the flesh because her imagination had pictured to her the life beyond, free from suffering.

To a woman who is subject to periodical illness, he will remark, "Are you in pain now, Madame?"

"No, Monsieur."

"It is a great pity, Madame. For I should have the pleasure of giving you instant relief."

Then turning to her neighbor he will ask. 'And you, Madame. How is your rheumatism today. Are you in pain now?"

Victim of Imagination.

"My dear friends, you are all so eager to tell me that your pain is going to return a little later, and it will return because you wait for it. We are all victims of our imaginations. Eighty per cent of the people who limp are lame because they think they are."

In speaking of the medical profession, with which he works hand in hand, Prof. Coue once said, "Our minds are in the same relation to our bodies as the motor of an automobile is to the body of the car. The medical profession prepares men only with the knowledge of the latter. Applied psychology teaches us how to treat the engine. The two studies should supplement each other."

One time a woman who had had asthma for 20 years ran up stairs to prove to herself that she was cured.

"Miraculous!" was the comment of every one who witnessed it.

"But it is not miraculous at all," protested Monsieur Coue. "It is less miraculous and nearer the normal for a person to walk up stairs without difficulty than to walk up with difficulty."

If this sincere man has a gospel, it is the gospel of common sense, the catholicity of which is making itself felt today the world over. His discovery of the potency of the imagination over all the other faculties has led to a knowledge of the power of the subconscious mind. The knowledge can be used as a means of self-mastery by any and all who will open their minds to it. It is not a sect, a creed or a religion, but rather a means of self-development, a line of re-education from which you may benefit, be you Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile, believer or unbeliever in the potency of autosuggestion. For the foundation upon which M. Coue's method is based is so scientific that it can bear fruit if one will closely follow directions. Naturally confidence in the method will bring about quicker results.

Has autosuggestion ever effected an organic cure? This is the question asked most frequently. The writer has had the privilege of following the cases, subsequently mentioned, here in Nancy, and has talked to the patients themselves.

Bedridden Eight Years.

Four months ago an Englishwoman who had suffered from an injured spine, was brought to M. Coue in a bath chair. For the last eight years she has been bedridden, one side entirely paralyzed. The first visit she left her bath chair and walked across the room. Today she walks all over the city of Nancy.

There was in M. Coue's clinic a young man with congenital bone disease, whose legs at birth were malformed and who has passed a large part of his life in hospitals, the rest of his life in braces, using crutches and in constant pain. In two weeks of M. Coue's treatment he was entirely free from suffering. He now walks everywhere, priding himself that he is able to go upstairs without even the aid of the banisters. He is still lame but has perfect confidence in the ability of his subconscious mind to enable his hip joint to so adjust itself that his hip will some time function normally. It might amuse the skeptics to know that this young man has already attained in this short time what M. Coue told him at the beginning that he could never hope to achieve. Prof. Coue admits daily his own consternation at the results which his patients obtain.

A woman of Nancy came to Prof. Coue some few weeks ago for treatment for her general health so that she would be able to undergo an operation for tumor. He did not treat her for the tumor at all, but merely gave her suggestions for her general condition. The other day she returned to his clinic to report that when she had gone to the hospital for the operation, her physician discovered that she no longer had a tumor.

Prof. Coue is always most conservative in his comment upon the likelihood of cure in the case of each patient. He states his doubts and hopes most frankly, never giving any false grounds for encouragement. But he has learned with his pupils that the realm of the possible and reasonable in autosuggestion is constantly enlarging and its horizon receding. The training of the subconscious mind is a new field of endeavor, the limits of which none of us can as yet determine.

Subconscious Mind.

It is much the same as when we reached out into the air and harnessed a power which we call electricity and made it serve us, though we [illegible] ignorant of its source and composition. In the same way Prof. Coue has discovered the great power of the subconscious mind to translate ideas into realities and thus influence all conscious and unconscious action, be it of body or mind.

A man of lesser vision would have seen in this discovery an opportunity for self-dramatization as well as self-aggrandizement. But with the ideal of a true liberator, he has not been content to heal people while they were with him, but has endeavored to send away everyone so completely master of himself that he will be able to overcome all his physical and mental and moral imperfections.

This simple man, actuated by the purest motives, has been content to reap his reward in the hearts of the grateful patients whom he has helped rather than to paint his name high in the heavens for all to read. Through possessing little personal means he has somehow managed to give of himself and his time gratuitously for 20 years to all who called upon him. His work has remained free from the slightest taint of commercialism.

He who can and will free his brother from his own prison house of bondage—not by the force of an outside healer, but by the planting of an inner conviction in the heart of his brother that he is his own savior—is certainly a servant of both God and man.

With infinite love and compassion for the suffering and morally sick, this man arouses in the heart of every patient hope and self-knowledge until he brings about his own cure. Prof. Coue will live forever in the hearts of the thousands of patients who go from him not only well in body, but marvelously refreshed in spirit.

The Girl in the Corner Apartment

By May Christie.

II.—THE POSTMAN'S KNOCK

THE CHARACTERS.

CYNTHIA BRANT, village seamstress, pretty and young.

RUBY ALLISON, her gay and frivolous friend.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT.

RUBY ALLISON was officially engaged to one Alec Kerr, a steady, worthy young motor mechanic who worked in a large garage in the city.

"And how is your fiance?" Cynthia would ask, immensely interested.

Ruby would shrug her shoulders.

"Speaking of glorious times, I wasn't referring to him! He's a dear, of course, and just the sort to make a first-class husband. But the day of my 'settling down' is a long way off as yet. I'm making hay while the sun shines—"

Simple-hearted Cynthia would look perplexed. What on earth did Ruby mean? In what way was that pert young woman "making hay?"

Ruby would toss her red-gold head. She was a handsome girl, her beauty was rather blatant.

"Get out of this, and come to New York, Cynthia," she would say. "You remember that old lady you were so good to, last year, when she was visiting the village, and had a bad fall? Well, d'you know she lives right in the heart of New York, in the sweetest little apartment imaginable? I'm sure sh'd love to have you come and visit her. Why don't you write her? What was her name? Miss Marigold, or something—?"

"Miss Marilynn," corrected Cynthia. Then:

"Oh, no. I couldn't write her. It would be presumptuous."

"You silly girl! I long to shake you. You're a confirmed old stick-in-the-mud—you and your precious sewing!" Ruby's flashing smile robbed the words of their rudeness. "I've three times the energy and push you've got! D'you know, I'm private secretary to one of the cleverest business men in New York. Yes, it's a fact. The great Murray Stewart!" Here she made a little face. "He's as serious as an owl, and a real fiend for work! A woman-hater, too." She made another face. "But he pays me twenty-five dollars a week, which isn't bad. I spend every penny of it on clothes and amusements—except for five dollars, which my stepmother insists I give to her each week for board and lodging."

Tonight, Cynthia was awakened from her reverie by the sharp tap-tap of the postman's double knock. Letters for her were few and far between. But she was young enough to feel expectancy.

She rose and went to the door. Two square white envelopes lay upon the floor. She picked them up.

Both were for her. And both from New York.

The other envelope was typewritten. That seemed odd.

She went back into the parlor, sat down beside her work, and opened Ruby's letter first.

"Dearest Cynthia—I'm so fed up with life that I know it will do me good to scribble you a line. As a matter of fact, I'd like to come down and pay you a short visit. You're such a soothing influence. May I come at once? I've quarrelled with my family. No—not the first time, dear—the fiftieth!

"I think the quarrel might blow over were I to withdraw the sweet light of my presence from them for a period. Oh, those lovers—! We'd a glorious row last night over my friendship with Quentin O'Neill, artist. Quentin is 35, and fascinating. I took tea with him in his studio, and Alec, when he heard of it (which I didn't intend he should) was wildly jealous.

"I've also got into hot water with my employer, Murray Stewart. He says I'm scatter-brained. Today he had the cheek to tell me that I was paying no attention to my work.

"Dearest old Cynthia, I'm longing to confide my woes in you. Get a bed for me for a couple of nights, and we'll have a long talk.

"Yours woefully,

"RUBY."

Over this characteristic document, Cynthia had to smile.

"Dear Ruby! She's so goodhearted and impulsive, but she doesn't stop to think!"

She eyed the other envelope with interest. The paper was of excellent quality.

She tore the flap and drew the letter out. It bore the heading of a firm of city lawyers:

"Madame—

"Re the Late Miss Margaret Marilynn:

"Under the will of the abovementioned deceased, we are instructed to inform you that Miss Margaret Marilynn has bequeathed to you the lease of her small apartment in West Tenth street, New York. It is her wish that, for the remaining three years of the lease, you will reside there. The flat is furnished, and she bequeaths the furniture to you.

"Trusting that you will call on us in the near future, when we shall be glad to help you in any way possible, and to give you the key of the flat, we remain,

"Yours faithfully,

Gay Sports Costumes and Dainty French Taffetas, Features of Displays—Silk Bandanas in Gay Colors a Popular Fad.

PALM BEACH modes are blossoming forth in the show windows and dress departments of the shops. Models wearing the new hats and frocks stroll about in gay sports clothes and dainty French taffetas. Their observers are not all purchasers assembling their wardrobes to go South, but may be forehanded stay-at-homes seeking forecasts of what the spring styles are to be, intending to put in many dull days the next few weeks with the seamstress making or planning the spring wardrobe.

Some of the new tendencies are noted in the accompanying sketches. One observes a softness of treatment about many of the sports costumes, as exemplified on the first figure at the left. This frock is of white crepe de chine; the blouse has a frill at the neck, while the skirt is accordion pleated. There is a band of bright embroidery down the front of the blouse and the hat of the garden flop type is draped with a scarf of printed chiffon, which trails off in a streamer from the knot at the edge of the brim.

Silk bandanas are a fad adapted to the decoration of many of the sports costumes. A greenish blue crepe frock that has wide pocket patches and bands on the sleeves of linen boldly embroidered in wools, is further enlivened by a gay bandana in tones of orange, greens and purple worn as a scarf round the neck and knotted on one shoulder. The Independent Grocer
How Public Benefits
No. 11 of a Series.
Consumers are the beneficiaries of the policy of the average independent grocer when the wholesale market advances as they rarely increase their prices accordingly.
That's why the public is frequently able to buy food for less money than the grocer is able to replace his supply from his wholesaler, or manufacturer.
During the years immediately following the world war wholesale prices advanced 67 per cent over the normal whereas retail food costs increased but 57 per cent.
The independent grocer usually exhausts his stock and then raises the cost when he is compelled to pay more on his replacement purchases.
That is another reason why your independent grocer earns your patronage.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Fright in the Night

By Thornton W. Burgess

Imagination makes of night
A bogey just to give us fright

IT was pitch dark in the shed at the back of Farmer Brown's house, for it was night. On a rafter up under the roof sat Welcome Robin fast asleep. It was very still. The only sounds were occasional snaps as Jack Frost froze things harder and harder. Welcome Robin didn't notice them, for by this time he was used to them. He slept peacefully.

But suddenly he awoke. Just why he didn't know. He awoke in great fright. Why he was afraid he didn't know. It was just a feeling that something was wrong, that some danger was near. He listened, but heard nothing. He changed his position nervously. After a while he began to get over his fright.

"I guess I must have had a bad dream or something," thought he. "I guess it is because I am not yet wholly used to this place. Nothing could harm me here. I'll go to sleep again and forget it."

He was just about to tuck his head under a wing when he heard just the faintest sound. Instantly he was wide awake and all his fears had returned. He held his breath and waited. Then he heard that sound again. It was a very faint noise, but it sounded like claws, sharp claws on wood. Perhaps it was just a mouse. He tried to make himself believe that that was all it was.

And then Welcome Robin saw two little points of light. He knew what they were. They were eyes! Yes, sir, they were eyes! Fear clutched his heart. For two or three minutes those eyes didn't move. Then very slowly they began to move, and he heard that faint sound of claws on wood. He stared at those two eyes. They were creeping up along the side of the shed. It was terrible to watch them. Whose they were he hadn't the least idea, but he knew that they belonged to an enemy. Presently they were even with him. Then they began to move out very slowly along the rafter on which he was sitting.

Welcome gave a little shriek of fright, and flew across to another

rafter at the far end of the shed. There he sat and shivered and shook. For a moment or two those eyes glared at him and then disappeared. Whoever owned them had turned around and was going back along that rafter. He heard a thump as some one jumped down. Then suddenly he guessed who it was. It was Black Pussy the Cat!

Poor Welcome Robin! He didn't dare go to sleep again. For a long time he sat there shaking with fright, watching for those terrible eyes and listening for some sound to tell him where Black Pussy was. He had about decided that Black Pussy had given up when once more he saw those eyes. Again he sat and watched them draw nearer and nearer until Black Pussy was on the rafter on which he sat. Then he flew to the other end of the shed.

That was a dreadful night. Welcome Robin will never forget it. How thankful he was when he saw daylight and knew that he could leave that shed!

Fashion News Notes

PARIS.—The most gorgeous gown yet put forward this season is one made of golden cloth and silver lace. The golden cloth is slashed at the neck just enough to allow the head to pass through, and there are no sleeves. Draped snugly about the figure in back, the cloth is gathered into a knot at the front of the waist and fastened there by a great bow of silver lace with trailing ends.

PARIS.—Rather plain slippers of satin or of metal cloth are being worn at evening functions these days. The heels are extremely slender and the buckles tend toward unobtrusive oblongs of gold or silver.

LONDON.—An unusual and likeable hat has just made its appearance here today. It has a wide brim which turns down in back and up in front, in somber fashion. The hat is made up of stripes of satin braided with often a gold thread mingled with the satin. Marten or beaver edges the brim.

LONDON.—One long, trailing sleeve, instead of a train, is the latest of the ideas today for evening frocks. Two wide shoulder straps are used on this type of frock. Below the right strap, the one sleeve starts as a separate venture, falling in long, veil-like folds to drag on the floor.

NEW YORK.—The Palm Beach clothes being shown in minute shops today indicate a preponderance of voile in newer and more attractive shades than ever. There is a good deal of hand-drawn work on the gowns and a favorite voile has a drawn-work pattern upon it in large squares.

NEW YORK.—Delightful ideas for fancy-dress parties for children are shown in some of the Fifth avenue shops today. The little lady may go attired as a basket of flowers, as a very much ornamented handbag, as a cross-section of a steeplechase—all by the simple expedient of slipping one of these novel gowns over her head.

NEW YORK.—A bright bit of velvet ribbon as a background for the buckle on a dark satin shoe is the newest fancy here. The ribbon may form a little bow with the buckle as its center, or it may simply stand out in two sharply pointed ends.

Maxims of a Modern Maid

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

MAKING New Year's resolutions is the easiest thing any husband does, since he's had almost daily practice in promises unhampered by even the thought of performance.

When a young man on the way home from a party grows suddenly silent, he may be overcome by Her nearness and dearness—or he may have had a look at the meter and be thinking about the dearness of taxis!

If a girl wonders whether she'd like to marry a certain youth, he still has a chance; but if she wonders how she can keep him from catching those heavy colds—it's all over but the wedding bells!

If matrimonial, like Senatorial, elections were held every six years, how many husbands—and wives—would waddle home as lame ducks?

A man is an animal who can be late for dinner three times running and can roar savagely, the fourth time, because dinner is late for him.

When a woman is afraid to tell a man the whole truth about herself, she should realize that it's probably rather less than the half-truth about him.

Any young moron who asks a girl if she'd mind if he kissed her deserves nothing better than an affirmative answer.

It must be so nice to be a man. When every acquaintance of his own sex refuses to listen to the story of how he landed his first job, he can always find some woman expert in the business of being enthralled.

Uncle Sam Says---
Reading on Dante

This list of suggested reading which is recommended by the United States Bureau of Education was selected by members of the National Dante Committee. It contains a list of the best works about this immortal Italian poet whose echoing verse, wonderful vision, and profound insight of human sympathy have made his messages still rich in counsel 600 years after his death.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch may obtain a copy of this suggested reading by writing to the United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., asking for "Reading Course No. 18."

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By DEVIN S. COBB.

THE WRONG PLACE ALTOGETHER.

A writer who made fifteen trips to Europe not long ago—his first trip abroad. After he reached London unexpected business carried him to Paris, and he was telling a New York friend about his experiences.

"I don't speak any French," he said, "and I didn't know the name of any Paris hotels. So when we landed at Calais I bought a lot of postal cards of Paris views, because I figured there'd be a picture of one of the big hotels anyhow. Sure enough, I found a postcard showing a great big stone building with flags on it, and it was called 'Hotel de Ville.'

"That'll do for me,' I says to myself. 'So when we got to Paris I climbs into a taxi and says, 'Hotel de Ville' to the driver.'

"Say, do you know where he took me? The darned fool took me to the city hall."
